Says 'Some Bright Boy' In White House Apparently Interfering

LETTERS FROM FILES IS BASIS OF BIG SQUABBLE

By G. Milton Kelly

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP) — Senator Fulbright (D. - Ark.) declared today that "some bright boy" in the White House or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation apparently tried to choke off a senate committee's inquiry into RFC loans.

Fulbright heads the senate banking subcommittee conducting the investigation. He was referring to a disclosure yesterday that President Truman had requested and received hundreds of congress members letters to the RFC regarding loans.

Other members of the subcommittee have asserted it was a move to intimidate the group, which recently issued a report that said three RFC directors had yielded to outside influence in approving loans.

The report said that, among others, Donald Dawson, an aide to Mr. Truman, appeared to have exerted influence on the directors and the agency's lending policy.

"I think some bright boy thought he was going to shut up the committee," Fulbright told reporters, alluding to delivery of the congressional letters to the president.

Fulbright named no names, but said the "bright boy" could only have been some one in the White House or the RFC. He added that the subcommittee "may look into the motives" behind the episode.

Mr. Truman has assailed the subcommittee report as asinine. He also declared the report said nothing about the letters members of congress write to the RFC regarding loans.

The White House said yesterday

Surplus Property Mismanagement Charged In Miss.

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The state surplus property procurement commission today was held up as a "glaring example of mismanagement" in a report by the general legislative investigating committee.

The committee called for a general housecleaning in administration of the program and charged that:

Some surplus property "found its way into channels other than its proper destination."

The commission has no set written policies or procedures and was operated in a "loose manner."

Director M. P. L. Love is "suspicious of and has no confidence in his chief assistant (C. E. Dampeer) yet was either afraid or for some reason unwilling to remove him."

Truckloads of property were received for several years with "absolutely no check" on amounts received by trucks and actually delivered and no check or record was made when the goods were unloaded at commission warehouses.

"Had this investigation not been made," the report added, "it is questionable whether certain funds that remained uncollected until after the investigation was under way and were withheld from their proper account for more than 60 days after collection, would ever have reached the treasury."

Youth Admits He Killed Trusting Florida Peace Officer In Mississippi; Alert Pawnbroker Leads To Arrest

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—An alert pawnbroker today trapped a 22-year-old youth who police said admitted killing a trusting Florida constable with his own gun last week.

He was caught when he tried to sell the gun for $15 at a Manhattan pawnshop.

Police said the youth, Harris Mullis, Jr., admitted killing Constable Luther Hardison of Coral Gables near Mobile, Ala., while he was being taken back from Los Angeles to Miami to face a burglary charge.

This is the story police told of Mullis' capture:

Mullis walked into the pawnshop of Harry Weisenberger, laid a large revolver on the counter and offered to sell it for $15.

Weisenberger, his suspicions aroused when he noticed the gun held a single cartridge, went to an unobserved part of the shop and called police. He held Mullis in conversation until three detectives arrived.

Mullis reached for his pocket as the detectives pounced on him. After they subdued him, they found in the pocket a pen-type tear gas gun and bullets for the revolver.

Questioned at a mid-town police station, Mullis admitted the slaying between sobs and then fainted.

"Revived, he said, "I feel better now. I couldn't sleep and I was scared to death to be taken back."

Hardison had refused to handcuff Mullis as they left Los Angeles by car, saying "there is no such thing as a bad boy. I have four children of my own." His bullet-riddled body was found in a ditch last Saturday.

According to police, Mullis gave these details of the killing:

He said he was driving the car between Pascagoula, Miss., and Mobile, and faked weariness. When Hardison started to get out of the car to change drivers, Mullis grabbed up his gun from the seat and fired.

He stole $200 from the dead man's pocket and drove back to New Orleans where he abandoned the car. Mullis hitch-hiked north by way of Fort Worth and Chicago, arriving here five or six days ago.

While here he sold blood to a blood bank to get money. Hardison's $200 went for clothing, food and lodging, and he had only $1.05 in his pockets when arrested.

Pappa Pappas, a slight but rugged looking pipe fitter, was obviously a bit unsettled, but he was trying to take it in stride.

"So what? We wanted some kids, so now we got 'em."

They were their first.

The hospital said both the mother and the babies — two boys and two girls — were "fine." They were placed in incubators immediately after delivery, more as precaution than necessity.

Mrs. Pappas was taken to Maryland General Hospital at 6:30 this morning by her landlady, Mrs. John Anderson. Her husband, on the night shift at Bethlehem Steel's Sparrows Point shipyard, was at work.

At 10:26 a. m., the first baby was born, a girl weighing four pounds and six ounces. A minute later, a four-pound seven ounce girl was born. Six seconds later, a five-pound boy was squalling lustily, and two minutes after him —10:30 — came a four-pound eight-ounce brother.

CONGRESS LINING UP IN TWO CAMPS OVER DRAFT BILL

One Group Backs Taking Of 18-Year-Olds, Other Favors 18½

SENATE ACTION ON BILL EXPECTED IN FEW DAYS

By Edward B. Haakinson

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)—Members of congress were lining up in two camps today in the dispute over lowering the present draft age of 19 years.

One group favored granting the administration's request for calling up 18 year olds, after all older eligible men had been inducted.

The other urged that no youths be drafted until they at least are 18 years and six months, so that basic training would keep them out of combat until they reached 19.

Most senate Democratic leaders already have gone on record for the broad universal military service and training bill, set for senate action early next week, probably starting Tuesday.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), chairman of the senate G. O. P. policy committee, told a reporter he thinks he will be "more in favor of the house bill" which now calls for a minimum induction age of 18 years and six months.

"I don't understand that they have to draft 18-year-olds to get the men they need," Taft said, "and I'm never in favor of giving the executive authority that it doesn't need but might want to use some time in the future."

On this Taft sided with Senator Morse (R.-Ore.), only senator on the 13-member armed services committee to vote for the 18½ year minimum.

Other Republicans on this committee, after listening to five weeks of conflicting testimony, voted for a graduated call of 18-year-olds, with those nearest 19 to be taken first.

A number of senators indicated to newsmen they would go along with the senate bill.

"I think I can support it," said Senator Murray (D.-Mont.)

Senator Frear (D.-Del.) said it

RED-HELD JUNCTION AT HOENGSONG THREATENED

By Robert Eunson

Tokyo, Sunday, Feb. 25.—(AP) — American troops captured the road junction of Pangnim Saturday as the United Nations offensive ground slowly ahead through the mud and thawing snows of central Korea.

Pangnim, 3 miles south of the 38th parallel, is the junction point of a lateral highway from Hoengsong and a main road that winds 42 miles northeast to the coast.

Hoengsong, 25 road miles west of Pangnim, is the key to the Communist central defense line.

Fire-gutted Hoengsong remained a no-man's land in a valley. American troops were dug in on hills commanding it from the south while Chinese Reds were entrenched in hills to the north.

American tanks Saturday crashed through Hoengsong to slug toe to toe with the enemy to the north. The patrol pulled back after a three-hour fight, but its action was

THREATEN TO HIT CHINA MAINLAND

U. S. Determined To Do So If Air, Sea Attacks Hurled At U. N. Troops

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—U. S. military leaders are determined to blast Red-held China and Manchuria with massive air raids if the Communists dare to hurl air and sea attacks against the United Nations forces fighting in Korea.

Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins said in an interview that massed air or sea attacks by the enemy would trip the trigger of swift retaliation.

"We'll strike back," he said. "We'll hit their land and sea bases if they bring out air or sea forces to attack us."

Such attacks could be launched by fleets of B-36's striking from bases on Okinawa and the islands of Japan—and from carrier-based navy bombers.

Since the Chinese entered the war in October, China and Manchuria have been "off limits" to American airmen. Pilots have strict orders not to fly over the Chinese mainland or to cross over the Yalu river from Korea into Manchuria. They are permitted to strike at the Chinese only on the Korea side of the Yalu river.

Huson To Head Press Association

Shreveport, La., —(AP)—Roland T. Huson, publisher of the Jonesville Booster and the Catahoula News, was elected president of the northern division of the Louisiana Press Association at the group's annual convention here today.

R. W. Wagner, publisher of the Jena Times and the Olla-Tullos Signal, was named vice president and Kenneth Walker, publisher of the Colfax Chronicle, was chosen secretary.

Huson was elevated from the office of secretary, and Wagner was re-elected. The three will not assume office until the state convention in April.

Approximately 100 members of the organization attended the convention.

At a meeting of the organization's board of directors at the hotel Friday evening, creation of a printing school in the state was urged to offset the shortage of printers. The board voted to recommend to the vocational division of the state department of education that such a school be established within one of Louisiana's trades schools.

The board also discussed joining with the National Editorial Association in making a film on freedom of the press, the movie to be shown to school children and civic groups.

LAFOURCHE BRIBE HEARINGS ENDED

Stopped After Priest Fails To Name Violators In His Charges

Thibodaux, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A public hearing on accusations by the Reverend Jerome Drolet that Lafourche parish officials had been bribed was halted today after the priest had failed to name any violators.

The hearing was called at the request of District Attorney Hubert LaFargue following radio addresses and printed charges by the priest, pastor of St. Charles Catholic Church of Lafourche, that bribes had been received by parish public officials.

The priest said he had no personal knowledge of bribery among the officials.

District Judge J. Louis Watkins ended the one-day hearing, saying:

"The conclusions of the court are since no disclosures have been made and evidently none are available or within the knowledge of the witness, there is no further need for the conduct of this proceeding."

Earlier, the judge turned down a petition submitted for the priest by his attorney, James McCain of New Orleans, to summon ten persons to testify about operations of slot machines and prostitution in the parish. Judge Watkins said he had no authority to enlarge the scope of the hearing which was called solely to investigate the bribery charges.

The priest was asked by LaFargue to identify a "vice dictator" mentioned in a church bulletin published last July.

"There is a reference," LaFargue said, "to the assertion that "the sheriff's office has been collecting payoff money from the raffle of organized prostitution. This

M'Carthy Charges Peyton Ford Runs Justice Dept.

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)— Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today that Peyton Ford, deputy to Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, has been running the justice department instead of McGrath.

Ford made this reply to a reporter: "The attorney general has run the department very effectively since I've been there, and I'm sure that he will continue to."

McCarthy's statement said the outcome of a current investigation will show whether McGrath is in control. It deals with a leak of confidential military messages to Columnist Drew Pearson.

The defense department recently referred this subject to the justice department. It also sent along Pearson's accusations that McCarthy himself has spilled information about a Korean army report on the floor of the senate in violation of military security.

McCarthy's statement said that the Pearson inquiry "would be an excellent case in which to determine who is actually running the justice department — whether James McInerney, the assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, will be given a free hand, or whether Pearson's great and good friend, Peyton Ford, will be able to keep the case from the grand jury.

SENATE ACTION ON BILL EXPECTED IN FEW DAYS

By Edward B. Haakinson

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)—Members of congress were lining up in two camps today in the dispute over lowering the present draft age of 19 years.

One group favored granting the administration's request for calling up 18 year olds, after all older eligible men had been inducted.

The other urged that no youths be drafted until they at least are 18 years and six months, so that basic training would keep them out of combat until they reached 19.

Most senate Democratic leaders already have gone on record for the broad universal military service and training bill, set for senate action early next week, probably starting Tuesday.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), chairman of the senate G. O. P. policy committee, told a reporter he thinks he will be "more in favor of the house bill" which now calls for a minimum induction age of 18 years and six months.

"I don't understand that they have to draft 18-year-olds to get the men they need," Taft said, "and I'm never in favor of giving the executive authority that it doesn't need but might want to use some time in the future."

On this Taft sided with Senator Morse (R.-Ore.), only senator on the 13-member armed services committee to vote for the 18½ year minimum.

Other Republicans on this committee, after listening to five weeks of conflicting testimony, voted for a graduated call of 18-year-olds, with those nearest 19 to be taken first.

A number of senators indicated to newsmen they would go along with the senate bill.

"I think I can support it," said Senator Murray (D.-Mont.)

Senator Frear (D.-Del.) said it

A spokesman for the railroads said "it is quite possible that we may reach a settlement with the trainmen before the night is out."

The proposed terms would add 2½ or 3 cents to the wage increases offered by the railroads in a tentative agreement of Dec. 21,

Ground Forces Move Slowly Ahead In Mud On 'Operation Kill'

RED-HELD JUNCTION AT HOENGSONG THREATENED

By Robert Eunson

Tokyo, Sunday, Feb. 25.—(AP) — American troops captured the road junction of Pangnim Saturday as the United Nations offensive ground slowly ahead through the mud and thawing snows of central Korea.

Pangnim, 3 miles south of the 38th parallel, is the junction point of a lateral highway from Hoengsong and a main road that winds 42 miles northeast to the coast.

Hoengsong, 25 road miles west of Pangnim, is the key to the Communist central defense line.

Fire-gutted Hoengsong remained a no-man's land in a valley. American troops were dug in on hills commanding it from the south while Chinese Reds were entrenched in hills to the north.

American tanks Saturday crashed through Hoengsong to slug toe to toe with the enemy to the north. The patrol pulled back after a three-hour fight, but its action was

THREATEN TO HIT CHINA MAINLAND

U. S. Determined To Do So If Air, Sea Attacks Hurled At U. N. Troops

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—U. S. military leaders are determined to blast Red-held China and Manchuria with massive air raids if the Communists dare to hurl air and sea attacks against the United Nations forces fighting in Korea.

Army Chief of Staff J. Lawton Collins said in an interview that massed air or sea attacks by the enemy would trip the trigger of swift retaliation.

"We'll strike back," he said. "We'll hit their land and sea bases if they bring out air or sea forces to attack us."

Such attacks could be launched by fleets of B-36's striking from bases on Okinawa and the islands of Japan—and from carrier-based navy bombers.

Since the Chinese entered the war in October, China and Manchuria have been "off limits" to American airmen. Pilots have strict orders not to fly over the Chinese mainland or to cross over the Yalu river from Korea into Manchuria. They are permitted to strike at the Chinese only on the Korea side of the Yalu river.

Huson To Head Press Association

Shreveport, La., —(AP)—Roland T. Huson, publisher of the Jonesville Booster and the Catahoula News, was elected president of the northern division of the Louisiana Press Association at the group's annual convention here today.

R. W. Wagner, publisher of the Jena Times and the Olla-Tullos Signal, was named vice president and Kenneth Walker, publisher of the Colfax Chronicle, was chosen secretary.

Huson was elevated from the office of secretary, and Wagner was re-elected. The three will not assume office until the state convention in April.

Approximately 100 members of the organization attended the convention.

At a meeting of the organization's board of directors at the hotel Friday evening, creation of a printing school in the state was urged to offset the shortage of printers. The board voted to recommend to the vocational division of the state department of education that such a school be established within one of Louisiana's trades schools.

The board also discussed joining with the National Editorial Association in making a film on freedom of the press, the movie to be shown to school children and civic groups.

HE FOUGHT THROUGH CHIPYONG

Tension masks the face of an exhausted American soldier who fought through the siege of Chipyong in Korea. And now he stands in the chow line at an aid station in the area after the arrival of reinforcements from the south. American and French troops were cut off in fighting a spearhead of the Red counter-attack that tried to split Allied lines in central Korea. But the U. Two Charged With Prostitution

Police detectives cracked down on prostitution in Monroe yesterday, nabbing two Mobile, Ala., women and four Negro bellhops.

Capt. Hugh Tolbert, city detective, said other arrests would follow if the city's "no prostitution" warning was not complied with.

The two women arrested by detectives yesterday were Loni Romriez, 28, and Virginia Covington, 38. Both were charged with prostitution and transferred to the parish jail.

LAFOURCHE BRIBE HEARINGS ENDED

Stopped After Priest Fails To Name Violators In His Charges

Thibodaux, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A public hearing on accusations by the Reverend Jerome Drolet that Lafourche parish officials had been bribed was halted today after the priest had failed to name any violators.

The hearing was called at the request of District Attorney Hubert LaFargue following radio addresses and printed charges by the priest, pastor of St. Charles Catholic Church of Lafourche, that bribes had been received by parish public officials.

The priest said he had no personal knowledge of bribery among the officials.

District Judge J. Louis Watkins ended the one-day hearing, saying:

"The conclusions of the court are since no disclosures have been made and evidently none are available or within the knowledge of the witness, there is no further need for the conduct of this proceeding."

Earlier, the judge turned down a petition submitted for the priest by his attorney, James McCain of New Orleans, to summon ten persons to testify about operations of slot machines and prostitution in the parish. Judge Watkins said he had no authority to enlarge the scope of the hearing which was called solely to investigate the bribery charges.

The priest was asked by LaFargue to identify a "vice dictator" mentioned in a church bulletin published last July.

"There is a reference," LaFargue said, "to the assertion that "the sheriff's office has been collecting payoff money from the raffle of organized prostitution. This

M'Carthy Charges Peyton Ford Runs Justice Dept.

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)— Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today that Peyton Ford, deputy to Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, has been running the justice department instead of McGrath.

Ford made this reply to a reporter: "The attorney general has run the department very effectively since I've been there, and I'm sure that he will continue to."

McCarthy's statement said the outcome of a current investigation will show whether McGrath is in control. It deals with a leak of confidential military messages to Columnist Drew Pearson.

The defense department recently referred this subject to the justice department. It also sent along Pearson's accusations that McCarthy himself has spilled information about a Korean army report on the floor of the senate in violation of military security.

McCarthy's statement said that the Pearson inquiry "would be an excellent case in which to determine who is actually running the justice department — whether James McInerney, the assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, will be given a free hand, or whether Pearson's great and good friend, Peyton Ford, will be able to keep the case from the grand jury.

"It is an excellent case to determine whether or not Attorney General McGrath actually has control

Gen. Moore Dies After His Helicopter Crashes In Han River

FOURTH U. N. GENERAL TO BE LOST IN KOREAN WAR

West Central Front, Korea, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Maj. Carl Bryant E. Moore, 56, commander of the U. S. ninth corps, died shortly after his helicopter crashed in the Han river near the front.

There was no immediate announcement whether the general died of crash injuries or of shock as a result of immersion in the icy river.

The helicopter suddenly lost power and crashed. Men of a U. S. engineer unit camped along the river helped Moore and his pilot ashore. The pilot's name was not available. He was not seriously hurt.

Moore was taken to the van (trailer) of Brig. Gen. H. J. D.

With U. S. Marines In Korea, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith first marine division commander, today was named to command the U. S. Ninth Corps succeeding Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore.

Moore died of a heart attack today after his helicopter crashed in the Han River near the front.

(This was the first indication of the cause of Moore's death. It previously was not made clear whether he died of shock or injuries.)

As Smith flew south to take over the Ninth, the marine division was taken over by flint-tough Lewis B. "Chesty" Puller.

Puller, a fabulous fighting marine who rose from private to Brigadier General, declared: "It is a great honor to command a great division."

Favors Cangelosi For Defense Post

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long said today he would try to persuade Baton Rouge Attorney Theo Cangelosi to take the job of Louisiana civil defense director.

Long, who arrived here by plane from attending a livestock exposition in San Antonio, Tex., said, "I think Cangelosi will take it. He's one of the best qualified men in the state. He's thin-skinned. The papers gave him a going over when he was attorney for the highway commission and that bothered him."

Cangelosi has said twice he does not want the post left vacant by Lieut. Gov. William Dodd who recently resigned.

DREW SCHOOL'S P.-T. A. ASSEMBLES

Founders' Day Observed With Dramatic Portrayal Of Passing Times

The Drew P.-T. A. unit observed Founder's Day and their third anniversary February 16. Following prayer by Mrs. O. D. Hollingsworth, Mrs. George Welch gave the history of the P.-T. A., recognizing the founders, Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

She then compared the school of today with those of the 19th century. This was followed by a dramatization of the 19th century and 20th century school with its parents and children. Mrs. Herbert Strozier portrayed the 19th century mother who did not trust the teacher and taught her child to dislike her. Gwen Nelson played the role of the 19th century child, who was badly spoiled. Mrs. Vivian Parker was the 19th century teacher who was run out of the community by a parent and who walked dejectedly across the stage.

Then the 20th century set up was dramatized and showed great progress, Mrs. R. M. Drew represented the school teacher of today. Mrs. Hollingsworth acted as radio announcer telling of the dress styles of the time that P.-T. A. was founded. Mrs. Birney's role was enacted by Mrs. Clyde Ramsey while voices of the modern children were portrayed by Beth Parker, Charles Steed, Mary Carolyn Aldridge, Richard Drew, Jane Lee and Donna Parker. Mrs. Ann Pritchard furnished the musical selections.

A charmingly decorated table in yellow and green carried out the numerals 1879 and 1951, the years since P.-T. A. has been in existence. A big cake was cut. Mrs. Clarence Frost and Mrs. Vivian Parker acted as hospitality hostesses.

The room of the George Welch carried off honors with the largest number attending.

ALTRUSA CLUB GETS SUPPORT

Project To Aid Korea Sufferers Receives Help From Other Groups

Support for the Altrusa Club's project for aid to south Korean refugees is being received, according to information from the international relations chairman, Miss Mary Clay. Among the women's organizations already voting to lend support are the Business and Professional Women's Club, headed by Mrs. Pauline Welch and the Pilot Club, whose president is Mrs. Alyne Newsom.

The Business and Professional Women's Club sent a check for $10.00 for purchase of needed medical supplies and also voted at the February business meeting to send a box of needed clothing and other supplies.

The Pilot Club, a service organization for professional and executive women, has sent a $5.00 check for medical supplies urgently needed.

George Graham, a leader in the Jeffersonian Club at the Ouachita Parish High School, has informed the Altrusa committee that the Jeffersonian Club will send boxes of needed supplies.

Jones B. Huskey, Scout executive of the Ouachita Valley Council of Boy Scouts, has written a letter commending the Altrusa Club for their worthy project in aiding suffering Koreans. He stated that he would notify Scout leaders in this area about the Altrusian's project so that those interested might contact the Altrusan's committee.

Individuals reading of the Altrusan's Korean project through the local press and volunteering to send boxes or be responsible for groups sending them included Mrs. Ethel Newport of Monroe and Mrs. Bell Turner of Dean.

Other organizations or individuals interested in aiding in the Korean project may secure details by writing a postal to the chairman, or telephoning 2-0917 at night between 7-9 p.m.

DREW JR. CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Interesting Session Held In School Cafeteria; To Go On Air

The Drew Jr 4-H Club met for the monthly session in the school cafeteria. Gwen Nelson, president, presided and the secretary, Beth Sanford, read minutes of the last meeting.

Bonnie Wales and Hal Wales reported on the 4-H executive council meeting.

Karen Strozier announced plans for observing National 4-H Club week March 3-11. The 4-H will observe a 4-H Sunday at New Chapel Hill Church by their attendance.

The club will prepare a script on its achievements for the press and will have a 15-minute broadcast over KLIC. Plans are also under way for a window display.

While Gwen Nelson directed a game, Hal Wales and Carolyn Pace debated on different subjects at the same time.

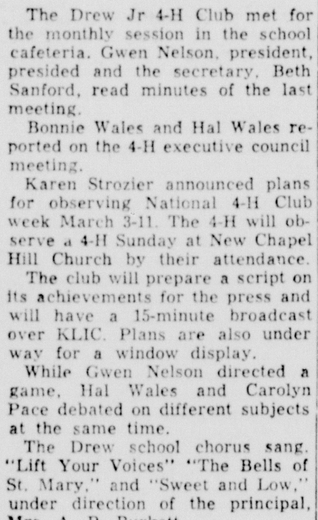

The Drew school chorus sang, "Lift Your Voices" "The Bells of St. Mary," and "Sweet and Low," under direction of the principal, Mrs. A. P. Burkett.

Attending the club were Mrs. Audrey Dawson and Robert Childress. Julius O'Quinn addressed the club and praised the club's achievements. Mrs. Dawson demonstrated "An Outdoor Living Room." Mr. O'Quinn discussed livestock with the boys.

Mrs. Herbert Strozier, Mrs. A. P. Burkett and Mrs. Vivian Parker met with the club.

When watermelon season is over the little kids will have to go back to washing their ears with ordinary water.

Editorials and Comment

A Good Watchdog

The Johnson Senate Preparedness committee is proving itself a fit successor to the famous Truman committee which investigated the war effort in World War II.

Its recent report assailing air force management at Lackland Air Base, near San Antonio, Tex., is a hard-hitting document but an eminently fair one. It shows the committee's ability to move into a confused situation and come up with facts, not wild charges or hysteria.

The best evidence that the committee investigators did a good job is perhaps the fact that the air force did not bound back with claims that the senators had overshot the mark. Air force spokesmen in effect acknowledged the merit of the criticisms, and promised the bad practices would not be allowed to recur.

When Johnson's committee stepped in, rumors were afloat Lackland was guilty of such overcrowding that suicides, deaths from pneumonia, poor food and medical care and other sub-standard conditions were the rule.

The chairman, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, sent four investigators to the scene. They did not content themselves with talking to top officials and touring the base. They put on air force uniforms and lived among the recruits.

They found the tales of sub-standard health conditions almost completely unfounded. Only two deaths had occured in 18 months. Food and medical care were good.

But the overcrowding proved no myth. At a base designed for 20,000 men, they found upwards of 68,000. The really grim result of this was not bad health but a virtually complete breakdown of basic air force training. They judged the manpower waste to be tremendous.

For this they blamed the air force's "greedy" policy of trying to get its hands on more men than it could possibly train with existing base facilities. The committee saw it as a bald effort to hoard manpower.

The investigators also singled out for special censure the air force public relations officer who sought to cover up the facts and to dismiss the complaints as the work of "subversive" elements in America.

In keeping with its attitude of fairness, the committee does not propose to stop with this inquiry. Having disclosed these practices in the air force, it now intends to look into basic training programs of the army and navy to see how they're handling their recruits.

It goes without saying that the nation needs a watchdog over its defense effort. The confusion, the haste, the complexity that mark such a program make defects inevitable. For the safety and welfare of the country, these must be pointed out wherever possible.

We were lucky that the Truman committee did a competent job in World War II. Apparently our good fortune is holding. For the Johnson committee, in its Lackland report, represented responsible congressional statesmanship at its best.

Women In Uniform

To what extent women should be a part of the nation's armed services is a question now in a highly controversial phase. Proposal by Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, a former president of Wellesley College, who commanded the Waves in World War II, that women be drafted for noncombatant posts will obviously get nowhere.

Yet the present statutory limit of two per cent for women in uniform in each of the armed services is admittedly too rigid and too small. That would restrict to 70,000 the number of women in an all-out force of 3,500,000 that President Truman and Secretary of Defense Marshall want by summer.

It is said by spokesmen for the air force that a woman could competently hold one job out of every ten. Other services, too, are considering replacing "Armchair" members by women. Even now the Senate preparedness subcommittee plans "a spot check of all air bases, army posts and navy and marine establishments to see how many women can handle military assignments now held by able-bodied combat men."

To the degree that this plan to use more women volunteers is for the purpose of releasing men for potential combat duty, it has merit.

What Others Say

EDITORS ROUNDTABLE

DELAY IN TAX INCREASES

While opposing any undue delay, majority editorial opinion favors a "one-package" federal tax bill, study of President Truman's budget and the whole tax structure. But a very large minority of editors insists that the delay inherent in the one-package approach argues for Mr. Truman's two-part tax plan, with quick passage of the first part as a brake against inflation. Some editors feel that delays in effective price and wage controls, and Mr. Truman's ruling against the federal reserve board's proposed anti-inflationary money policy cause some congressmen to be in no hurry to increase taxes.

Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times (Ind.-Dem.): "Congressional tax writers say they are going to 'study' the whole federal tax structure before attempting to put together a program to meet the demands of the defense effort. It means that President Truman's request for stiff tax increases immediately, to be followed by a later 'second bite,' is to be laid aside. Instead, congress will try to write a single bill, perhaps by mid-year. This is timidity of the rankest sort . . . which only delays finding a solution to a problem that increases in severity with each passing day."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger - Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The country is prepared to stand the pinch of heavier taxation, but only if it is convinced that it is necessary and that no waste and extravagance and governmental frills are involved. It can not have this assurance until every possible effort has been made to cut the deadwood out of the Truman budget. Certainly congress should not put the cart before the horse and begin raising taxes until it knows how much money actually is needed for the bare necessities of the nation's life."

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Only the wildest optimists really believe that congress actually will cut the budget by more than $6.5 billion. In other words, pay-as-we-go taxation is practically sure to require at least $10 billion—the amount Mr. Truman wants quickly—in new revenue. . . So far this fiscal year, the government's income is a trifle ahead of its outgo, but growing defense expenditures will soon reverse that picture. . . . The plan congress should adopt is prompt action on the first part of Mr. Truman's program—$10 billion in tax increases quickly. Meanwhile, budget cutting can be going forward."

Washington (D. C.) Post (Ind.): "The treasury's two - package approach is, in our opinion, an impediment to formulation of well-balanced tax program aiming at a definite goal. Nor is the need for so-called 'quickie' tax legislation as pressing as administration spokesmen assert, since government receipts are currently higher than expenditures. To be sure, new taxes should be voted as promptly as possible to offset the inflation-producing increase in purchasing power that will be felt when government spending begins to outstrip government income."

Baltimore (Md.) Sun (Ind.-Dem. "By voting to hold extended hearings . . . the house ways and means committee virtually guaranteed that there will be no new tax legislation until late summer at best. . . . Although defense spending is still just a tricle compared to the flood tide to come, personal and corporate incomes have risen rapidly within the past year. With strong upward pressure on prices. It was primarily to prevent this pressure from getting out of hand that the administration requested speedy action on taxes. This the committee has chosen to ignore."

New Orleans (La.) Times - Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "It appears that inflation ate up most of the tax boost voted after the Korean invasion. . . . Though urged to adopt safeguards against that foreseeable inflation the administration stayed its haste and made delays for months. . . . Has the ways and means committee decided against taking the chance that a tax boostof 10 billions might be nullified by continuance of the inflationary rise, and determined to play safe for the country by holding back the tax boost until the administration gets 'round to enforcing genuine price-wage stabilization?"

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.) "We believe price stabilization could be speeded if the public insisted. But it is admittedly a complicated business, and a prompt attack on inflation through taxes appears more feasible. This will be disputed by congressmen who argue for the inevitability of delay. They say there must be budget hearings by four committees; there are hundreds of conflicting interests to be considered; there is a desire to insure cuts in spending first. . . . But many of these obstacles could be swept aside or plowed through within a month—if the people demanded action."

BIBLE THOUGHTS

The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.—Psalms 95:5.

The Omnipotent has sown His name on the heavens in glittering stars, but upon earth He planteth His name by tender flowers.—Richter.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

The Key To Peace

The lie has become an ugly nuisance in our public life. Men say things which are unrelated to any facts at all, but which by constant repetition come to be accepted as truth. This is often called "the big lie," which Hitler is accused of inventing but which even those who denounce Hitler pursue.

Just now I am receiving large quantities of mail on two lies:

1. One group identifies zionism with communism;

2. The other denounces members of the Roman Catholic Church as agents of a foreign government.

Both are lies and require exposure as such and it is sound to lump them together in this discussion, because both these charges stem from vicious bigotry designed to bring chaos to this country.

Zionism goes back some 4,000 years when Abraham left Ur of the land of Canaan. Thus, Palestine has been imbedded in Jewish tradition throughout these 40 centuries of their life. It was in Palestine that the Jews developed as a people, produced their monotheistic religion, wrote their Bible, sang their psalms, and established a nation.

This has never been forgotten among Jews and even after the temple was destroyed, they returned to its remaining wall to weep. Nowhere is this spirit more tragically described than in the book of Lamentations, attributed to the prophet Jeremiah:

"How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger.

And cast down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Israel,

And remembered not his footstool in the day of his anger!"

The greatest Jewish poet of post-Biblical times, Hehuda Halevi, who was born in 1086, expressed the fervor of this concept in the poem, "My Heart Is In The East":

"My heart is in the east, and I in the uttermost west

How can I find savour in food? How shall it be sweet to me?

How shall I render my bows and my bonds, while yet

Zion lieth beneath the fetter of Edom, and I in Arab chains?

A light thing would it seem to me to leave all the good

Things of Spain

Seeing how precious in mine eyes it is to behold the dust of the desolate sanctuary."

Zion is so ingrained in the Jewish soul that every generation for all these thousands of years has expressed a hope for its restoration to Israel. During the dreyfus trials in France (1894-1906), Theodor Herzl, a journalist of Vienna, decided to devote his life to this task. He developed the modern Zionist movement which finally achieved the establishment of the state of Israel.

Obviously, none of this has anything to do with Marxism, communism, or any other emanation of the materialistic concepts of life of Hegel, Marx, Engels, Darwin, Lenin, or Stalin. To say otherwise is to deny history—the 4,000-year-old history of the Jewish people.

Similarly to denounce the 28,000,000 Americans who worship God according to Roman Catholic rite and ritual and philosophy is to reduce bigotry to absurdity. These citizens have been in this country since Colonial times, as the Jews have been. Their lives have been spilled on all our battlefields. They have contributed

Hollywood, Feb. 24.—Looks like Columbia's Harry Cohn and Margaret O'Brien are about ready to sign that long-rumored pact, calling for her to star in a series of 'teen-age comedies. . . . Peggy Ryan and Ray McDonald, who will do their dancing in Toronto next month, should get a royal welcome three; two of Peggy's uncles, Herb Little and George Bell, are respectively, Toronto's ex-mayor and Toronto's current chief of police. . . Aside to parents of movie-struck kids: Brace yourselves. An eastern novelty manufacturer is putting out a line of pennants to decorate bedroom walls; the first will bear the name and picture of Dick Haymes.

MGM Starlet Marilyn Erskine (once wed to Producer Stanley Kramer) is readying a divorce action against her current spouse, Dr. Samuel Niekrug, a New York dentist. . . . Ha! Macdonald Carey, playing his first kissing scene with Betty Grable for "Meet Me After the Show," was no sooner smacked than he stumbled over a coil of electric cable and bumped his head so hard he needed a 30 minute patch-up job in the studio hospital!

Paramount's decision to summon Opera Star Bob Merrill for two weeks of pre-production work on "Aaron Slick of Punkin Crick" will cost him $75,000 in cancelled contracts. . . . Connie Haynes and Major Bob De Haven have decided on September 1 for their altar-trek. . . . Orchestra Leader Frank DeVol will bill his new soloist as "Jaye P. Morgan—because she sings like a million."

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: RKO's "Payment on Demand" (Bette Davis-Barry Sullivan-Jane Cowl-Kent Taylor-Betty Lynn-Frances Dee). Excellently written, produced and enacted, this domestic drama should win applause from every discriminating adult theatergoer. . . . Good (with reservations): Columbia's "Valentino" (Eleanor Parker-Anthony Dexter-Richard Carlson-Otto Kruger-Patricia Medina). Colorful, highly dramatic and thoroughly enjoyable for any fan content to regard it as out-and-out fiction—but a probable disappointment for those who expect to see a picture setting forth the actual life of Rudolph Valentino. . . . Above Par: Monogram's "Bowery Battalion" (Leo Gorcey-Huntz Hall). A high spot in a popular series that has had many ups and downs. . . . Fair: Universal-International's "Air Cadet" (Stephen McNally-Gail Russell). The same old plot, but they're learning to fly jets this time. . . . Monogram's "Navy Bound" (Tom Neal-Wendy Waldron-Regis Toomey). A "B" picture, but with more than the usual amount of entertainment honey. . . . Best Performance: Bette Davis in "Payment on Demand."

Speaking of "Preview Nights," I'm looking forward to the picture showing scheduled in the next few weeks. As usual (perhaps it results from the furore over the Academy Award nominations), there has been a dearth of big-picture previews in the past six weeks, and many of those shown have left much to be desired in the way of entertainment value. But things should pick up now. I've heard extravagant praise, via the studio gravevines, for more than a dozen offerings which will be served up to the Filmville reviewers within the next month. If half of the praise is justified, that much-quoted boast, "Movies Are Better Than Ever," may take on real meaning.

New York Day By Day

New York—When Hoke Welch, energetic managing editor of Miami's Daily News, invited me to fly down to address the Friday roundup of Kiwanis in that suntan capital, he started me on another Robinson Crusoe voyage. Air traffic of Florida-bound vacationers was so heavy last time around, I had to approach my reservation in the Roney-Plaza by zooming nonstop to Puerto Rico and then triangulating back to Miami on another plane. This trip was shorter, but scarcely on a straight line due to continued week-end booms in upstairs transportation.

A British Overseas airliner hoisted me out over the Atlantic to Nassau first, and after a brief stopover I was transplaned back over the Gulf Stream to Miami. It's a pleasant roundabout way, if you're not in a hurry. Besides interesting fellow-passengers, there were drinks on board, a chance to rubber-neck among Bahamians awhile and to once-over-lightly the winter army of fugitives from El Morocco, who look much healthier separated from that plush Manhattan saloon.

Spycracker in Repose—Elizabeth Bentley, the fabulous lady who renounced communism and sharpened the axes with which the FBI has hacked its way through Iron Curtain espionage, was aboard the Nassaubound BOAC Stratocruiser. Her lawyer told me Miss Bentley finished the book she has been writing and was heading for a tropical vacation.

Chuting the Chute — Tommy Goodwin, former Metropolitan Amateur golf champ of N. Y. who married Nassau's beauteous Dodie Thompson and now resides on the island, sailed me through the shark and barracuda-infested waters of an incredible adventure. Seems a servant roused him one sunny morning, shrieked that an airman was drowning and sent Tommy swimming frantically toward a billowing parachute 200 yards offshore.

The air force was testing, it appears, because when Goodwin got to it, the chute had no man in its shrouds, only a cast-iron weight which Tommy proceeded to disentangle, hoping to keep the undamaged silk. Suddenly an 18-knot wind blew up, got inside the chute and away it went, with Goodwin hanging on, but flipping across the waters surface like trolled bait inviting a big-game bite. Determined to stay with it, the golfer tugged shrouds this way and that, managing to steer toward a beach a couple of miles distant.

Yachtsmen gasped as he flashed by and when he finally skidded up onto the lawn of swank Emerald Beach Club, one British Maj. Terrence Phillips, open-mouthed, adjusted his monocle and ejaculated: "I say! By Jove! Could I do that?'

"No," Goodwin cracked between his own gasps, "Ive got a patent on it."

Coincidents — Winchell, Sobol, Gardner, Walker, Saroyan, society, turf and baseball writers are not the only paragraphers who have skipped from the Broadway winter scene to fashionable watering places. Also spotted in the sun-worshipping Florida throng was Max Wylie, author of "Go Home and Tell Your Mother." Max was recalling the family phenomenon in which his brothers Philip, Ted and he all have the same birthday to celebrate, May 12th, although they are years apart in ages. "My father," Max deadpanned, "always took his vacation in August."

Salty Sage — Harry Evans, Florida-born editor of "The Family Circle," gave me a chuckling definition of "a fashionable watering place." Says Harry: "It's a highly exclusive spot at the headwaters of the social stream formed by the junction of Croesus Creek, Snob Sound and Bootlock Bay. It is a favorite anchorage of the sponging fleet manned by titled foreigners. And many a social salmon spends years climbing upstream to a fashionable watering place—only to lay an egg after it gets there."

Briefing — Sighted the distinguished William Woodward, first man of racing, at the Hialeah track. He tells one of my favorite Eisenhower episodes. Seated next to our General of the Army at a dinner in New York a few months ago, when DDE was presiding at Columbia Mr. Woodward smilingly inquired: "What do I call you, General or Mr. President." Eisenhower grinned and replied: "Why not call me Ike?'

BASCOM TIMMONS

It's hard to figure where all the ammunition being fired at Communists in Korea comes from, but one fairly sure thing is that most of it is left over, and hasn't been made in arsenals and ammo plants since the Korean outbreak.

Ammunition plants were the first government factories to close down after V-J day in World War II. In fact, some of them had been closed for some time when the first A-bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, not because the armed services were anticipating victory that soon, but because the war in Europe was over and surpluses of artillery shells and small arms ammunition accumulate rapidly. That material, still usable after more than five years, is being used in Korea. The United States was thus fortunate in one particular, that there was no acceptable market for surplus ammunition.

Actually no new tanks have come off assembly lines since World War II. Those rusned into early fighting there were old Shermans, not good enough to cope with the Russian models with which North Koreans were equipped. Most of those in action now are said to be Pattons, rebuilt and modernized since the last war, but they weren't available last June. When the Communists corssed the 38th parallel, Army records indicate that only 800 converted tanks had been appropriated for, and that none of them had been completed. It was only after frantic appeals from Korea for better tanks that they were hurried to completion..

Both the army and navy have rushed into the field to buy back surplus goods, which they were in a rush to sell after World War II, just as they had after World War I. It worked the first time and both the service chiefs and members of congress patted themselves on the back for unloading what was regarded as a "lot of junk." Ammunition was gradually used up by regular and National Guard troops in training exercises.

Not long ago Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem. Tex.) revealed the story of repurchase by the air corps from a Texans for $63,000 of aircraft gun laying computers which had originally cost $1,209,600 and for which he had paid $3.89. Aircraft which had cost many millions were disposed of to almost any buyer who would take them away. Air Force heads insist they would have been obsolete, anyway, but do not deny that it would be fine to have them now, for supply, transportation and other uses.

Now all the services are buying back surplus property once sold for a fraction of its value. Most of the selling was done through the surplus war property organization, later merged into War Assets Administration. Sharp traders made fortunes in surplus materials, chiefly clothing The total value of the property declared surplus was $27,200,000,000.

Civilians may shake their heads, but the service purchase agencies look on the bright side. They are getting the equipment back at prices less than it would cost new and they figure that as a saving for the government. Take those computers, for example. When they were sold, nobody knew what the future of the Air Force would be. Now 459 of them have been repurchased at a total outlay of $926,987. The Air Force figures that it has saved $11,107,603 over the cost of buying the same instruments at current prices.

It has often been said that the United States government is the biggest business in the world. It has to be, to operate that way and still remain in business.

The political clearing house of Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep.-Ohio) is operated by his cousin, wealthy David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, who was the first secretary of the navy for aeronautics back in the '20's, and a distinguished naval flier in World War I.

When people offer Taft political help in their states, their letters are referred right to Ingalls, who files them all away for future reference because Senator Taft has said he is not a candidate for president, and is still standing on that. But he has amended it slightly to say that unless a majority of Republicans clearly want him as their nominee, he won't bother about the presidential business.

Ingalls will have to do some maneuvering, because there has been some shifting recently from Bob Taft to General Eisenhower among eastern Republicans. The first real showdown will come a year from now when Ohio's delegates to the Republican National convention will be chosen. Under the law, before a favorite son slate can be chosen for Taft, starting his snowball to roll, he must give his consent in writing.

Editorials and Comment

A Good Watchdog

The Johnson Senate Preparedness committee is proving itself a fit successor to the famous Truman committee which investigated the war effort in World War II.

Its recent report assailing air force management at Lackland Air Base, near San Antonio, Tex., is a hard-hitting document but an eminently fair one. It shows the committee's ability to move into a confused situation and come up with facts, not wild charges or hysteria.

The best evidence that the committee investigators did a good job is perhaps the fact that the air force did not bound back with claims that the senators had overshot the mark. Air force spokesmen in effect acknowledged the merit of the criticisms, and promised the bad practices would not be allowed to recur.

When Johnson's committee stepped in, rumors were afloat Lackland was guilty of such overcrowding that suicides, deaths from pneumonia, poor food and medical care and other sub-standard conditions were the rule.

The chairman, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, sent four investigators to the scene. They did not content themselves with talking to top officials and touring the base. They put on air force uniforms and lived among the recruits.

They found the tales of sub-standard health conditions almost completely unfounded. Only two deaths had occured in 18 months. Food and medical care were good.

But the overcrowding proved no myth. At a base designed for 20,000 men, they found upwards of 68,000. The really grim result of this was not bad health but a virtually complete breakdown of basic air force training. They judged the manpower waste to be tremendous.

For this they blamed the air force's "greedy" policy of trying to get its hands on more men than it could possibly train with existing base facilities. The committee saw it as a bald effort to hoard manpower.

The investigators also singled out for special censure the air force public relations officer who sought to cover up the facts and to dismiss the complaints as the work of "subversive" elements in America.

In keeping with its attitude of fairness, the committee does not propose to stop with this inquiry. Having disclosed these practices in the air force, it now intends to look into basic training programs of the army and navy to see how they're handling their recruits.

It goes without saying that the nation needs a watchdog over its defense effort. The confusion, the haste, the complexity that mark such a program make defects inevitable. For the safety and welfare of the country, these must be pointed out wherever possible.

We were lucky that the Truman committee did a competent job in World War II. Apparently our good fortune is holding. For the Johnson committee, in its Lackland report, represented responsible congressional statesmanship at its best.

Women In Uniform

To what extent women should be a part of the nation's armed services is a question now in a highly controversial phase. Proposal by Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, a former president of Wellesley College, who commanded the Waves in World War II, that women be drafted for noncombatant posts will obviously get nowhere.

Yet the present statutory limit of two per cent for women in uniform in each of the armed services is admittedly too rigid and too small. That would restrict to 70,000 the number of women in an all-out force of 3,500,000 that President Truman and Secretary of Defense Marshall want by summer.

It is said by spokesmen for the air force that a woman could competently hold one job out of every ten. Other services, too, are considering replacing "Armchair" members by women. Even now the Senate preparedness subcommittee plans "a spot check of all air bases, army posts and navy and marine establishments to see how many women can handle military assignments now held by able-bodied combat men."

To the degree that this plan to use more women volunteers is for the purpose of releasing men for potential combat duty, it has merit.

Advancing years could not invade, erase
The basic symmetry, piquant surprise
That formed the subtle beauty of your face
And blew the sparkles in your dark blue eyes.
Nor could they change the balancing of curves
Upon your body with its nice and slim
Reserve, despite the upset, tightening nerves
Brought by your illness always tense and grim.
In some, the blend of spirit, flesh remains
Indomitable, blessed by dauntless charm
Immune to sharp vicissitudes and pains,
And overcoming thrusts of concrete harm.
What was this force that could not be forlorn?

What Others Say

EDITORS ROUNDTABLE

DELAY IN TAX INCREASES

While opposing any undue delay, majority editorial opinion favors a "one-package" federal tax bill, study of President Truman's budget and the whole tax structure. But a very large minority of editors insists that the delay inherent in the one-package approach argues for Mr. Truman's two-part tax plan, with quick passage of the first part as a brake against inflation. Some editors feel that delays in effective price and wage controls, and Mr. Truman's ruling against the federal reserve board's proposed anti-inflationary money policy cause some congressmen to be in no hurry to increase taxes.

Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times (Ind.-Dem.): "Congressional tax writers say they are going to 'study' the whole federal tax structure before attempting to put together a program to meet the demands of the defense effort. It means that President Truman's request for stiff tax increases immediately, to be followed by a later 'second bite,' is to be laid aside. Instead, congress will try to write a single bill, perhaps by mid-year. This is timidity of the rankest sort . . . which only delays finding a solution to a problem that increases in severity with each passing day."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger - Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The country is prepared to stand the pinch of heavier taxation, but only if it is convinced that it is necessary and that no waste and extravagance and governmental frills are involved. It can not have this assurance until every possible effort has been made to cut the deadwood out of the Truman budget. Certainly congress should not put the cart before the horse and begin raising taxes until it knows how much money actually is needed for the bare necessities of the nation's life."

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "Only the wildest optimists really believe that congress actually will cut the budget by more than $6.5 billion. In other words, pay-as-we-go taxation is practically sure to require at least $10 billion—the amount Mr. Truman wants quickly—in new revenue. . . So far this fiscal year, the government's income is a trifle ahead of its outgo, but growing defense expenditures will soon reverse that picture. . . . The plan congress should adopt is prompt action on the first part of Mr. Truman's program—$10 billion in tax increases quickly. Meanwhile, budget cutting can be going forward."

Washington (D. C.) Post (Ind.): "The treasury's two - package approach is, in our opinion, an impediment to formulation of well-balanced tax program aiming at a definite goal. Nor is the need for so-called 'quickie' tax legislation as pressing as administration spokesmen assert, since government receipts are currently higher than expenditures. To be sure, new taxes should be voted as promptly as possible to offset the inflation-producing increase in purchasing power that will be felt when government spending begins to outstrip government income."

Baltimore (Md.) Sun (Ind.-Dem. "By voting to hold extended hearings . . . the house ways and means committee virtually guaranteed that there will be no new tax legislation until late summer at best. . . . Although defense spending is still just a tricle compared to the flood tide to come, personal and corporate incomes have risen rapidly within the past year. With strong upward pressure on prices. It was primarily to prevent this pressure from getting out of hand that the administration requested speedy action on taxes. This the committee has chosen to ignore."

New Orleans (La.) Times - Picayune (Ind.-Dem.): "It appears that inflation ate up most of the tax boost voted after the Korean invasion. . . . Though urged to adopt safeguards against that foreseeable inflation the administration stayed its haste and made delays for months. . . . Has the ways and means committee decided against taking the chance that a tax boostof 10 billions might be nullified by continuance of the inflationary rise, and determined to play safe for the country by holding back the tax boost until the administration gets 'round to enforcing genuine price-wage stabilization?"

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.) "We believe price stabilization could be speeded if the public insisted. But it is admittedly a complicated business, and a prompt attack on inflation through taxes appears more feasible. This will be disputed by congressmen who argue for the inevitability of delay. They say there must be budget hearings by four committees; there are hundreds of conflicting interests to be considered; there is a desire to insure cuts in spending first. . . . But many of these obstacles could be swept aside or plowed through within a month—if the people demanded action."

BIBLE THOUGHTS

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

The Key To Peace

The lie has become an ugly nuisance in our public life. Men say things which are unrelated to any facts at all, but which by constant repetition come to be accepted as truth. This is often called "the big lie," which Hitler is accused of inventing but which even those who denounce Hitler pursue.

Just now I am receiving large quantities of mail on two lies:

1. One group identifies zionism with communism;

2. The other denounces members of the Roman Catholic Church as agents of a foreign government.

Both are lies and require exposure as such and it is sound to lump them together in this discussion, because both these charges stem from vicious bigotry designed to bring chaos to this country.

Zionism goes back some 4,000 years when Abraham left Ur of the land of Canaan. Thus, Palestine has been imbedded in Jewish tradition throughout these 40 centuries of their life. It was in Palestine that the Jews developed as a people, produced their monotheistic religion, wrote their Bible, sang their psalms, and established a nation.

This has never been forgotten among Jews and even after the temple was destroyed, they returned to its remaining wall to weep. Nowhere is this spirit more tragically described than in the book of Lamentations, attributed to the prophet Jeremiah:

"How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger.

And cast down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Israel,

And remembered not his footstool in the day of his anger!"

The greatest Jewish poet of post-Biblical times, Hehuda Halevi, who was born in 1086, expressed the fervor of this concept in the poem, "My Heart Is In The East":

"My heart is in the east, and I in the uttermost west

How can I find savour in food? How shall it be sweet to me?

How shall I render my bows and my bonds, while yet

Zion lieth beneath the fetter of Edom, and I in Arab chains?

A light thing would it seem to me to leave all the good

Things of Spain

Seeing how precious in mine eyes it is to behold the dust of the desolate sanctuary."

Zion is so ingrained in the Jewish soul that every generation for all these thousands of years has expressed a hope for its restoration to Israel. During the dreyfus trials in France (1894-1906), Theodor Herzl, a journalist of Vienna, decided to devote his life to this task. He developed the modern Zionist movement which finally achieved the establishment of the state of Israel.

Obviously, none of this has anything to do with Marxism, communism, or any other emanation of the materialistic concepts of life of Hegel, Marx, Engels, Darwin, Lenin, or Stalin. To say otherwise is to deny history—the 4,000-year-old history of the Jewish people.

Similarly to denounce the 28,000,000 Americans who worship God according to Roman Catholic rite and ritual and philosophy is to reduce bigotry to absurdity. These citizens have been in this country since Colonial times, as the Jews have been. Their lives have been spilled on all our battlefields. They have contributed

Hollywood, Feb. 24.—Looks like Columbia's Harry Cohn and Margaret O'Brien are about ready to sign that long-rumored pact, calling for her to star in a series of 'teen-age comedies. . . . Peggy Ryan and Ray McDonald, who will do their dancing in Toronto next month, should get a royal welcome three; two of Peggy's uncles, Herb Little and George Bell, are respectively, Toronto's ex-mayor and Toronto's current chief of police. . . . Aside to parents of movie-struck kids: Brace yourselves. An eastern novelty manufacturer is putting out a line of pennants to decorate bedroom walls; the first will bear the name and picture of Dick Haymes.

MGM Starlet Marilyn Erskine (once wed to Producer Stanley Kramer) is readying a divorce action against her current spouse, Dr. Samuel Niekrug, a New York dentist. . . . Ha! Macdonald Carey, playing his first kissing scene with Betty Grable for "Meet Me After the Show," was no sooner smacked than he stumbled over a coil of electric cable and bumped his head so hard he needed a 30 minute patch-up job in the studio hospital!

Paramount's decision to summon Opera Star Bob Merrill for two weeks of pre-production work on "Aaron Slick of Punkin Crick" will cost him $75,000 in cancelled contracts. . . . Connie Haynes and Major Bob De Haven have decided on September 1 for their altar-trek. . . . Orchestra Leader Frank DeVol will bill his new soloist as "Jaye P. Morgan—because she sings like a million."

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: RKO's "Payment on Demand" (Bette Davis-Barry Sullivan-Jane Cowl-Kent Taylor-Betty Lynn-Frances Dee). Excellently written, produced and enacted, this domestic drama should win applause from every discriminating adult theatergoer. . . . Good (with reservations): Columbia's "Valentino" (Eleanor Parker-Anthony Dexter-Richard Carlson-Otto Kruger-Patricia Medina). Colorful, highly dramatic and thoroughly enjoyable for any fan content to regard it as out-and-out fiction—but a probable disappointment for those who expect to see a picture setting forth the actual life of Rudolph Valentino. . . . Above Par: Monogram's "Bowery Battalion" (Leo Gorcey-Huntz Hall). A high spot in a popular series that has had many ups and downs. . . . Fair: Universal-International's "Air Cadet" (Stephen McNally-Gail Russell). The same old plot, but they're learning to fly jets this time. . . . Monogram's "Navy Bound" (Tom Neal-Wendy Waldron-Regis Toomey). A "B" picture, but with more than the usual amount of entertainment honey. . . . Best Performance: Bette Davis in "Payment on Demand."

Speaking of "Preview Nights," I'm looking forward to the picture showing scheduled in the next few weeks. As usual (perhaps it results from the furore over the Academy Award nominations), there has been a dearth of big-picture previews in the past six weeks, and many of those shown have left much to be desired in the way of entertainment value. But things should pick up now. I've heard extravagant praise, via the studio gravevines, for more than a dozen offerings which will be served up to the Filmville reviewers within the next month. If half of the praise is justified, that much-quoted boast, "Movies Are Better Than Ever," may take on real meaning.

New York Day By Day

New York—When Hoke Welch, energetic managing editor of Miami's Daily News, invited me to fly down to address the Friday roundup of Kiwanis in that suntan capital, he started me on another Robinson Crusoe voyage. Air traffic of Florida-bound vacationers was so heavy last time around, I had to approach my reservation in the Roney-Plaza by zooming nonstop to Puerto Rico and then triangulating back to Miami on another plane. This trip was shorter, but scarcely on a straight line due to continued week-end booms in upstairs transportation.

A British Overseas airliner hoisted me out over the Atlantic to Nassau first, and after a brief stopover I was transplaned back over the Gulf Stream to Miami. It's a pleasant roundabout way, if you're not in a hurry. Besides interesting fellow-passengers, there were drinks on board, a chance to rubber-neck among Bahamians awhile and to once-over-lightly the winter army of fugitives from El Morocco, who look much healthier separated from that plush Manhattan saloon.

Spycracker in Repose—Elizabeth Bentley, the fabulous lady who renounced communism and sharpened the axes with which the FBI has hacked its way through Iron Curtain espionage, was aboard the Nassaubound BOAC Stratocruiser. Her lawyer told me Miss Bentley finished the book she has been writing and was heading for a tropical vacation.

Chuting the Chute — Tommy Goodwin, former Metropolitan Amateur golf champ of N. Y. who married Nassau's beauteous Dodie Thompson and now resides on the island, sailed me through the shark and barracuda-infested waters of an incredible adventure. Seems a servant roused him one sunny morning, shrieked that an airman was drowning and sent Tommy swimming frantically toward a billowing parachute 200 yards offshore.

The air force was testing, it appears, because when Goodwin got to it, the chute had no man in its shrouds, only a cast-iron weight which Tommy proceeded to disentangle, hoping to keep the undamaged silk. Suddenly an 18-knot wind blew up, got inside the chute and away it went, with Goodwin hanging on, but flipping across the waters surface like trolled bait inviting a big-game bite. Determined to stay with it, the golfer tugged shrouds this way and that, managing to steer toward a beach a couple of miles distant.

Yachtsmen gasped as he flashed by and when he finally skidded up onto the lawn of swank Emerald Beach Club, one British Maj. Terrence Phillips, open-mouthed, adjusted his monocle and ejaculated: "I say! By Jove! Could I do that?'

"No," Goodwin cracked between his own gasps, "Ive got a patent on it."

Coincidents — Winchell, Sobol, Gardner, Walker, Saroyan, society, turf and baseball writers are not the only paragraphers who have skipped from the Broadway winter scene to fashionable watering places. Also spotted in the sun-worshipping Florida throng was Max Wylie, author of "Go Home and Tell Your Mother." Max was recalling the family phenomenon in which his brothers Philip, Ted and he all have the same birthday to celebrate, May 12th, although they are years apart in ages. "My father," Max deadpanned, "always took his vacation in August."

Salty Sage — Harry Evans, Florida-born editor of "The Family Circle," gave me a chuckling definition of "a fashionable watering place." Says Harry: "It's a highly exclusive spot at the headwaters of the social stream formed by the junction of Croesus Creek, Snob Sound and Bootlock Bay. It is a favorite anchorage of the sponging fleet manned by titled foreigners. And many a social salmon spends years climbing upstream to a fashionable watering place—only to lay an egg after it gets there."

Briefing — Sighted the distinguished William Woodward, first man of racing, at the Hialeah track. He tells one of my favorite Eisenhower episodes. Seated next to our General of the Army at a dinner in New York a few months ago, when DDE was presiding at Columbia Mr. Woodward smilingly inquired: "What do I call you, General or Mr. President." Eisenhower grinned and replied: "Why not call me Ike?'

BASCOM TIMMONS

It's hard to figure where all the ammunition being fired at Communists in Korea comes from, but one fairly sure thing is that most of it is left over, and hasn't been made in arsenals and ammo plants since the Korean outbreak.

Ammunition plants were the first government factories to close down after V-J day in World War II. In fact, some of them had been closed for some time when the first A-bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, not because the armed services were anticipating victory that soon, but because the war in Europe was over and surpluses of artillery shells and small arms ammunition accumulate rapidly. That material, still usable after more than five years, is being used in Korea. The United States was thus fortunate in one particular, that there was no acceptable market for surplus ammunition.

Actually no new tanks have come oft assembly lines since World War II. Those rusned into early fighting there were old Shermans, not good enough to cope with the Russian models with which North Koreans were equipped. Most of those in action now are said to be Pattons, rebuilt and modernized since the last war, but they weren't available last June. When the Communists corssed the 38th parallel, Army records indicate that only 800 converted tanks had been appropriated for, and that none of them had been completed. It was only after frantic appeals from Korea for better tanks that they were hurried to completion..

Both the army and navy have rushed into the field to buy back surplus goods, which they were in a rush to sell after World War II, just as they had after World War I. It worked the first time and both the service chiefs and members of congress patted themselves on the back for unloading what was regarded as a "lot of junk." Ammunition was gradually used up by regular and National Guard troops in training exercises.

Not long ago Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem. Tex.) revealed the story of repurchase by the air corps from a Texans for $63,000 of aircraft gun laying computers which had originally cost $1,209,600 and for which he had paid $3.89. Aircraft which had cost many millions were disposed of to almost any buyer who would take them away. Air Force heads insist they would have been obsolete, anyway, but do not deny that it would be fine to have them now, for supply, transportation and other uses.

Now all the services are buying back surplus property once sold for a fraction of its value. Most of the selling was done through the surplus war property organization, later merged into War Assets Administration. Sharp traders made fortunes in surplus materials, chiefly clothing The total value of the property declared surplus was $27,200,000,000.

Civilians may shake their heads, but the service purchase agencies look on the bright side. They are getting the equipment back at prices less than it would cost new and they figure that as a saving for the government. Take those computers, for example. When they were sold, nobody knew what the future of the Air Force would be. Now 459 of them have been repurchased at a total outlay of $926,987. The Air Force figures that it has saved $11,107,603 over the cost of buying the same instruments at current prices.

It has often been said that the United States government is the biggest business in the world. It has to be, to operate that way and still remain in business.

The political clearing house of Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep.-Ohio) is operated by his cousin, wealthy David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, who was the first secretary of the navy for aeronautics back in the '20's, and a distinguished naval flier in World War I.

When people offer Taft political help in their states, their letters are referred right to Ingalls, who files them all away for future reference because Senator Taft has said he is not a candidate for president, and is still standing on that. But he has amended it slightly to say that unless a majority of Republicans clearly want him as their nominee, he won't bother about the presidential business.

Ingalls will have to do some maneuvering, because there has been some shifting recently from Bob Taft to General Eisenhower among eastern Republicans. The first real showdown will come a year from now when Ohio's delegates to the Republican National convention will be chosen. Under the law, before a favorite son slate can be chosen for Taft, starting his snowball to roll, he must give his consent in writing.

PFC. G. D. GLASSCOCK

Pfc. G. D. Glasscock Writes From Korea

Winnsboro, La., Feb. 24.—(Special)—Pfc. Grover D. Glasscock has been in Korea since September 1, 1950. He is 18 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Glasscock, Route 1, Winnsboro, La.

Inclosed in a recent letter to his parents was this poem which he had composed while in Korea.

God Is There

If you are tired, lonesome and blue,
You feel you're a failure, and friends are few.
When your love has left and you feel so alone.
Remember, God is with you up there on his throne.
If the days seem dreary and the hours seem long.
With your happiness gone, in your heart theres no song.
Your life seems so hopeless, there is nothing but rain.
Remember, God is with you in sorrow and pain.
Though everything about you is dark and dull,
And on life's rocky road there seems no lull.
There seems to be nothing but sorrow around each bend,
Remember, God awaits you out there at the end.

WISNER PLANNING BOND ISSUE VOTE

Mass Meet Approves Calling Of Special Election

Wisner, La., Feb. 24.—(Special)—At a mass meeting at the Wisner High School Thursday night, the citizens of Wisner voted to ask the town council to call a special election to vote on a $40,000.00 bond issue to build a modern city hall and jail, and to purchase a new 1951 model fire truck.

William Baker, architect of Winnsboro was present at the meeting, and explained the type of building needed and presented a preliminary sketch of type of building and explained to those present that it had been planned to meet all the requirements as to sanitation, pass the state laws relative to being fire proof, and would contain the required number of cells. C. G. Webb, chairman of the local citizens committee, quoted prices and presented a photograph of the type of fire truck needed for Wisner. Mayor Brown appointed a committee composed of H. W. Gilbert and H. A. Cruce to assist the council in planning the proposed municipal building. The mayor also appointed C. G. Webb, L. A. Braswell and Carl Chapman to assist in the selection of the proper fire truck and other equipment. This public meeting was presided over by R. A. Brown, mayor, E. Asa Kiper, C. E. Ezell and E. O. Cannon, members of the town council. After the meeting the council decided to call an election on this matter as the town is practically without jail facilities at this time.

Fluorescent powder or paint on the pull-handles of fire alarm boxes not only make them more visible at night, but identify false-alarm ringers by their fluorescent fingers.

V-P Says Stalin Can Avoid War

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Vice-president Barkley said tonight that Stalin can prove that Russia wants peace by demobilizing "his army of 5,000,000 men" and lifting the iron curtain.

Barkley said in a speech prepared for a Washington day dinner of the Kansas Democratic Club that Stalin's recent efforts to set himself up as the champion of peace fool no one.

"If Stalin wishes to become the apostle of peace, let him demobilize his army of 5,000,000 men and let him bring about the demobilization of the armies of his satellites," the vice-president said.

"Let him lift the iron curtain so that the people from without may see behind it and the people behind it may see outside of it and make their own comparisons as to the relative values of democracy and autocracy.

"When he has done this, his words may take on some value and his promises may not be a perpetual record of faithless repudiation."

ARE WE MEN OR MICE?

It is not to be believed that the United States of America is afraid—but we are giving all the appearances of being so. We seem to be running around in circles, hunting allies where we can find them, pouring out money in an attempt to stop gaps here and there, fearful lest a boogeyman will jump up in some dark corner.

Such a situation is ridiculous, it is even pathetic, and it is bordering close to tragic. That this nation of ours, at the height of its power, should be frightened, confused, and bewildered would be a betrayal of all the faith and courage that have been handed down to us throughout our history. It would make mice out of people who have heretofore been men.

Our forefathers who lived in a few struggling colonies along the Atlantic seaboard might well have been afraid to revolt against the power of Great Britain, but they had the courage to say, "We mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor," in order to gain freedom. Andrew Jackson might well have been afraid of the powerful troops of the Duke of Wellington at New Orleans, but with men of courage he won one of the greatest military victories in history.

On down through the years, the United States of America has never been afraid—and it has no reason to be so now. It is high time we stopped dead still for a moment and asked ourselves the question, Why should we be afraid of what Russia, or any other nation, will do next? We would quickly realize that of all nations in the world, the United States is the most able to take care of itself and has the least reason to be afraid.

What gives the appearance of fear, therefore, is undoubtedly the uncertainty brought about by a vacillating and irrational leadership that gives the people no clear-cut statement of what it proposes to do—but at the same time a leadership that seems impelled to consider itself the saviour of the world. Unquestionably, of course, the United States must take the lead in preserving the democratic way of life in the world. That is the responsibility that goes along with power—but that does not mean that we must become a martyr in the process.

And it is high time we rid ourselves in this country of the bugaboo attached to the term 'isolationism.' As a matter of fact, the United States of America has never been isolationist! Perhaps we should have joined the League of Nations at the close of World War I, though our experience with the United Nations leaves that decision open to question, leaves us with the distinct feeling that our nation might very well best serve the cause of freedom and progress by continuing to demonstrate to the world what can be accomplished by a free people in a free nation.

But we have never been isolated as China was isolated behind the great wall. We have never been isolated as Tibet has been isolated beind the Himalayas. We have never been isolated as Russia is isolated behind the iron curtain. That is real isolationism. Our sailing vessels traded with China. Commodore Peary opened Japan to world trade. We have always traded with anybody who wanted to trade. And in the process, we have remained strong enough to defend ourselves. What more is needed?

What the people of the United States really fear—and this is a real fear—is that their lives and their money shall be wated by foolish leadership. Whatever the people are convinced it takes to defend themselves, whether it be universal military training or Atlantic pacts or anything else, they stand ready to provide. But they don't want to proceed blindly; they don't want to commit national suicide. They know that a strong America is the best guarantee of a safe world.

missus. Lorraine, goes on and on, the latest development being a court order which will compel Mrs. C. to answer intimate questions about her association with ten alleged boy-friends. If you've followed the charge-and-counter-charge tactics that have "distinguished" this distast ful domestic hassle, you must be about ready to join me in wondering how long such matters will be permitted to clog our courts. Personally, I'm commencing to be less concerned about justice to litigants like the Rhumba king and his vindictive spouse than I am about justice to the tax payers.

As might have been expected, Shelley Winters, named one of the ten most desirable unattached women in America by the Bachelors' Club of America, lost no time in returning the compliment. She issued a list of her own—the ten most desirable unattached men in America—and named the Bachelors' Club president, John Alden Talbot, as the most desirable of them all. Ordinarily, I put little stock in such lists, but considering Shelley's romantic record, I'll have to make an exception where hers is concerned. Shelley hasn't dated every unattached male in the country, of course, but I'd be willing to wager dollars to doughnuts that there isn't another gal in these United States who has made so courageous an effort to do so. I'm ready to recognize her as an authority.

A Nebraska man of 38 married a woman lawyer. Perhaps he's done all the talking he wants to, anyway.

DOROTHY DIX

Self-Centered Girl

Daughter's Problem Is Mother's Fault

DEAR MISS DIX: Why don't parents realize the harm they do a child by bringing it up to be utterly selfish and self-centered? I am one of those cursed by a loving mother who reared me to believe that I was the most important thing in the world and that the whole universe revolved around me. All my life I have been encouraged to talk of myself, my plans, my clothes, my thoughts, my books, my everything, and now that I am grown I find that I cannot adjust myself to a world in which I am not only not the whole thing but am nothing. I know what's the matter with me and I am trying my darndest to undue my mother's twenty years' work of inflating my ego, but it is a hard job and I doubt I will ever be really successful.

ALICE

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: You are right, Alice, in thinking that the greatest misfortune that can possibly befall a child is to have a mother who brings it up to be selfish and self-centered. No other one thing she could possibly do could so unfit it for life, and if she hated her child instead of loved it she could do it no greater wrong.

To begin with, she dooms her child to certain unhappiness for no selfish person is ever satisfied or content. He never gets all he wants. Then the selfish and self-centered are always lonely. They have no friends. They are shut up within themselves and nobody takes the trouble to try to break through their shell. They have lived for themselves alone and so when they come to be old or poor or heartbroken they are left alone.

CAN'T TAKE IT

The selfish and self-centered never know how to take the misfortunes of life. They have been taught to feel that they are immune from the troubles that are the portion of the balance of humanity. Their mothers have made them weaklings who lack the strength and courage to fight the battle of life.

Selfishness absolutely unfits any one for marriage. It is the selfish husbands and wives who are determined to have their own way about everything, who try to take all and give nothing in return, who think only of their own happiness and not of their mates', and eventually land in the divorce court.

Nothing is truer than that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Only the unselfish who strive to make others happy are happy themselves.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to a boy of whom my parents disapprove, and we are going to get married without their consent. He says that when we are married he will positively refuse to have anything to do with my family; that they have run over him enough and that he will never enter their house. But he will not object to them coming to ours, though he will never see them when they do, and that I can go to visit them as much as I please. I wonder if a marriage under these conditions can prove successful. Should I forget my family and think only of him?

LORRAINE

ANSWER: You can't forget your family. No matter how devoted you are to your husband, there will always be this older love of the mother who bore you, the father who cherished you and the sisters and brothers with whom you grew up. They are a part of your being, so interwoven with your life that you cannot separate them from it.

This is what makes it so unfortunate when children marry against their parents' wishes and what makes it so vital that fathers and mothers should not oppose their sons' and daughters' choice of mates unless there is some drastic reason for doing so. Of course, there is nearly always a reconciliation after the marriage, but there is always a bar between the parents and the unwelcome son-in-law or daughter-in-law who never forget or forgive that they were not wanted in the family.

I cannot advise you to give up the man you love because your parents object to him, for the may have no good reason for not liking him. Parents are often unreasonable and prejudiced in their opinion. Their biased views should not be allowed to wreck the happiness of two people who love each other. You have to live with your husband and you have a right to pick him out, but I hope he will be broadminded enough and love you enough to make a truce with your family for your sake.

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife is unfaithful to me. Gets drunk and makes public exhibitions of herself. For the sake of the children do you think I should stand it?

DOCTOR TED

ANSWER: No. I think the children should be removed as quickly as possible from such a corrupting influence.

District Forester Urges Caution To Prevent Fires

The Louisiana Forestry Commission is making a solemn pledge to every citizen in the fifth district that he be extremely careful with fire for the remainder of February and the month of March. The commission points out that these two months are the most critical of the year for forest acreage lost due to fires.

The appeal was issued here yesterday by District Forester Lambert Romero.

Uncontrolled fires occurring during this period are extremely hazardous as well as difficult to suppress and usually before they are brought under control, much damage is done to forest and woodlands as well as to private property and improvements, past records show.

Romero reminded that wood is wealth in Louisiana. More than 700 industries in the state depend on raw wood for their operations, he said, adding, "These plants employ 55,000 people who earn some $60,000,000 in wages each year."

Controlling wild fire is every one's business. Here's what the forestry commission urges you to do about it:

1. First and all the time be careful with fire.
2. Break matches before throwing them away.
3. Bury cigarette butts and pipe heels.
4. Douse your camp fires with water.
5. Always use the ash trays in your car.
6. Do not burn trash on extremely dry and windy days. Burn late in the afternoon.
7. Use care in all woods operations.
8. Know local fire laws and obey them.
9. The woods are ours to use, not to destroy. Lets prevent woods fires.
10. If you are in doubt as to when to burn, if you must, contact the parish ranger for advice.

Only Two Days Left To Vaccinate Dogs During Current Drive

Dr. W. Carroll Summer, director of the Ouachita parish health unit announced yesterday that there are only two remaining days for the rabies clinic and urged dog-owners to have their pets vaccinated immediately.

He stressed the danger of a rabies epidemic if dogs throughout the parish and Twin cities are not vaccinated against the disease.

For the past two weeks the dog clinic has traveled through the parish, and only a small per centage of animals have been vaccinated thus far, Dr. Summer said. The last two days of the clinic will be spent in Monroe.

richly to the building of our country.

It is true that Roman Catholics accept the authority of the pope, who is the bishop of Rome, in matters of faith and morals and in church discipline. Yet, as Al Smith was a Democrat, so are General "Wild Bill" Donovan and General Pat Hurley Republicans. There has been no Catholic party in this country.

Are we to be a nation of Americans or a congeries of minorities who view each other with suspicion and hatred and fear? Those who advocate such division can only serve the brutal imperialists who seek to overthrow this bastion of human liberty where men may as family tradition and conscience dictate.

The best statement of the philosophy of Catholicism in relation to American ideals and civilization that I have seen in recent years is "The Key to Peace" by Dean Clarence Manion of Notre Dame. Norman Vincent Peale, of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York, himself a Methodist, says of this book:

"Dean Manion's book gives the one certain method for making freedom strong in our time. It is one of the greatest books of all my reading experience and I commend it to every patriotic man and woman."

And to that, I can only say, Amen!

Witness Won't Talk Before TV

St. Louis, Feb. 24.—(AP)—James J. Carroll, nationally known "betting commissioner," refused to testify before the senate crime investigating committee today unless television cameras were turned off.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), committee chairman, told Carroll his attitude constituted defrance of the committee and that he would recommend that the senate take contempt action against Carroll.

Wearing dark glasses, Carroll stalked out of the hearing room at 3:45 p.m. (EST) but latter reentered with his lawyer. He had arrived in St. Louis by air this morning from Miami, Fla., after Kefauver threatened contempt action unless he appeared.

"Senator, I will refuse to answer any questions as long as television is in effect," Carroll said.

"I don't intend to be made an object of ridicule by all this stuff going on here."

Kefauver, speaking in a low voice, said that he would not order the television cameras out of operation, that Carroll would be granted "no special prerogatives."

"You are ordered to stay here and testify," Kefauver said. "If you want to disobey this order, that is your prerogative."

The committee chairman added he "will see that you don't get by with it."

Earlier Morris Shenker, Carroll's attroney, had advised the committee that a physician had said that it would be all right for Carroll to testify provided he wasn't subjected to "undue excitement."

Electrical Strike Stands As Threat

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—James B. Carey, head of the C. I. O.-International Union of Electrical workers, threatened today a strike in the vital electrical manufacturing industry if the proposed government wage formula is approved in its present form.

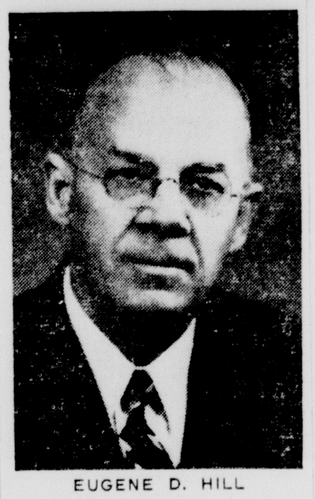

The formula would restrict wage increases to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950 and would deny thousands of members of the Carey union the full cost of living adjustment which existing contracts call for on March 15.

The formula was voted by public and industry members of the wage stabilization board, but labor members quit in protest.

High stabilization officials have indicated it probably will be modfied, perhaps early next week.

At a news conference, Carey said "our locals will use as strong methods to keep their contracts as they did to get them."

SAFETY PICTURE AVAILABLE HERE

Obtainable By Civic Clubs, P.-T. A.'s And Other Groups

The Ouachita parish safety council announced Saturday it has secured an important safety picture entitled "The Miracle of Paradise Valley." The film, which tells a dramatic story of safety, has been loaned to the safety council by one of the major oil companies.

The picture will be available during the month of March to any civic club, parent-teachers association or any other organization interested in the promotion of safety. It may be obtained without charge by contacting R. M. Kettenring, president of the safety council, at his home phone, 3-1642.

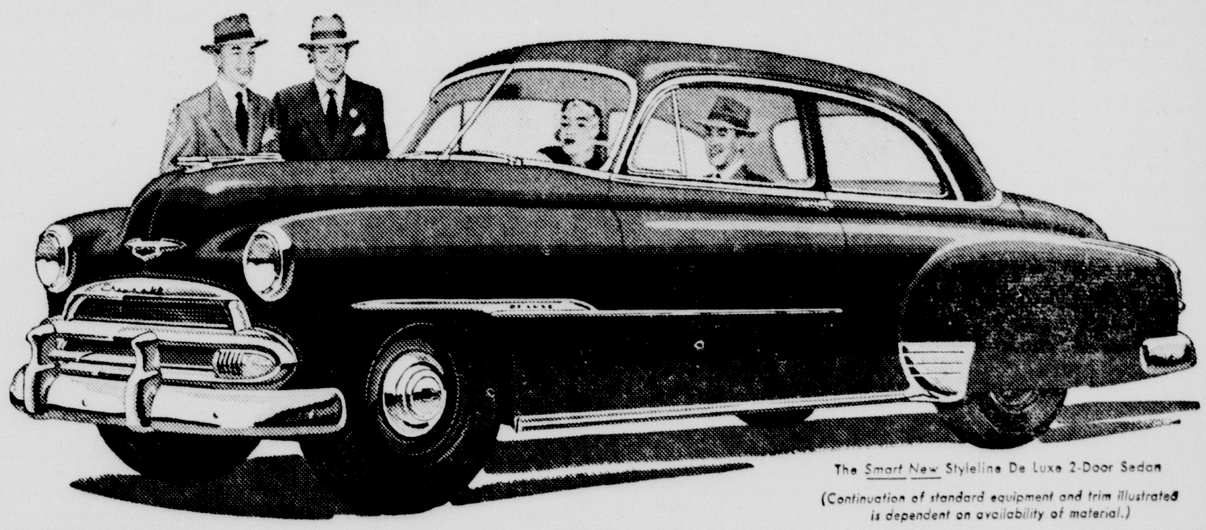

The regular monthly meeting of the council will be held Monday evening, March 5, at 7:30 in the courtroom of the parish courthouse. Plans are being made to show "The Miracle of Paradise Valley" at this meeting, and the public is cordially invited to be present.

One of the important items listed for the March meeting is the inauguration by the publicity committee of a month long courtesy campaign in automobile driving, in which an effort will be put forth via radio and newspapers to convince the driving Public of the the fact that a courteous driver is a safe driver. The council added: "An act of courtesy can save ruffled tempers and prevent dented fenders. It could save a life. Courtesy costs nothing but the effort, and can save the terrible costs of accidents."

"Street couplet" is a term now being used where two parallel streets, one block apart, are used for one-way traffic in opposite directions.

DENIES BRUTALITY AT STATE PRISON

Sheriff Says He'd Have Been First To Know About Angola Beatings

St. Francisville, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Sheriff T. H. Martin of West Feliciana parish denied tonight that there had been any brutality at Angola prison farm and said if there had been "I would have been the first to know about it."

The comment was made after published reports that about 30 prisoners deliberately cut their heel tendons in protest against "brutal treatment."

Neither Prison Warden Rudolph Easterly nor Prison Superintendent R. C. Lawrence was available for a comment.

The prison authorities are directly responsible to the governor, and Gov. Earl K. Long could not be reached late today.

Martin said reports of brutality were "a bunch of hooey."

He had not heard any reports of prisoners indulging in self-mutilation, but added that cutting tendons in heels "is an old trick. The trouble with those fellows is they can't get away any more, and they'll do anything to keep from working."

body was taken to the ninth corps command post.

Moore, who held commands in both the Pacific and European theaters in World War II, was the fourth general officer to be lost by United Nations forces in Korea.

"It was with deep regret that I received word of the death of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore," said General MacArthur at his Tokyo headquarters.

"He was an officer of great skill and courage, and his loss will be keenly felt by this command," the United Nations commander said.

Moore took command of the ninth corps less than two weeks ago, during the Chinese Communist offensive against the U. S. eighth army central front.

His death came after the United Nations forces stopped the Chinese drive and in turn pushed the Reds northward. The enemy less than four days ago held the river spot where Moore's helicopter crashed. Fighting is only five or six miles north of the spot.

In Washington, the army high command met immediately after receiving word of Moore's death. A successor to the corps command is expected to be named speedily.

of his department or whether Peyton Ford is still running it."

Pearson was out of the city and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Ford, who became chief assistant when Tom Clark was attorney general, remained in the post when McGrath took over. Ford is a former assistant attorney general of Oklahoma.

The present Pearson-McCarthy furore stems back to a Pearson column of Dec. 30, in which the columnist quoted from secret army messages.

McCarthy demanded the army find out how Pearson got hold of the documents. Furthermore he told the senate that the columnist had printed without a change, a decoded message which bore a warning that it contained security information. McCarthy gave a date and a number which he said the message bore.

Pearson, declaring McCarthy's use of the date and number was a security violation, also turned to the army department, demanding to know whether the defense department would take action against McCarthy, a marine reserve officer.

Eloise Slater of the Ouachita Parish Grammar School faculty who was elected general chairman of the workshop.

Taking part in arranging the event was a group of teachers representing all the Ouachita Parish schools for white children. They met with Supt. Avants and Mrs. S. Willis Williams, Ouachita Parish school supervisor.

A working organization was formed at this first conference. Serving with Mrs. Slater is Mrs. Frances Manning, teacher at Selman School, vice-chairman; Mrs. Helen LeFevre of the O.P.H.S. faculty, secretary - treasurer; Supt Avants and Mrs. Williams, advisers.

Enabling the group to begin functioning at once, the following committees were proposed: materials, steering publicity, housing, hospitality and appraisal. Personnel for these will be chosen next week.

A questionnaire, which will be submitted to each teacher, is designed to secure suggestions regarding subjects and activities which they would like to include in the workshop program. This information is to serve as a basis for further planning, the committee explained. The group pointed out that "Evaluative Criteria" might be a practical source for suggestions.

They were married in August 1949, after he had gotten the job at Bethlehem Steel and was settled here.

They live in an upstairs apartment — three rooms and a bath. Pappas said he had planned to move to a new home, "but it's no bigger."

"I don't know what we'll do now. We've got a little time yet to make those sort of plans," he said.

Mrs. Anderson, in whose house they live, just couldn't get over it.

"When I saw them (the babies) keep coming out of the delivery room," she said, "I wanted to run in and tell her, 'I don't mind baby-sitting for one or two, but let's knock this off.' "

Pappas didn't seem too concerned about the future. "We'll make it all right," he said. He likes his job, he added, and plans to stay with it.

It was apparent, however, he would get plenty of outside help. As soon as Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro heard about it, he immediately started a "mayor's quad fund" by laying down $100 and accepting all contributions.

on standards of price and wage stabilization.

"Within a short time," he said, "we expect to issue a food price regulation establishing the margin by which retailers and wholesalers may mark up their products."

The control chief said it is difficult to determine what the total result in actual prices may be, but added:

"We are certain that inequities will be corrected and price relationships adjusted. This is a step toward attaining stability and a price plateau where we expect the restoration of a sound relationship between prices and consumer buying power."

DiSalle dropped a hint tending to confirm recent reports that he is considering putting a ceiling close to 45 cents a pound on raw cotton, which was frozen by his Jan. 26, price order as low as 42 cents for some sellers and as high as 47 for others.

"We have been told that 45-cent ceilings on cotton in the commodity exchanges would stifle the incentive of the farmers to increase their production," he said. "But only a few days ago the newspapers carried stories with reference to a rush going on in California among those who want to plant cotton, cotton and more cotton."

After the priest said he wrote the article, he was asked what basis he had for the accusation.

It was well known, Father Drolet, said, that "such a condition never exists without protection and the 'fix' has been put on the authorities. I dislike the word 'fix' but it is a term of the underworld."

"Then it is an assumption on your part?' LaFargue asked.

"Yes."

The priest said he had no personal knowledge of any evidence that a payoff ever had been made.

That would mean about 28 cents for those in the yard service and 13 cents for those in road service.

The trainmen, led by W. P. Kennedy, held a heated session of committee members last night and decided to break out of the solid front which had been established by the four operating unions last fall. The other three unions are the engineers, conductors, and firemen and enginemen.

The leaders of those three unions remained on the sideline as the committee of trainmen bargained with the three carrier representatives and the Mediation Board.

Crowe entered the law school in September, 1950. At the universitv, Crowe is a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity and the Newman Club, Catholic organization. He was graduated from St. Matthew's High School and attended Northeast Junior College.

Hobbs entered the law school in the fall, 1950. A graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, he attended Northeast Junior College. He served with the U. S. navy in World War II.

"Dear Jes' Ramblin':

"I have often heard so many things concerning the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital until I made up mind that I would never want to go there as patient. But in my opinion they have done a wonderful job with the staff of doctors and nurses. I am sure a patient couldn't be treated any better than I was during my recent stay there.

"Patients are well fed, well cared for in every way and are by no means neglected.

"Hope this clears up a lot of misunderstanding.

Announcement of a skating party for the Westminister Fellowship of Northeast Louisiana State College aroused panic in the hearts of the timid many. Showing common sense, they have invited dates who are husky and adept in the art of skating, they hope.

Members and their dates will be fortified for the test by a six o'clock supper in the home of Miss Ann Mickel. Skaters will then adjourn to Skateland for an evening full of fun and—falls, no doubt.

Bringing her marriage certificate to the Morning World for observation, Mrs. Jerry Fury yesterday explained that on March 27, 1951, she will have lived 49 years since she was married. This attractive little woman, with eyes twinkling still as she ruminated, told how she slipped off at the age of 18 and was wedded by the Rev. W. D. Spurlin, then a Monroe pastor.

She declared that a horse-drawn carriage awaited the happy pair at the parsonage where the wedding took place, and she told that her wedding gown, quite the rage for that time, was a far cry from those of 1951. She has been widowed for a number of years and lives at 1807 Jackson street. She spends considerable time with a daughter, one of her three children, in Houston, Tex.

Announcement is made to all interested music students to the effect that the J. Paul Hewitt Piano Scholarship contest will be held again this year. Auditions for piano students will be conducted at Northeast Louisiana State College Saturday March 3 at 9 a.m.

Lorraine Brittain, prominent teacher and pianist of the faculty of Northwestern State College will serve as judge.

Last year's winner was Philip Ambrose of Neville High.

The fortunate winners in the contest will have an all-expense trip paid to the national music camp at Interlochen, Mich., where 2,000 of the nation's top student musicians will work and play from June 24 through August 20.

The Mutual Broadcasting System will carry from coast to coast a program at 9 p.m. today devoted to the National Crippled Children's Association. It is entitled, "The Easter Field Parade."

This program is said to be of unusual interest and the public is asked to listen in at the hour named.

THREATEN TO HIT

he regards this situation as unrealistic. He said this hands-off policy gives the enemy a "privileged sanctuary" from which to mount assaults against his army without fear of retaliation.

The Allied leaders do not want the Korean war to spread beyond the boundaries of Korea if they can avoid it. This is a major reason why our air force has limited its attacks to hitting only those enemy targets in Korea.

But if the Reds bring out air and sea power in a desperation bid for victory—the lid will be blown off in the Far East and boundaries will disappear.

"In such a case," Collins said, "there would no longer be a "privileged sanctuary' for the enemy. The war would enter an entirely new phase calling for new measures on our part. We would be forced to hit at enemy bases."

Since the great majority of troops in Korea are American, Collins believes the United States would be justified in acting unilaterally in striking at Red bases. But he said he is confident the Allies would approve the action as a defensive measure to protect their own troops fighting in Korea.

In eight months of fighting, the Allies have had complete control of sea and air.

typical of the new Eighth army tactics.

"Strike and kill," was the command, not advance.

(The Eighth army estimates that 120,171 Chinese and North Korean Reds have been killed, captured or wounded in ground action alone since its offensive got underway one month ago today. The figure for Friday was 1,635.

The Americans rescued two wounded Americans who had been hiding in Hoengsong since the Chinese Reds seized the town Feb. 13. Seven other Americans were rescued in the vicinity.

Little activity was reported from other sectors of the 60-mile front on a day that marked the end of eight months of fighting in Korea.

It was last June 25' that the North Korean Red army swarmed south across the 38th parallel, the invisible and arbitrary boundary of the United Nations - sponsored Republic of Korea and the Russian-sponsored North Korean Communist regime.

The first general thaw of the year, coming on top of the worst rain since the campaign began eight months ago, was causing the United Nations troops more trouble than the fighting rearguards of the retreating enemy.

Huge C-119 flying boxcars of the 314th troop carrier group delivered ammunition and food to front line troops advancing over terrain where trucks could not follow. Front dispatches said the Reds were meeting their transport problems with pack animals.

The C-119s have delivered 735 tons of quartermaster equipment to U. N. troops in the last three days. Some have been dropped by parachute and the rest landed at front area fields.

Despite the mud and Red resistance, Allied forces continued to slug out varying gains along the central front.

Advance elements of the U. S. Second division pushed ahead four miles Friday to a point seven miles north of the Chuchon-Sillim highway. This put them within four miles of the Hoengsong-Pangnim highway.

The Second divison was the first to be identified in the present four-day old offensive. Censorship prevented identification of the other three American divisions. Not yet been identified. The Second division was the stalwart defender of the Wonju bulge in January and the stand at Chipyong last week.

Other U. S. troops reported stiff Communists resistance around Umhang, 14 miles north of Chechon on the southeast flank. Artillery fire killed an estimated 50 Reds.

Scattered firefights were also reported from other sectors of the central front as the UN's 100,000 man force edged forward.

Associated Press Correspondent John Randolf reported from the east-central front:

"For the moment, the United Nations' infantry has found the wild Alpine terrain a greater obstacle than the enemy."

Wooded peaks up to 4,500 feet presented an almost solid mountain wall, and the narrow valleys were swept by muddy torrents from the thaw.

As the northern advance continued, there were signs everywhere that the enemy had planned a major push through this rugged sector before the Allies launched their present offensive.

From the western front south of Red-held Seoul, Associated Press Correspondent Jim Becker reported:

"It was so quiet Saturday you could hear a mortar shell drop—and there were very few mortar shells."

Firemen Battle Forest Fire

Monroe firemen late last night were battling a forest fire in the vicinity of Good Hope Baptist Church about eight miles northwest of West Monroe.

Company three of the Monroe fire department were called to the scene at 3:55 p.m. Firemen of company eleven joined in fighting the forest fire at 6:28 p.m.

The two companies controlled the blaze and returned to their stations at 7:30 p.m.

But company eleven was recalled to the scene at 9:09 p.m. The fire was reported still out of control late last night.

Police Charge Monroe Driver

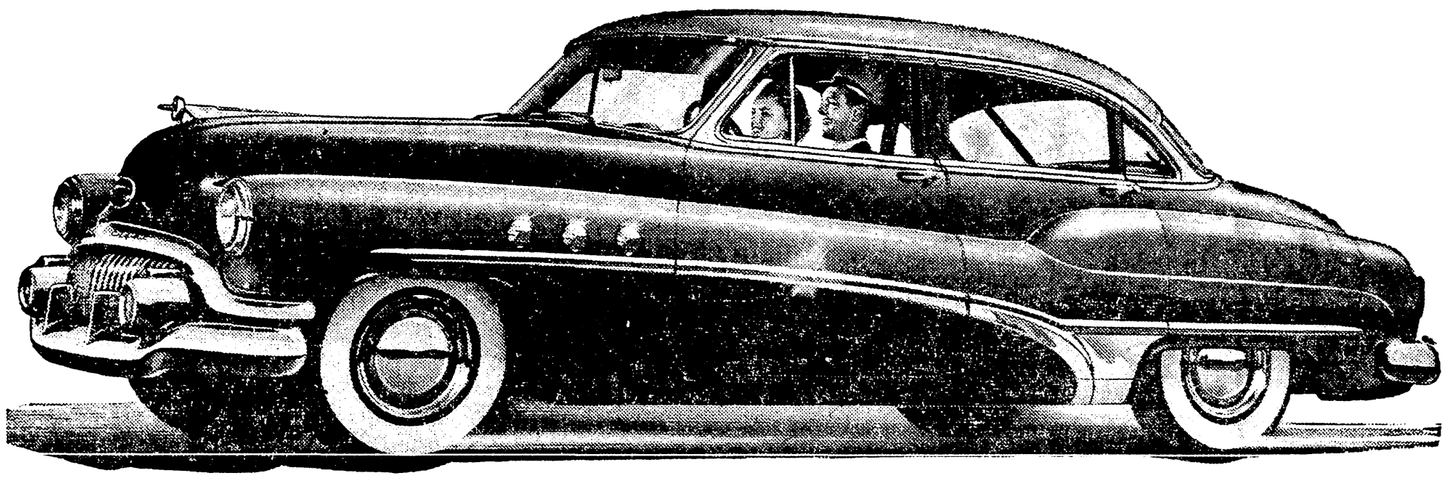

Monroe police last night charged O. J. Patterson, 28, of 800 Jackson street with hit and run driving, drunk driving and damage to property. He was in the city jail last night after defaulting payment of a $500 bond.

Police reports showed that Patterson's car collided with another car at the intersection of DeSiard street and Louisville avenue at 9:20 p.m.

The driver of the other car was identified as William M. Burson, 17, of 3600 Harrison street.

PFC. G. D. GLASSCOCK

Pfc. G. D. Glasscock Writes From Korea

Winnsboro, La., Feb. 24.—(Special)—Pfc. Grover D. Glasscock has been in Korea since September 1, 1950. He is 18 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Glasscock, Route 1, Winnsboro, La.

Inclosed in a recent letter to his parents was this poem which he had composed while in Korea.

God Is There

If you are tired, lonesome and blue,
You feel you're a failure, and friends are few.
When your love has left and you feel so alone.
Remember, God is with you up there on his throne.
If the days seem dreary and the hours seem long.
With your happiness gone, in your heart theres no song.
Your life seems so hopeless, there is nothing but rain.
Remember, God is with you in sorrow and pain.
Though everything about you is dark and dull,
And on life's rocky road there seems no lull.
There seems to be nothing but sorrow around each bend,
Remember, God awaits you out there at the end.

V-P Says Stalin Can Avoid War

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Vice-president Barkley said tonight that Stalin can prove that Russia wants peace by demobilizing "his army of 5,000,000 men" and lifting the iron curtain.

Barkley said in a speech prepared for a Washington day dinner of the Kansas Democratic Club that Stalin's recent efforts to set himself up as the champion of peace fool no one.

"If Stalin wishes to become the apostle of peace, let him demobilize his army of 5,000,000 men and let him bring about the demobilization of the armies of his satellites," the vice-president said.

"Let him lift the iron curtain so that the people from without may see behind it and the people behind it may see outside of it and make their own comparisons as to the relative values of democracy and autocracy.

"When he has done this, his words may take on some value and his promises may not be a perpetual record of faithless repudiation."

Gt. Grandmother Passes Physical, Enters Air Force

Wichita Falls, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A great grandmother who has just passed the air force physical at Sheppard Field celebrated her 75th birthday today.

She is proud and happy in the national service. She isn't an air pilot but an organist.

Mrs. L. L. Allison has been playing for enlisted airmen since Sheppard Field was opened 10 years ago. And she has been taking them home from church for chicken, biscuits and honey. During World War II, the Allison home was always open to soldiers, sweethearts, wives and families.

Since Sheppard Field was reactivated in 1948 as a permanent basic training camp, Mrs. Allison has been a volunteer chapel organist. But the government decided organ music called for civil service rating. The volunteer organist went through six hours of physical exams and came out with flying colors.

Then she told her six children and nine grandchildren.

Now she has a social security card, free passes to the commissary and camp theaters.

NINE CONTESTS ALREADY LINED UP FOR O. P. H. S.

Thanksgiving Open; Tigers May Find That Door To Another Series

A nine-game football schedule for the Ouachita Parish High School Lions for 1951 was announced last night by Coach Jim Hodgins. Interpretation Second, Aegean Third In Rich Santa Anita Derby

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The favored Rough 'N Tumble thundered in to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby today and signal a threat for coming laurels in the three-year-old division.

The handsome bay colt from the bluegrass country of Kentucky subdued 10 rivals in the 14th running of the Santa Anita event, and collected $81,500 net for his owner, Mrs. Frances Genter of Minneapolis.

Rough 'N Tumble, ridden by the derby king himself, Eddie Arcaro, took charge of the race as he rolled into the stretch, and came on in to whip the runner-up in public fancy, the K. T. Potter ranch's California colt, Interpretation, by two lengths.

Clifford Mooers' longshot Aegean came in third after setting the pace, and the sentimental choice, Phil D., racing for W. C. Martin, of Texas, was fourth.

Rough 'N Tumble, who won from some of this same field in the Derby Trial 10 days ago at a mile and one-sixteenth, won this mile and one-eighth contest over a fast track in 1.50 2-5.

The winner paid $5.60, $3.40 and $2.70; Interpretation $4.20 and $3.20 and Aegean $5.60.

Rough 'N Tumble didn't approach the derby record time here of 1.48 4-5 established last year by William Goetz' Your Host, but most observers think he may prove a challenge for a spot in the triple crown this year—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes. If he succeeds, he will be the first Santa Anita Derby winner to achieve such success.

The order of the finish behind the first four was Gold Capitol, Frendswood, Lion, Nothirdhance, Piquancy, Mohammedan and Greek Pass.

Saigh Goes Back To Battle Cardinals' Holdout Corps

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Owner Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals headed back to his desk in St. Louis today to resume the battle of the unsigned contracts.

"I wish somebody would tell me if I am unreasonable about (Red) Schoendienst's case," Saigh said before he left. "We paid Red $22,000 last year because we had finished second. We slumped to fifth, our attendance dropped off 300,000 and, despite the fact that his batting average dropped from .297 to .276, I have offered him the same salary he received last season. I just feel that I have been very fair with Schoendienst."

The infielder is reported seeking a $5,000 increase.

Also not signed are Pitchers Max Lanier, Howard Pollet, and George Munger, Outfielder Harry (Peanuts) Lowery, and Catcher Del Rice.

U. Of Detroit Promotes Grid Backfield Mentor

Detroit, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Earl (Dutch) Clark, present backfield coach, today was named both head grid coach and athletic director at the University of Detroit.

Lloyd Brazil, present athletic director, was retained as chairman of the athletic board, baseball coach and in an advisory capacity for other sports.

As head coach Clark succeeds Charles (Chuck) Baer, who resigned in a surprise move last December after a successful season.

Jonesboro-Hodge Wins At Gilbert

Gilbert, La., Feb. 24.—(Special) Jonesboro - Hodge Independents won the Gilbert Lions Club Independent Tournament here tonight, defeating Enterprise in the finals, 68 to 34. Third place went to Choudrant over Wainwright Motors of Alexandria.

First, second and third place trophies were awarded the winners by W. J. Shelton, Jr., president of the sponsoring Gilbert Lions Club.

In the semi-finals, Enterprise defeated Wainwright Motors, 51 to 29, and Jonesboro - Hodge stopped Choudrant, 49 to 26.

Quarter - final results were: Enterprise 59, Gilbert 47; Jonesboro-Hodge 36, Goff - Waldon of Pineville 33 Wainwright Motors 41, Oila 27; and Choudrant 33, Ogden 25.

MOUNT MARCY 1ST IN ORLEANS EVENT

Thwarted Comes In Second; Favored Lotowhite Runs Third

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's six-year-old Mount Marcy dashed to an easy six-length victory in the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap at the Fair Grounds here today.

T. G. Benson's Lotowhite, the favorite, was second and T. P. Morgan's Thwarted third.

Bolingover set the pace for five-eighths, but Mount Marcy came on with a burst of speed to win the mile and a sixteenth race in 1:44 4-5—a second off the track record set eight years ago.

Mount Marcy was flown here early this week from Florida to run in the New Orleans Handicap.

Ridden by Jockey Ken Church, Mount Marcy returned $6, $3, and $3.20. Lotowhite paid $2.40 and $3.40 and Thwarted $3.40. Lotowhite and Thwarted ran as an entry.

Church got Mount Marcy off to a fast start, close on the heel of Bolingover. Church had Mount Marcy in hand and it was obvious after a half mile that the veteran jockey was just bidding his time for the proper move.

Yale played the first international game of football, defeating Eton two goals to one, in 1873.

DENIES BRUTALITY AT STATE PRISON

Sheriff Says He'd Have Been First To Know About Angola Beatings

St. Francisville, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Sheriff T. H. Martin of West Feliciana parish denied tonight that there had been any brutality at Angola prison farm and said if there had been "I would have been the first to know about it."

The comment was made after published reports that about 30 prisoners deliberately cut their heel tendons in protest against "brutal treatment."

Neither Prison Warden Rudolph Easterly nor Prison Superintendent R. C. Lawrence was available for a comment.

The prison authorities are directly responsible to the governor, and Gov. Earl K. Long could not be reached late today.

Martin said reports of brutality were "a bunch of hooey."

He had not heard any reports of prisoners indulging in self-mutilation, but added that cutting tendons in heels "is an old trick. The trouble with those fellows is they can't get away any more, and they'll do anything to keep from working."

body was taken to the ninth corps command post.

Moore, who held commands in both the Pacific and European theaters in World War II, was the fourth general officer to be lost by United Nations forces in Korea.

"It was with deep regret that I received word of the death of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore," said General MacArthur at his Tokyo headquarters.

"He was an officer of great skill and courage, and his loss will be keenly felt by this command," the United Nations commander said.

Moore took command of the ninth corps less than two weeks ago, during the Chinese Communist offensive against the U. S. eighth army central front.

His death came after the United Nations forces stopped the Chinese drive and in turn pushed the Reds northward. The enemy less than four days ago held the river spot where Moore's helicopter crashed. Fighting is only five or six miles north of the spot.

In Washington, the army high command met immediately after receiving word of Moore's death. A successor to the corps command is expected to be named speedily.

of his department or whether Peyton Ford is still running it."

Pearson was out of the city and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Ford, who became chief assistant when Tom Clark was attorney general, remained in the post when McGrath took over. Ford is a former assistant attorney general of Oklahoma.

The present Pearson-McCarthy furore stems back to a Pearson column of Dec. 30, in which the columnist quoted from secret army messages.

McCarthy demanded the army find out how Pearson got hold of the documents. Furthermore he told the senate that the columnist had printed without a change, a decoded message which bore a warning that it contained security information. McCarthy gave a date and a number which he said the message bore.

Pearson, declaring McCarthy's use of the date and number was a security violation, also turned to the army department, demanding to know whether the defense department would take action against McCarthy, a marine reserve officer.

Eloise Slater of the Ouachita Parish Grammar School faculty who was elected general chairman of the workshop.

Taking part in arranging the event was a group of teachers representing all the Ouachita Parish schools for white children. They met with Supt. Avants and Mrs. S. Willis Williams, Ouachita Parish school supervisor.

A working organization was formed at this first conference. Serving with Mrs. Slater is Mrs. Frances Manning, teacher at Selman School, vice-chairman; Mrs. Helen LeFevre of the O.P.H.S. faculty, secretary - treasurer; Supt Avants and Mrs. Williams, advisers.

Enabling the group to begin functioning at once, the following committees were proposed: materials, steering publicity, housing, hospitality and appraisal. Personnel for these will be chosen next week.

A questionnaire, which will be submitted to each teacher, is designed to secure suggestions regarding subjects and activities which they would like to include in the workshop program. This information is to serve as a basis for further planning, the committee explained. The group pointed out that "Evaluative Criteria" might be a practical source for suggestions.

The stalled car, owned by Elbert Ernest, Negro, 106 South Seventh street, was knocked approximately 40 feet and into a telephone pole, police reported.

A Standifer street resident escaped serious injury when the auto he was driving hit a curb in the 4300 block of South Grand, and turned over.

Jack Milton White, 806 Standifer street, was uninjured. He told police he was traveling 40 miles an hour.

They were married in August 1949, after he had gotten the job at Bethlehem Steel and was settled here.

They live in an upstairs apartment — three rooms and a bath. Pappas said he had planned to move to a new home, "but it's no bigger."

"I don't know what we'll do now. We've got a little time yet to make those sort of plans," he said.

Mrs. Anderson, in whose house they live, just couldn't get over it.

"When I saw them (the babies) keep coming out of the delivery room," she said, "I wanted to run in and tell her, 'I don't mind baby-sitting for one or two, but let's knock this off.' "

Pappas didn't seem too concerned about the future. "We'll make it all right," he said. He likes his job, he added, and plans to stay with it.

It was apparent, however, he would get plenty of outside help. As soon as Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro heard about it, he immediately started a "mayor's quad fund" by laying down $100 and accepting all contributions.

on standards of price and wage stabilization.

"Within a short time," he said, "we expect to issue a food price regulation establishing the margin by which retailers and wholesalers may mark up their products."

The control chief said it is difficult to determine what the total result in actual prices may be, but added:

"We are certain that inequities will be corrected and price relationships adjusted. This is a step toward attaining stability and a price plateau where we expect the restoration of a sound relationship between prices and consumer buying power."

DiSalle dropped a hint tending to confirm recent reports that he is considering putting a ceiling close to 45 cents a pound on raw cotton, which was frozen by his Jan. 26, price order as low as 42 cents for some sellers and as high as 47 for others.

"We have been told that 45-cent ceilings on cotton in the commodity exchanges would stifle the incentive of the farmers to increase their production," he said. "But only a few days ago the newspapers carried stories with reference to a rush going on in California among those who want to plant cotton, cotton and more cotton."

After the priest said he wrote the article, he was asked what basis he had for the accusation.

It was well known, Father Drolet, said, that "such a condition never exists without protection and the 'fix' has been put on the authorities. I dislike the word 'fix' but it is a term of the underworld."

"Then it is an assumption on your part?' LaFargue asked.

"Yes."

The priest said he had no personal knowledge of any evidence that a payoff ever had been made.

which later was turned down by the trainmen and three other operating unions.

That would mean about 28 cents for those in the yard service and 13 cents for those in road service.

The trainmen, led by W. P. Kennedy, held a heated session of committee members last night and decided to break out of the solid front which had been established by the four operating unions last fall. The other three unions are the engineers, conductors, and firemen and enginemen.

The leaders of those three unions remained on the sideline as the committee of trainmen bargained with the three carrier representatives and the Mediation Board.

Chosen on the basis of their scholastic achievements, the selected ten will contribute articles to future issues of the Reivew. They will continue to serve on the Review through their senior year.

Crowe entered the law school in September, 1950. At the university, Crowe is a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity and the Newman Club, Catholic organization. He was graduated from St. Matthew's High School and attended Northeast Junior College.

Hobbs entered the law school in the fall, 1950. A graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, he attended Northeast Junior College. He served with the U. S. navy in World War II.

"Dear Jes' Ramblin':

"I have often heard so many things concerning the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital until I made up mind that I would never want to go there as patient. But in my opinion they have done a wonderful job with the staff of doctors and nurses. I am sure a patient couldn't be treated any better than I was during my recent stay there.

"Patients are well fed, well cared for in every way and are by no means neglected.

"Hope this clears up a lot of misunderstanding.

"Beatrice Kelly."

Announcement of a skating party for the Westminister Fellowship of Northeast Louisiana State College aroused panic in the hearts of the timid many. Showing common sense, they have invited dates who are husky and adept in the art of skating, they hope.

Members and their dates will be fortified for the test by a six o'clock supper in the home of Miss Ann Mickel. Skaters will then adjourn to Skateland for an evening full of fun and—falls, no doubt.

Bringing her marriage certificate to the Morning World for observation, Mrs. Jerry Fury yesterday explained that on March 27, 1951, she will have lived 49 years since she was married. This attractive little woman, with eyes twinkling still as she ruminated, told how she slipped off at the age of 18 and was wedded by the Rev. W. D. Spurlin, then a Monroe pastor.

She declared that a horse-drawn carriage awaited the happy pair at the parsonage where the wedding took place, and she told that her wedding gown, quite the rage for that time, was a far cry from those of 1951. She has been widowed for a number of years and lives at 1807 Jackson street. She spends considerable time with a daughter, one of her three children, in Houston, Tex.

Announcement is made to all interested music students to the effect that the J. Paul Hewitt Piano Scholarship contest will be held again this year. Auditions for piano students will be conducted at Northeast Louisiana State College Saturday March 3 at 9 a.m.

Lorraine Brittain, prominent teacher and pianist of the faculty of Northwestern State College will serve as judge.

Last year's winner was Philip Ambrose of Neville High.

The fortunate winners in the contest will have an all-expense trip paid to the national music camp at Interlochen, Mich., where 2,000 of the nation's top student musicians will work and play from June 24 through August 20.

The Mutual Broadcasting System will carry from coast to coast a program at 9 p.m. today devoted to the National Crippled Children's Association. It is entitled, "The Easter Field Parade."

This program is said to be of unusual interest and the public is asked to listen in at the hour named.

he regards this situation as unrealistic. He said this hands-off policy gives the enemy a "privileged sanctuary" from which to mount assaults against his army without fear of retaliation.

The Allied leaders do not want the Korean war to spread beyond the boundaries of Korea if they can avoid it. This is a major reason why our air force has limited its attacks to hitting only those enemy targets in Korea.

But if the Reds bring out air and sea power in a desperation bid for victory—the lid will be blown off in the Far East and boundaries will disappear.

"In such a case," Collins said, "there would no longer be a "privileged sanctuary' for the enemy. The war would enter an entirely new phase calling for new measures on our part. We would be forced to hit at enemy bases."

Since the great majority of troops in Korea are American, Collins believes the United States would be justified in acting unilaterally in striking at Red bases. But he said he is confident the Allies would approve the action as a defensive measure to protect their own troops fighting in Korea.

In eight months of fighting, the Allies have had complete control of sea and air.

The rescue operation — conducted in conjunction with civil defense planners — will be under the command of Capt. S. L. Stuckey, head of the Ruston C. A. P. squadron.

A Hixson Brothers ambulance driven by J. L. Brooks, and a pick-up truck equipped with the local squadron's electrical power unit and loaned to the expedition by Lee-Rogers Chevrolet Company will join the convoy.

Those flying to the scene from Monroe will include:

Lt. E. Joe Joseph, who will fly in a Beach Craft Bonanza; Lewis Lee, in a Cessna; Darwin Nichols, in a Luszombe; Lt. C. A. Stratford, in a Bellanca; J. T. Powell in a Cessna; C. B. McMahan, in a Stinson; Maurice White, in a Cessna. The local civil air patrol members will fly in a Piper, and E. W. Brown III will be in a Lockhead Loadstar owned by the Brown Container Cooperation and piloted by Bill White and Co-Pilot Bill Stewart.

Captain S. L. Stuckey is commanding the entire operation. Lt. E. Joe Joseph, assisted by Sgt. C. L. Foster, will command the Monroe squadron.

In the guard detachment are E. D. Ottwell and J. T. Powell. J. L. Brooks and Lt. F. A. Adams will be with the field hospital unit.

First aid litter bearers are Richard Brown, Bobby Nix, George Harper, George Walker, and Charles Law..

With communications are Capt. J. Hover, E. W. Brown III, W. H. Bell, E. S. Wells, Mrs. E. S. Wells, and T. C. Pipes.

James Vaughn is a member of the radiological team.

In the engineering branch of the project are W. Miller and Lt. H. Smith.

Public information officers are Lt. C. Stratford and Sgt. S. K. Bernheim.

Natchitoches is about 85 miles southwest of Monroe.

that Mr. Truman requested the RFC files of congressional letters in connection with his plans for reorganization of the lending agency. "That explanation sounds a little weak," Fulbright commented.

Mr. Truman last Monday asked congress to abolish the RFC's five-man board of directors and to substitute a single administrator and a loan policy and review board. That is much the same plan the subcommittee recommended two weeks ago in its report.

TAKE PANGNIM

typical of the new Eighth army tactics.

"Strike and kill," was the command, not advance.

(The Eighth army estimates that 120,171 Chinese and North Korean Reds have been killed, captured or wounded in ground action alone since its offensive got underway one month ago today. The figure for Friday was 1,635.

The Americans rescued two wounded Americans who had been hiding in Hoengsong since the Chinese Reds seized the town Feb. 13. Seven other Americans were rescued in the vicinity.

Little activity was reported from other sectors of the 60-mile front on a day that marked the end of eight months of fighting in Korea.

It was last June 25 that the North Korean Red army swarmed south across the 38th parallel, the invisible and arbitrary boundary of the United Nations - sponsored Republic of Korea and the Russian-sponsored North Korean Communist regime.

The first general thaw of the year, coming on top of the worst rain since the campaign began eight months ago, was causing the United Nations troops more trouble than the fighting rearguards of the retreating enemy.

Huge C-119 flying boxcars of the 314th troop carrier group delivered ammunition and food to front line troops advancing over terrain where trucks could not follow. Front dispatches said the Reds were meeting their transport problems with pack animals.

The C-119s have delivered 735 tons of quartermaster equipment to U. N. troops in the last three days. Some have been dropped by parachute and the rest landed at front area fields.

Despite the mud and Red resistance, Allied forces continued to slug out varying gains along the central front.

Advance elements of the U. S. Second division pushed ahead four miles Friday to a point seven miles north of the Chuchon-Sillim highway. This put them within four miles of the Hoengsong-Pangnim highway.

The Second divison was the first to be identified in the present four-day old offensive. Censorship prevented identification of the other three American divisions. Not yet been identified. The Second division was the stalwart defender of the Wonju bulge in January and the stand at Chipyong last week.

Other U. S. troops reported stiff Communists resistance around Umhang, 14 miles north of Chechon on the southeast flank. Artillery fire killed an estimated 50 Reds.

Scattered firefights were also reported from other sectors of the central front as the UN's 100,000 man force edged forward.

Associated Press Correspondent John Randolf reported from the east-central front:

"For the moment, the United Nations' infantry has found the wild Alpine terrain a greater obstacle than the enemy."

Wooded peaks up to 4,500 feet presented an almost solid mountain wall, and the narrow valleys were swept by muddy torrents from the thaw.

As the northern advance continued, there were signs everywhere that the enemy had planned a major push through this rugged sector before the Allies launched their present offensive.

From the western front south of Red-held Seoul, Associated Press Correspondent Jim Becker reported:

"It was so quiet Saturday you could hear a mortar shell drop—and there were very few mortar shells."

Firemen Battle Forest Fire

Monroe firemen late last night were battling a forest fire in the vicinity of Good Hope Baptist Church about eight miles northwest of West Monroe.

Company three of the Monroe fire department were called to the scene at 3:55 p.m. Firemen of company eleven joined in fighting the forest fire at 6:28 p.m.

The two companies controlled the blaze and returned to their stations at 7:30 p.m.

But company eleven was recalled to the scene at 9:09 p.m. The fire was reported still out of control late last night.

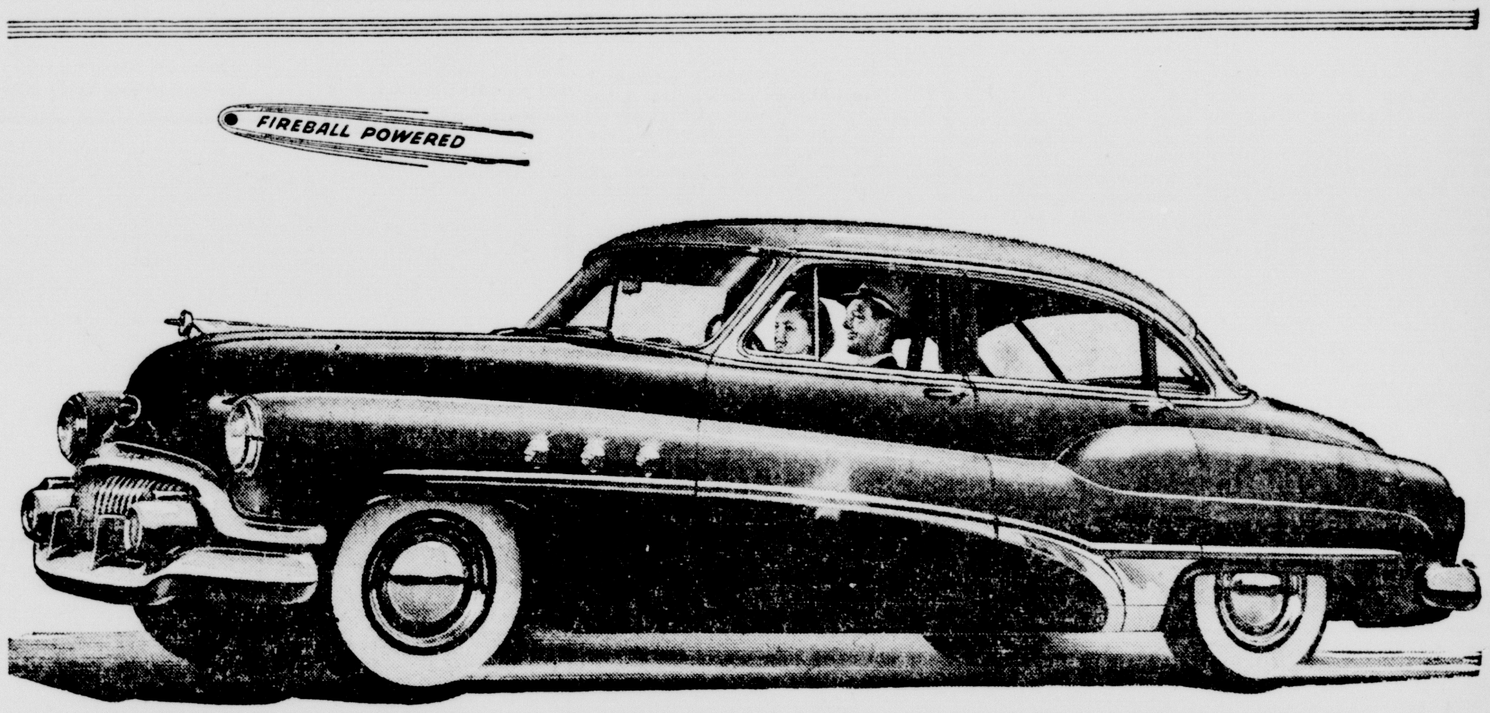

Police Charge Monroe Driver

Monroe police last night charged O. J. Patterson, 28, of 800 Jackson street with hit and run driving, drunk driving and damage to property. He was in the city jail last night after defaulting payment of a $500 bond.

Police reports showed that Patterson's car collided with another car at the intersection of DeSiard street and Louisville avenue at 9:20 p.m.

The driver of the other car was identified as William M. Burson, 17, of 3600 Harrison street.

'IF MEN' LOOM BIG AS MAJORS GO TO WORK

ALL BIG LEAGUE OUTFITS FACING QUESTION MARKS

Some Of Biggest Stars Of Game Will Have To Show They're Ready

By Joe Reichler

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—As the major league training season gets under way in earnest next week, the "if" men in baseball are clouding up the skies for all clubs.

There isn't a club in the majors that doesn't have at least one "if" man. These "if" men are the key players who last season suffered serious injuries or illness, athletes who slumped badly and must come back tp put their team in contention, and men who were acquired in trades.

All 16 clubs are dotted by human question marks.

The most important "iffer" is Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox. No one knows for certain whether his left elbow is fully healed. If Williams cannot swing with the old smoothness, you can write off the Red Sox pennant chances.

Then there is Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees. DiMag, 36, admits last year was his most trying one.

Although his aching heels apparently behaved, he had trouble with his legs and back.

The big "if" man of the Detroit Tigers is Virgil Trucks. Hal Newhouser, nearing 31, also is on that list. Trucks, a 19-game winBaseman Preston Ward and Outless all last year. Newhouser was able to win only 15 games last year.

The St. Louis Cardinals are an "if" club from many angles. Manager Marty Marion underwent a knee surgery and if he can't play shortstop, who will? Catcher Joe Garagiola and relief ace Ted Wilks also underwent operations, Garagiola on his shoulder and Wilks on his arm. Can Captain Enos Slaughter come back after a poor season. And who will play first?

Brooklyn has three problem pitchers, Rex Barney, Jack Banta, and southpaw Joe Hatten. The trio won 31 games in 1949 but only eight last year.

Washington wonders whether pitcher Gene Bearden has fully recovered from a sore arm.

Cincinnati is awaiting a verdict on Ewell Blackwell following his appendicitis operation. He notched 18 wins in 1950. Boston's Braves have fears over Sam Jethroe's leg, hurt last summer. They also are puzzled by Will Marshall's hitting decline. Chicago's Cubs are keeping anxious eyes on First Baseman Preston Ward and Outfielder Hal Jeffcoat.

Chicago White Sox' success depends upon the health of Shortstop Chico Carrasquel and Outfielder Al Zarilla.

Jimmy Dykes' question mark at Philadelphia are pitchers Dick Fowler and Joe Coleman and Outfielder Barny McCosky.

The St. Louis browns are hoping for Outfielder Roy Stevens to come back after a disastrous sophomore season. They also would like to see flychaser Ken Wood escape that injury bug. Cleveland, without Lou Boudreau to fill in at any infield position, is an "if" club.

The New York Giants have a problem at first base. They are experimenting with Outfielder Whitey Lockaman there with the intention of sending Monte Irvin to left field.

Except for Ralph Kiner, the entire Pittsburgh club is sorely beset by "ifs." If reports are true that Kiner will be tried at first base, then he, too, will become a question mark.

Bastrop Gridiron Slate Announced

Bastrop, La., Feb. 24.—(Special)—The Bastrop High School Rams can look forward to a rough, tengame football schedule for next fall, Coach Jim Perry announced today.

The only newcomer to the recently completed 1951 Ram schedule will be the powerful Ouachita Lions of Monroe, replacing the Camden High School Panthers.

With the exception of "AA" Ouachita and Smackover, Ark., the Bastrop eleven will play an unbroken list of eight Class A opponents.

Sept. 7 — Smackover, Ark., here.
Sept. 14 — Homer, here.
Sept. 21 — Open.
Sept. 28 — Jonesboro - Hodge, ere.
Oct. 5 — Ouachita at Monroe.
Oct. 12 — Rayville, here.
Oct. 19 — Winnsboro, there.
Oct. 26. — Ruston, there.
Nov. 2 Springhill, here.
Nov. 9. — Winnfield, there.
Nov. 16 — Neville at Monroe.

Sophomore fullback John Panelli of the Detroit Lions plans to enroll in the University of Detroit law school at the close of the 1950 National Football League.

20-Game Slate For L. S. U. Nine

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A 20-game baseball schedule was announced today by Louisiana State University.

The slate, released by L.S.U. Athletic Director T. P. Heard, includes 16 Southeastern Conference tilts. All will be played in the day except a contest April 14 here with the Baton Rouge Red Sticks of the Evangeline League.

New Mat Champ, Serois, In Title Bout Here Tuesday

MOBLEY TO GET CHANCE AT BELT HE ONCE OWNED

Ellis Bashara, George Cologne To Appear In Kallio's Semi-Final

"Buff" Serois, the new kingpin of the world's light heavyweight wrestlers who has never worked in these parts, will come to Monroe Tuesday night to defend his crown against the challenge of Rex Mobley, the ex-champ from Texas City, Tex., Promoter Gus Kallio announced last night.

Serois, a battler from Buffalo, N.Y., won the crown recently in a Pacific coast bout with Jack Curtis, the Vicksburg, Miss., flash who has held the belt on five different occasions, Kallio said. Serois is champ for the first time.

Mobley, the man from whom Curtis won the belt the first time eleven years ago, is confident he can bring the championship back to this section of the country.

"As soon as Rex learned that Jack had lost the title, he started special training and bombarding me with all kinds of questions about who the new champ is," Kallio said. "Rex wanted to know his weight, whether he's short or tall, young or old, how long he has been wrestling, and many other facts a wrestler likes to know about an opponent.

"I couldn't tell him anything. I don't know Serois, but it immediately went to work trying to bring him here. After contacting Serois on the telephone, I found him a mighty easy man to do business with.

"Serois said he is glad to get a chance to come to this section of the country, we had no trouble working out terms of the match, and he only asked one question about Mobley, 'has he ever met Curtis?' I told him yes, and he said that's O.K."

The title scramble will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

Appearing in the semi-final will be Ellis Bashara, the ring veteran from Norman, Okla., and George Cologne, New Orleans. Bashara and Cologne will meet in an hour time limit bout, two falls to win.

Any major league player placed on the disabled list must remain inactive for at least 30 days. Two players on the disabled list are the maximum for any team in the majors.

"Buff" Serois (above), new world's light heavyweight wrestling champion, will be introduced at Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesnight when he risks his belt against the challenge of Rex Mobley, Texas City, Tex.

LOUIS GETS T. K. O. WIN OVER WALKER

Former Champ Winner In Last Round But Fails To Knock Down Foe

San Francisco, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Joe Louis, the winner of his toughest fight since he came out of retirement last September, said today he was ready for a return match for the heavyweight championship with Ezzard Charles.

The Brown Bomber scored a technical knockout over stouthearted Andy Walker in the final round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Cow Palace last night.

A sell-out crowd of 18,000 fans, accounting for official gate receipts of $92,087.50, saw Louis batter the rangy San Francisco Negro round after round until he was arm-weary. It was his fourth win in his campaign to come back after being soundly drubbed by Charles in a 15-round bout for the title he once held.

Louis hit Walker with about every punch in the book but he couldn't floor him. He knocked the San Francisco fighter, who holds the California state title, into the ropes four times. In the final session, he caught Walker with a flurry of blows that had the California camp reeling. Referee Frankie Brown stopped the contest in 1:49 of the tenth. There was some booing by Walker fans, who thought he could have finished the battle.

In his dressing room after the match, Walker said he was sorry the fight was stopped but he wouldn't question the decision of the referee.

In three previous come - back fights Louis scored 10-round decisions over Cesar Brion and Omelio Agramonte and stopped Freddie Beshore in the fourth round.

Walker, who once served as Charles' sparring partner, said the present champion is a better boxer than Louis and is faster but he declined to predict the outcome of their next title match.

Gt. Grandmother Passes Physical, Enters Air Force

Wichita Falls, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A great grandmother who has just passed the air force physical at Sheppard Field celebrated her 75th birthday today.

She is proud and happy in the national service. She isn't an air pilot but an organist.

Mrs. E. E. Allison has been playing for enlisted airmen since Sheppard Field was opened 10 years ago. And she has been taking them home from church for chicken, biscuits and honey. During World War II, the Allison home was always open to soldiers, sweethearts, wives and families.

Since Sheppard Field was reactivated in 1948 as a permanent basic training camp, Mrs. Allison has been a volunteer chapel organist. But the government decided organ music called for civil service rating. The volunteer organist went through six hours of physical exams and came out with flying colors.

Then she told her six children and nine grandchildren.

Now she has a social security card, free passes to the commissary and camp theaters.

The handsome bay colt from the bluegrass country of Kentucky subdued 10 rivals in the 14th running of the Santa Anita event, and collected $81,500 net for his owner, Mrs. Frances Genter of Minneapolis.

Rough 'N Tumble, ridden by the derby king himself, Eddie Arcaro, took charge of the race as he rolled into the stretch, and came on in to whip the runner-up in public fancy, the K. T. Potter ranch's California colt, Interpretation, by two lengths.

Clifford Mooers' longshot Aegean came in third after setting the pace, and the sentimental choice, Phil D., racing for W. C. Martin, of Texas, was fourth.

Rough 'N Tumble, who won from some of this same field in the Derby Trial 10 days ago at a mile and one-sixteenth, won this mile and one-eighth contest over a fast track in 1.50 2-5.

The winner paid $5.60, $3.40 and $2.70; Interpretation $4.20 and $3.30 and Aegean $5.60.

Rough 'N Tumble didn't approach the derby record time here of 1.48 4-5 established last year by William Goetz' Your Host, but most observers think he may prove a challenge for a spot in the triple crown this year—the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes. If he succeeds, he will be the first Santa Anita Derby winner to achieve such success.

The order of the finish behind the first four was Gold Capitol, Frendswood, Lion, Nothirdhance, Piquancy, Mohammedan and Greek Pass.

Saigh Goes Back To Battle Cardinals' Holdout Corps

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Owner Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals headed back to his desk in St. Louis today to resume the battle of the unsigned contracts.

"I wish somebody would tell me if I am unreasonable about (Red) Schoendienst's case," Saigh said before he left. "We paid Red $22,000 last year because we had finished second. We slumped to fifth, our attendance dropped off 300,000 and, despite the fact that his batting average dropped from .297 to .276, I have offered him the same salary he received last season. I just feel that I have been very fair with Schoendienst."

The infielder is reported seeking a $5,000 increase.

Also not signed are Pitchers Max Lanier, Howard Pollet, and George Munger, Outfielder Harry (Peanuts) Lowery, and Catcher Del Rice.

As head coach Clark succeeds Charles (Chuck) Baer, who resigned in a surprise move last December after a successful season.

MOUNT MARCY 1ST IN ORLEANS EVENT

Thwarted Comes In Second; Favored Lotowhite Runs Third

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's six-year-old Mount Marcy dashed to an easy six-length victory in the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap at the Fair Grounds here today.

T. G. Benson's Lotowhite, the favorite, was second and T. P. Morgan's Thwarted third.

Bolingover set the pace for five-eighths, but Mount Marcy came on with a burst of speed to win the mile and a sixteenth race in 1:44 4-5—a second off the track record set eight years ago.

Mount Marcy was flown here early this week from Florida to run in the New Orleans Handicap.

Ridden by Jockey Ken Church, Mount Marcy returned $6, $3, and $3.20. Lotowhite paid $2.40 and $3.40 and Thwarted $3.40. Lotowhite and Thwarted ran as an entry.

Church got Mount Marcy off to a fast start, close on the heel of Bolingover. Church had Mount Marcy in hand and it was obvious after a half mile that the veteran jockey was just bidding his time for the proper move.

Yale played the first international game of football, defeating Eton two goals to one, in 1873.

Lew Worsham Forges Ahead In Third Round Of Houston Open Tournament

Marty Furgol One Stroke Off Pace As Final Session Comes Up Today

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Tex., Feb. 24. —(AP)— Lew Worsham, former National Open champion from Oakmont, Pa., was plagued with trouble on the back nine today but came in with a two under par 70 that gave him the third round lead in the $1,0000 Houston Open.

His 54-hold 207, nine under par, left him one stroke ahead of Marty Furgol, Long Beach, Calif., whose par 72 on the 6967-yard Memorial Park course gave him a third round 208.

Worsham, with a four-under 32 on the front nine, topped one shot and put another into a lake for a penalty stroke on the backside. He wound up by seeing a three-foot putt stop on the lip of the eighteenth green cup and he had to settle for a par.

Meanwhile, Ed (Porky) Oliver, Seattle, Wash., the second round leader, and Jim Deal, Houston, the 36-hole runner - up, were having all kinds of trouble on the windswept course.

Oliver, three over par on the front nine, came in with a 77 that dropped him to a 21 total. Deal zoomed to an eight-over 80 for a 215.

Grouped at 209 were Jack Burke, Houston, Henry Ransom, St. Andrews, Ill., and John Weitzel, Harrisburg, Pa.

Holding 210's were Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., Gwen Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., E. J. Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., and Jimmie Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif.

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, with a 69, was the only player to break 70 under the strong wind today. With his earlier 70 and 72 rounds he holds a 211 tie with Oliver and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco.

M'Neill Upset By Straight Clark In Indoor Net Event

New York, Feb. 24. —(AP)— Seventh-seeded Straight Clark of Pasadena, Calif., today upset top-seeded Don McNeill, 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0, to gain the finals of the National Indoor Tennis Championships.

Clark will meet New Yorks' Bill Talbert for the title tomorrow. Talbert whipped Ed Moylan of Trenton, N. J., 6-4, 6-3, 7-5, to move up.

The fall of McNeill, the defending champion, came a great surprise. After trailing two games to one, Clark unfurled his powerful back-court placements to eliminate the New Yorker. Near the end, the sting from McNeill's service was gone and he committed numerous errors.

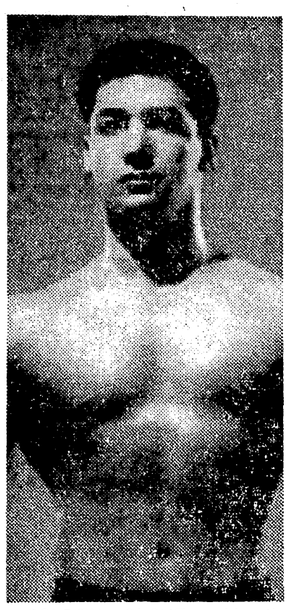

The final—and deciding — set was no contest. Visibly tired and weak from a cold, the 32-year-old McNeill made little effort to return Clark's smashing cross-court placements.

Big Ten Supports TV Ban; To Discuss Bowl Renewal

Chicago, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The faculty representatives of the Western Conference, policy making body for the group, today approved a recommendation of the athletic directors to continue banning live television of football games for another year.

In the closing session of the "Big Ten's" three - day business meeting, the directors and the faculty representatives approved a seven-man committee to meet with the Pacific Conference committee next Saturday night in Chicago to discuss renewal of the Rose Bowl pact.

The Big Ten's television policy for 1951-52 will permit experimental football telecasts and unrestricted television of 12 minor sports.

GOLDEN GLOVE midsouth heavyweight champion, Louis Ladart (above), Monroe, will be participating in the divisional Western Tournament of Champions at Chicago, beginning tomorrow. Ladart, a former Neville High School athlete who was a district 155-pound prep champ in Louisiana in 1940, won the heavyweight crown as the recent Memphis, Tenn., Golden Gloves Tournament. A son of Mrs. Virginia Ladart, Monroe, the boxer is a technical sergeant in the 153th fighter squadron of the Tennessee Air National Guard.

Penn Rally Beats Engineers, 83-77

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—(AP)—University of Pennsylvania overcame a 23-point deficit tonight to capture an 83 to 77 overtime victory from Georgia Tech before 4,293 fans.

Georgia Tech's Engineers boasted the wide margin with five minutes of the second half gone, but were unable to stop Penn's tremendous surge.

After trailing throughout, Penn caught Tech at 63-63 with six and one-half minutes remaining. The score was knotted twice more before Penn went ahead with three minutes to go.

The Engineers made it 75-75 with 1:09 left, but Penn, after freezing it for the better part of a minute, failed to connect on a last-second try, and the contest went into overtime.

Penn then scored eight straight, before the Southerners could manage their lone tally.

Loyola Wolfpack Stops Southeastern, 62 To 52

New Orleans, Feb. 24.(AP)—Loyola took an early lead and stayed in front the rest of the game tonight to defeat Southeastern Louisiana College 62-52 in a Gulf States Conference basketball game here.

Center Tom Ketchum was the difference between the teams. The six-foot seven-inch rebound artist controlled both backboards, taking high point honors with 19.

Bert Barnett led Southeastern scorers with 15 points.

U. S. Slaps Million Dollar Lien Against Cage-Fixer's Property

Meanwhile, Hogan Continues Investigation Into Bribery Cases

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The government placed a huge income tax lien today against Salvatore T. Sollazzo, who allegedly spent thousands to fix big-time college basketball games.

With interest and penalties, the government's claim amounts to $1,128,493.

The effect of the lien was to freeze Sollazzo's assets until the government can collect whatever it may be entitled to.

Sollazzo is being held without bail, accused of bribing cage stars from three New York colleges to fix basketball games. The colleges involved are Long Island University, City College of New York, and New York University.

Eight players or ex-players are said to have admitted taking $25,000 in bribes for their part in the alleged fix.

The income tax lien lists allegedly unpaid taxes running into hundreds of thousands of dollars for each of the years from 1943 throughg 1947.

There was no indication from the government as to the source of Sollazzo's income during those years. He is a jewelry manufacturer.

The internal revenue bureau, it was learned, went over Sollazzo's income status months ago, long before the big basketball scandal broke here last week end.

In another development, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today he would favor taking college basketball out of Madison Square Garden "unless some means can be found to keep the lice from entering into the picture and corrupting those boys."

Long Island University already has cancelled its remaining basketball games for this season, including its last two at the garden. Five other schools also have pulled out of the garden since the scandal broke.

Dewey made his remarks to newsmen at La Guardia Field on his way to Washington. He told them;

"The colleges have a very serious moral problem to settle among themselves, and that is whether this is not exploitation and commercialization of the youngsters on their team."

District Attorney Hogan, meanwhile, pushed ahead with his probe of the big basketball fix—the fourth and largest bribe scandal to hit the college sport since 1945.

For the second day in a row, Ed Gard sho wedup at Hogan's office for more questioning.

Hogan said he wanted to talk further with Gard about the former L. I. U. player's association with Sollazzo.

The district attorney has said that Gard was the first player to accept bribes from Sollazzo. That was last season when Gard was captain of L. I. U. 's basketball team. He did not play this season.

Gard, it is alleged, then drew into the fix plan Sherman White, LeRoy Smith and Adolph Bigos, all stars of the current L. I. U. team. The four are said to have admitted fixing seven games—three last season and four this season.

Gard also is accused of acting as Sollazzo's go-between in bribing three stars of CCNY'S national championship cage squad—Ed Warner, Ed Roman and Al Roth. He also is alleged to have had dealings with another player, Connie Schaff of N. Y. U.

Hogan said he plans to talk further with Roman to try to find out what has become of the bribes he allegedly took. Most of the bribe money has been uncovered and seized from the other players.

Hogan clammed up quickly when newsmen tried to draw him out on whether the scandal has roots as yet uncovered.

When asked if other colleges or players would be brought into the probe, the district attorney said:

"I don't care to answer any questions with regard to other schools and players. No matter how I would answer, it would be unfair to the school and the player."

GOLDEN GLOVERS NEARING FINALS

Divisional Championships Open At Chicago, New York Tomorrow

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Crack amateur fighters, survivors of an original field of some 27,500, will shoot for divisional championships next week in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at Chicago and New York.

The Western Tournament, bringing together champions from 46 centers in 22 states, will be staged in Chicago Stadium Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights with the finals a week later.

The eastern eliminations, drawing from 13 centers in six states, Washington, D. C., and Puerto Rico, will be staged simultaneously at New York's Ridgewood Grove and Madison Square Garden.

The eastern champions, to be crowned Wednesday, will meet Chicago's winners for national titles in the inter-city bouts here March 19.

Some 20,000 amateurs — stevedores, soldiers and college men — took part in the western tournaments which stretched from Chicago to Los Angeles, down to Nashville and Memphis in the deep south to Fort Worth in the southwest.

There were some 7,500 in the field which originally started slugging it out in the east. These included Puerto Ricans, who annually come up with stout contenders in the lighter weights, and marines from Cherry Point and Camp LeJeune in North Carolina.

From these fistic marksmen — if we are to judge from experience —will come the professional ring's champions of tomorrow.

The greatest fighters of the age hammered out their reputations first in the Golden Gloves. Outstanding of the gloves graduates are Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber who ruled heavyweight ranks for 13 years, and Ray Robinson, the welterweight and middleweight king who is described as pound-for-pound the greatest fighter of modern times.

The present heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles, and the lightweight titleholder, Joey Maxim, are other distinguished graduates of the Golden Gloves, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune, New York Daily News and dozens of other newspapers.

Other champions who got their start in this amateur classic are: triple - titleholder Barney Ross, light-heavies Gus Lesnevich, Bob Olin and Melio Bettina; middleweights Tony Zale and Solly Kreiger; featherweights Petey Scalzo and Sol Bartello; bantamweights Lew Salica and Harold Dade.

The Golden Gloves were started 25 years ago. The first team of eight champions — 112 pounds through heavyweight — was crowned March 28, 1927, at Madison Square Garden. Chicago launched its tournament a year later and the inter-city series followed.

Ags Sure Of Tie In Southwest Race

Houston, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Texas Aggies clinched at least a tie for their first Southwest Conference basketball championship in 28 years at the Rice field gym tonight, beating the Rice Owls, 45-42, in a thrilling battle before about 5,000 fans.

The Aggies had a hard time repeating for the conference title between 1923 and 1951, and had a hard time preserving a lead they held from the opening minutes against Rice.

Main reason was that the Aggies lost key man Walt Davis on personal fouls with 10 minutes and 37 seconds of the game remaining. Davis left the ball game with the score 38-31 in favor of A. and M. But the Aggies had to fight tooth and toe nail the rest of the way to win.

The Owls pulled up to 42-45 with a minute and five seconds of the game remaining. Jewell McDowell took over from there as the Aggies froze out the remainder of the game.

McDowell led scores for A and M. with 19 points.

YANKEES

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, has worked out an agreement with Jack Jensen whereby the latter will try out his hand as an infielder and pitcher as well as an outfielder.

Stengel says Jensen has the second best curve ball and fast ball of any man on the team. He wants to turn the outfielder into a pitcher. Jensen has objected because he feels that, as a pitcher, he might be farmed out to a minor league team for experience.

As an outfielder he is assured of a job with the world champions.

Stengel said today Jensen will be given a fair trial in the outfield, at third base and then on the mound during the club's spring training program here.

The sun came out again here today, drying out the park, wet down by yesterday's light rain. This afternoon there was an inter-squad practice game.

ATHLETICS

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Philadelphia Athletics' Manager Jimmy Dykes told his squad to take the day off tomorrow.

"Go fishing. Go to the beach or anything else you like. Only stay away from the ball park," he told them after practice today. Dykes said it was strictly a reward by the manager for a hard week's work.

PHILLIES

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Ken Johnson, Philadelphia Phillies' southpaw pitcher was injured today for the second time this week.

Eddie Waitkus lined a fast one through the box that struck Ken just below the left elbow. On Thursday Johnson was similarly struck on the toe by a drive off the bat of Stan Lopata.

Trainer Frank Wiechec administered first aid and, although there was no indication of a fracture, Johnson was ordered off the field for x-ray examinations.

Earlier in the day, practice was interrupted when "Firemen Jim" Konstanty, last year's hero relief hurler, made his appearance. Jim arrived a week late because he has been on a tour of U.S. army camps in Europe.

WHITE SOX

Palm Springs, Calif., Feb. 24. —(AP)—After four workouts that appeared to be on the leisurely side, Manager Paul Richards of the Chicago White Sox today stepped up the pace for his pitching staff. Louis Aloma, Cuban pitcher, arrived to complete the staff of 18 hurlers. He has been playing in the Cuban League this winter and is in excellent shape.

TIGERS

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)— Jerry Priddy checked into the Detroit Tiger spring training camp today, the third infielder to report early.

Priddy reported to Manager Red Rolfe and then set out to find a house before practice for infielders and outfielders opens next Thursday. Shortstop Johnny Lipon and Bob Mavis, a recruit from Toledo, were the other early infield arrivals.

Rolfe drove his batterymen through a two-hour session today in perfect weather, watched for a third straight day by Outfielder Vic Wertz. Though he hasn't signed a contract, Wertz insists that his salary difficulties are not serious.

CUBS

Avalon, Calif., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs today put his squad of 33 players through their first drill of the season. The pitchers worked out under the eyes of Charley Root, a long time Cub pitching star, who is starting a career as a Cub coach. Frisch has high hopes to retaining Lefty Bob Schultz, who won 25 and lost 6 for Nashville last year, and Cal McLish, who won 20 and lost 11 for tailend Los Angeles.

RED SOX

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)— Manager Steve O'Neill indicated today the Boston Red Sox infield was wide open as far as Lou Boudreau is concerned.

"Boudreau may go well and if he does you can't keep him out," stout Steve said.

Boudreau slowed somewhat the last two seasons after his great year in 1948 when he managed Cleveland Indians to the world championship.

BRAVES

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)— Busiest man in the Boston Braves' spring training camp today was Trainer Doc Lacks. Six squad members were battling lagrippe and four others had heavy colds.

Lacks was running around with pills and medication for: Earl Torgeson, Walt Linden, Normie Roy, Del Crandall, Bob Chipman, Don Conley, Max Surkont, Walker Cooper, Chey Nichols and Dick Kelly.

GIANTS

Sanford, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Manager Leo Durocher has bestowed upon Veteran Righthander Larry Jansen the honor of pitching the first inning of the training season's opening intra-equad game tomorrow for the New York Giants.

It will be a seven-inning game with six other pitchers working an inning apiece. The other hurlers selected by Durocher are Jim Hearn, Sal Maglie, Dave Koslo Sheldon Jones, Rookie Norman Fox and former American Leaguer Allen Gettel.

SUNGLOW SCORES IN WIDENER 'CAP

Brookmeade Horse Beats Out Three Rings In Mighty Stretch Drive

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24 —(AP)— A mighty effort in the final few yards of the stretch swept Sunglow to victory in the $50,000-added Widener Handicap at Hialeah race track today and earned the Brookmeade stable the richest purse in Florida racing history.

The chestnut colt's final surge carried him past the favored Three Rings to a length and a quarter triumph over a near record field of 16 handicap stars and won $54,100 for Brookemeade, last year's top money winning stable.

The purse, $150 higher than the previous record of $53,950 collected by The Rhymer in the 1942 Widener, brought the four-year-old Sunglow's total winnings to $134,350. The gross value of today's race was $72,700.

Doug Dodson became the first jockey to win the Widener three times as he guided Sunglow to his spectacular stretch victory before an audience of 22,688. Dodson won the race—highlight of the Florida winter season—on Armed in 1946 and 1947.

Sunglow had to survive a foul claim by Hedley Woodhouse, Three Rings' rider, before entering the winner's circle. Woodhouse charged that Sunglow moved over against Three Rings in the stretch and forced him off stride.

Dodson did not deny that his mount bumped Three Rings, but contended that Three Rings was drifting out from the inside and added that he didn't believe the collision had any effect on the final outcome of the race.

Sunglow, coupled in the entries with Brookmeade's Going Away, paid $9, $4.20 and $3.10. Three Rings returned $6.40 and $4.50. Rokeby stable's County Delight, who was third by a neck, paid $4.60.

Mitchell, Tucker Agree To Terms With Indians

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Outfielders Dale Mitchell and Thurman Tucker returned signed contracts to the Cleveland Indians today.

The Indians would not tell the salaries involved.

That left only four contracts outstanding.

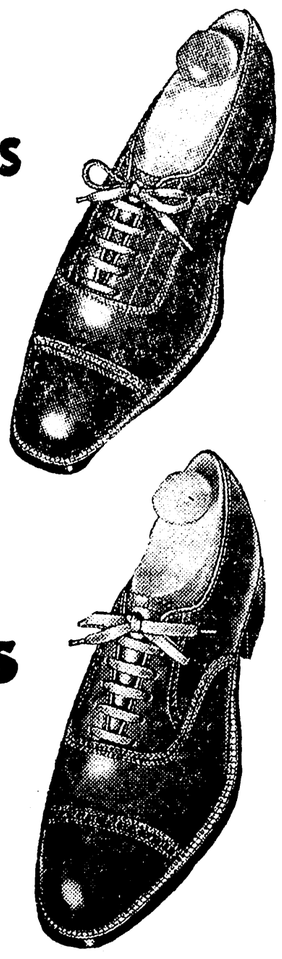

Mitchell played regularly in left field last season and had a .309 batting average. Tucker batted .178.

Those who have not returned contracts are Pitchers Bob Lemon, (23-11) and Mike Garcia (11-11), Second Baseman Bob Avila (.295), and Fielder Allie Clark (.215).

Eddie Erdelatz, Navy's new head football coach, scouted a game for Earl Blaik of Army when the latter was coach at Dartmouth.

'IF MEN' LOOM BIG AS MAJORS GO TO WORK

ALL BIG LEAGUE OUTFITS FACING QUESTION MARKS

Some Of Biggest Stars Of Game Will Have To Show They're Ready

By Joe Reichler

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—As the major league training season gets under way in earnest next week, the "if" men in baseball are clouding up the skies for all clubs.

There isn't a club in the majors that doesn't have at least one "if" man. These "if" men are the key players who last season suffered serious injuries or illness, athletes who slumped badly and must come back tp put their team in contention, and men who were acquired in trades.

All 16 clubs are dotted by human question marks.

The most important "iffer" is Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox. No one knows for certain whether his left elbow is fully healed. If Williams cannot swing with the old smoothness, you can write off the Red Sox pennant chances.

Then there is Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees. DiMag, 36, admits last year was his most trying one.

Although his aching heels apparently behaved, he had trouble with his legs and back.

The big "if" man of the Detroit Tigers is Virgil Trucks. Hal Newhouser, nearing 31, also is on that list. Trucks, a 19-game win-Baseman Preston Ward and Outless all last year. Newhouser was able to win only 15 games last year.

The St. Louis Cardinals are an "if" club from many angles. Manager Marty Marion underwent a knee surgery and if he can't play shortstop, who will? Catcher Joe Garagiola and relief ace Ted Wilks also underwent operations, Garagiola on his shoulder and Wilks on his arm. Can Captain Enos Slaughter come back after a poor season. And who will play first?

Brooklyn has three problem pitchers, Rex Barney, Jack Banta, and southpaw Joe Hatten. The trio won 31 games in 1949 but only eight last year.

Washington wonders whether pitcher Gene Bearden has fully recovered from a sore arm.

Cincinnati is awaiting a verdict on Ewell Blackwell following his appendicitis operation. He notched 18 wins in 1950. Boston's Braves have fears over Sam Jethroe's leg, hurt last summer. They also are puzzled by Will Marshall's hitting decline. Chicago's Cubs are keeping anxious eyes on First Baseman Preston Ward and Outfielder Hal Jeffcoat.

Chicago White Sox' success depends upon the health of Shortstop Chico Carrasquel and Outfielder Al Zarilla.

Jimmy Dykes' question mark at Philadelphia are pitchers Dick Fowler and Joe Coleman and Outfielder Barny McCosky.

The St. Louis browns are hoping for Outfielder Roy Stevens to come back after a disastrous sophomore season. They also would like to see flychaser Ken Wood escape that injury bug. Cleveland, without Lou Boudreau to fill in at any infield position, is an "if" club.

The New York Giants have a problem at first base. They are experimenting with Outfielder Whitey Lockaman there with the intention of sending Monte Irvin to left field.

Except for Ralph Kiner, the entire Pittsburgh club is sorely beset by "ifs." If reports are true that Kiner will be tried at first base, then he, too, will become a question mark.

GRAMMAR CAGE TITLES CLAIMED

Barkdull Faulk Boys, Georgia Tucker Girls Win Tournament Here

Championships in the first annual Monroe Grammar School Basketball Tournament, for the schools of the Monroe city system, were claimed by the Barkdull Faulk boys and the Georgia Tucker girls.

As expected, Barkdull Faulk emerged a winner but it was by the closest as Central held the winners to a 3-12 victory. Central had an upset in the making until Barkdull Faulk came from behind in the waning minutes to tie the score, force the game into overtime, and win.

Georgia Tucker had no trouble stopping Central in the girls' final 15 to 1.

The summary of tourney results:

Boys—Central 20, Georgia Tucker 5; Barkdull Faulk 10, Sherrouse 7; Central 12, Lida Benton 9; Barkdull Faulk 13, Central 12.

Girls—Central 16, Sherrouse 9; Georgia Tucker 7, Lida Benton 2; Central 11, Barkdull Faulk 9; Georgia Tucker 15, Central 1.

The tourney was directed by Coach Bill Ruple of Neville High School with the assistance of Coach Gus Petterson, Jack Baugh, and "Baby Sister" Guerriero. Game officials were Coaches Jim Coats and Richard Salter for boys and Mrs. May Petterson for girls.

Trophies were presented first and second place winners by J. M. Boyet, superintendent of Monroe city schools.

C. P. Rowell, A. Rowell, and Tullos, each with four points, led the Barkdull Faulk boys to victory, but Central's Arnold Liles was high scorer of the final game with six points. Ann McDonald, Georgia Tucker, was high scorer in the girls' final with nine points.

New Mat Champ, Serois, In Title Bout Here Tuesday

MOBLEY TO GET CHANCE AT BELT HE ONCE OWNED

Ellis Bashara, George Cologne To Appear In Kallio's Semi-Final

"Buff" Serois, the new kingpin of the world's light heavyweight wrestlers who has never worked in these parts, will come to Monroe Tuesday night to defend his crown against the challenge of Rex Mobley, the ex-champ from Texas City, Tex., Promoter Gus Kallio announced last night.

Serois, a battler from Buffalo, N.Y., won the crown recently in a Pacific coast bout with Jack Curtis, the Vicksburg, Miss., flash who has held the belt on five different occasions, Kallio said. Serois is champ for the first time.

Mobley, the man from whom Curtis won the belt the first time eleven years ago, is confident he can bring the championship back to this section of the country.

"As soon as Rex learned that Jack had lost the title, he started special training and bombarding me with all kinds of questions about who the new champ is." Kallio said. "Rex wanted to know his weight, whether he's short or tall, young or old, how long he has been wrestling, and many other facts a wrestler likes to know about an opponent.

"I couldn't tell him anything. I don't know Serois, but it immediately went to work trying to bring him here. After contacting Serois on the telephone, I found him a mighty easy man to do business with.

"Serois said he is glad to get a chance to come to this section of the country, we had no trouble working out terms of the match, and he only asked one question about Mobley, 'has he ever met Curtis?' I told him yes, and he said that's O.K."

The title scramble will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

Appearing in the semi-final will be Ellis Bashara, the ring veteran from Norman, Okla., and George Cologne, New Orleans. Bashara and Cologne will meet in an hour time limit bout, two falls to win.

SMUGGLING DOESN'T PAY

Toronto, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Benjamin V. (Vern) Escoe, 29, of Toronto, British empire heavyweight boxing champion, was fined $500 or three months in jail yesterday for trying to smuggle $220 worth of United States cigarets into Canada Feb. 8, without paying $300 duty. Escoe pleaded guilty.

Any major league player placed on the disabled list must remain inactive for at least 30 days. Two players on the disabled list are the maximum for any team in the majors.

"Buff" Serois (above), new world's light heavyweight wrestling champion, will be introduced at Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesnight when he risks his belt against the challenge of Rex Mobley, Texas City, Tex.

Six Full Teams In Boxing Meet

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Six full teams of boxers will compete in the annual Southern Invitational Boxing Tournament here March 29-31, Louisiana State University announced today.

L.S.U. Athletic Director T. P. Heard said eight-man teams will be sent by South Carolina, Maryland, The Citadel, Miami and Virginia, and L.S.U. will enter a full squad.

Georgetown University will send representatives, Heard added.

He said L.S.U. was selected as the site of the Southern Invitational by Tournament Commissioner Kit Fitzsimmons of the University of South Carolina.

L.S.U., defending southern champion, has won the title for the past two years. Under Coach J. T. Owens, the L.S.U. squad won the Sugar Bowl Tournament for the third year in a row last Jan. 1, and, in dual meets this season, has whipped South Carolina and The Citadel while losing to Maryland.

Willie Pep Gets March Battle At New Orleans

New Orleans, Feb. 24. —(AP)—Former Featherweight Boxing Champion Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., and Carlos Chavez, Los Angeles, Calif., will meet here March 5 in a 10-round bout, Promoter Heard Ragas said today.

Pep, who lost the 126 - pound crown to Sandy Saddler at New York last September, will be appearing in New Orleans for the second time. In 1943 he decisioned Vince Dell-Orto in a 10-round fight.

LOUIS GETS T. K. O. WIN OVER WALKER

Former Champ Winner In Last Round But Fails To Knock Down Foe

San Francisco, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Joe Louis, the winner of his toughest fight since he came out of retirement last September, said today he was ready for a return match for the heavyweight championship with Ezzard Charles.

The Brown Bomber scored a technical knockout over stouthearted Andy Walker in the final round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Cow Palace last night.

A sell-out crowd of 18,000 fans, accounting for official gate receipts of $92,087.50, saw Louis batter the rangy San Francisco Negro round after round until he was arm-weary. It was his fourth win in his campaign to come back after being soundly drubbed by Charles in a 15-round bout for the title he once held.

Louis hit Walker with about every punch in the book but he couldn't floor him. He knocked the San Francisco fighter, who holds the California state title, into the ropes four times. In the final session, he caught Walker with a flurry of blows that had the California camp reeling. Referee Frankie Brown stopped the contest in 1:49 of the tenth. There was some booing by Walker fans, who thought he could have finished the battle.

In his dressing room after the match, Walker said he was sorry the fight was stopped but he wouldn't question the decision of the referee.

In three previous come - back fights Louis scored 10-round decisions over Cesar Brion and Omelio Agramonte and stopped Freddie Beshore in the fourth round.

Walker, who once served as Charles' sparring partner, said the present champion is a better boxer than Louis and is faster but he declined to predict the outcome of their next title match.

HOPES KOREA TO TO SET EXAMPLE

Truman Says U. S. Will Stand Staunch To Back U. N. Action

Chicago, Feb. 24. —(AP)— President Truman expressed hope today that the UN action in Korea and "other measures of self defense taken by the free world will restrain potential aggressors from other imperialistic ventures."

Expressing this view in a message to the chairmen of the American Association for the United Nations conference, the president added:

"The United States continues to stand ready, as it has in the pat, to explore every approach to the honorable conciliation of outstanding difficultie betwen it and any other nation.

"When, however, an aggressor strikes without provocation, the United Nations can act with determination to resist the attack."

Mr. Truman said the UN is "the world's best hope for peace."

"The United Nations, as even the Soviets should know, furnishes an important forum for the peaceful settlement of differences among nations," he added.

But he said it "has been made clear in Korea" that the UN can meet unprovoked attack.

With present emphasis on strengthening free nations to meet possible aggression, he said, it is important not to neglect hunger, misery and despair. He called these "fundamental causes of world unrest."

"And it is equally important that our attention be concentrated on another great purpose of the United Nations — promoting human rights and fundamental freedoms," he said.

The president's message was sent to Harry A. Bullis, Minneapolis, chairman of General Mills; Palmer Hoyt, Denver Post publisher; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and W. Walter Williams, Seattle businessman and former chairman of the committee on economic development.

They are co-chairmen of the association's emergency conference on U.S. responsibility for world leadership Sunday through Tuesday.

The American Association for the United Nations is a non profit educational organization devoted to building public opinion behind the UN. It has no official connection with UN.

OIL REFINERIES GETTING BUSY

Preparing To Meet Heavy Summer Demand For Gasoline

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Oil refiners are making an early start in preparing to meet a heavy summer gasoline season.

United States gasoline storage last Saturday approximated 134,598,000 barrels, only 988,000 below the all-time high established last April 1.

The heavy gasoline consumption season generally is considered to extend from April 1 to September 1.

Storage climbed 1,484,000 barrels last week. Should this rate continue gasoline stocks would exceed 140,000,000 by April.

Heavy production in recent weeks of gasoline and light heating fuel oil has foun drefineries operating at near capacity. Crude oil in above ground storage also have dropped sharply.

Last week the nation's refineries processed a record 6,444,000 barrels of crude a day. This average exceeded domestic crude production by 507,100 barrels daily.

During the previous week crude stocks dropped 3,925,000 barrels since mid-September.

This is below the level refiners consider to be the minimum crude storage needed to permit efficient processing of petroleum's four principal products.

Representatives of the refining industry last fall advised the Texas railroad commission crude stocks should be maintained at from 240,000,000 to 245,000,000 barrels.

Gasoline production last week approximated 20,425,000 barrels, compared to a week earlier, 20,009,000. Heavy fuel oil output dropped 505,000 to a total of 9,209,000 barrels.

Declines in fuel stocks reflect the switch from emphasis on heating oil output to gasoline. Light fuel oil stocks declined 3,645,000 barrels last week, with heavy oils falling 332,000.

Refinery operations this winter have been in sharp contrast to the comparatively mild 1948-49 and 1949-50 seasons. Demand for heating oils has been heavy all winter.

The Chicago edition of the Wall Street Journal this week said the heating oil-consuming season in 20 key eastern and midwestern cities has been 19.6 per cent colder this year than last year.

Domestic crude production last week averaged 5,936,000 barrels a day, an increase of 75,650 daily. Crude output should crawl past the 6,000,000 barrels a day for the second time in history shortly after March production allowables become effective.

MAN HELD

Police identified the man as Johnny Adams, 28, of Arkansas road.

Adams, being held in default of a $450 bond, was taken into custody at a downtown theater, police said.

Says Betting Agency Earned Over Four Million Annually

St. Louis, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A member of a group charged with conducting a nationwide betting business by telegraph told the senate crime investigating committee today that his business had grossed as much as four or five million dollars annually.

Sidney Wyman, the witness, testified from the stand that the business grossed about $1,000,000 during its best year.

Later Attorney Morris Shenker told officials of the committee that upon reconsideration his client, Wyman, wanted to go on record as saying the business grossed him four or five million dollars a year.

Wyman testified the business was conducted "mostly through Western Union." He denied agents of the telegraph company were given 25 per cent of the profits and said he wasn't acquainted with Western Union officials.

"People just wired their money in," Wyman said. "If they had any coming we would send it back."

Wyman admitted, under questioning, his business had sent gifts to Western Union agents, generally around Christmas time, but that the gifts usually amounted to less than $50.

Wyman was one of four men arrested last May in a raid on a St. Louis county establishment described by police as headquarters of a nationwide betting business.

He refused to testify on the nature of his business when called before the committee today. Thereafter Committee Counsel John L. Burling referred to it as "operation X."

Wyman said C. J. Rich of St. Louis was a partner in the business. Rich was one of more than 55 witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the committee but he failed to show up.

Shenker, St. Louis criminal lawyer who represented several persons at the hearing, presented a medical certificate showing Rich was suffering from heart disease. Shenker admitted that Rich had been well enough to attend to his business recently.

"Tell him to come on in here,' said Senator Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman.

Wyman said most of the telegrams his business received were addressed to East St. Louis, Ill., although headquarters of the business were in St. Louis county. Asked why, he said he and his partners felt that to be the safest method. Wyman denied he and his associates paid for police protection in East St. Louis.

John T. English, East St. Louis police commissioner, testified that funds totaling about $131,000 came into his possession between 1943 and 1949. He admitted that he personally paid federal income taxes on the money but said the funds represented "political contributions' and did not belong to him personally.

English told the committee he kept the money in a safe deposit box and doled out sums from time to time for use by the Democratic party in the area.

The committee planned to wind up its public hearings about noon tomorrow. Kefauver was the only committee member on hand today, but he announced that Senator Wiley (R.-Wis.) would arrive tomorrow.

Earlier Kefauver threatened a contempt citation against James J. Carroll, nationally known "betting commissioner,' unless Carroll appears before the committee.

That was the word from Kefauver when Shenker told him Carroll, who was subpoenaed, was ill and in Miami, Fla., Shenker insisted Carroll had not been properly notified when and where to appear.

Red of face, Kefauver replied that Carroll had better show up before the committee ends its hearings in St. Louis tomorrow.

J. E. Taylor, Missouri attorney general, and William L. Holzhausen, president of the St Louis police board, both testified they thought a federal law prohibiting interstate transmission of racing information is necessary for effective concontrol of gambling.

Taylor told the committee that Continental Press Service of Chicago is the fountainhead of racing information throughout the country. Taylor said he had reason to believe that a syndicate formed in Chicago by remnants of the old Capone gang tried in 1946-47 to take over all racing news distribution in the mid-west.

Under questioning, Holzhausen said the influence of Charles Binaggio, a northside Kansas City Democratic leader slain last spring did not extend into the St. Louis area.

The police commissioner said, also that Governor Forrest Smith of Missouri had always given him strict instructions to enforce all state and city laws. Holzhausen said that, to his knowledge, underworld interests had made no effort to infiltrate the St. Louis police department.

There is little major crime in St. Louis but organized gambling continues to be "a thorn in our side," Holzhausen said.

Accuse Truman Of Obstruction

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)—The ranking Republican member of the house ways and means committee tonight charged President Truman with obstructing intelligent consideration of tax increases.

Rep. Reed of New York demanded that Mr. Truman send the second part of his "tax package" to congress at once in order that the ways and means committee might intelligently draft a tax bill.

Unless Mrs. Truman cooperates more fully, congress won't be able to pass tax legislation until next fall, Reed warned.

The president has asked for $10,000,000,000 of tax increases now, plus perhaps $6,500,000,000 later. Reed said in a statement:

"The tactics of Mr. Truman in submitting his tax proposals piecemeal are not only confusing to the committee but also to the millions of American taxpayers.

"By refusing to provide us with his complete tax program, the president is obstructing orderly consideration of the whole tax question."

"If we do the job we should do to reduce the non-military spending of the fair deal administration it should not be necessary to take an additional $16,500,000,000 out of the taxpayers' pockets," he continued.

Thumb, Owner Back Together

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Velman M. Yeager, 41, a farmer, and his lost thumb are together again today.

An alert motorist saw the thumb on the street after Yeager's motorcycle had collided with an automobile. The motorist took the thumb to the hospital where Yeager had arrived 30 minutes earlier.

The attending physician sewed the thumb back on "with apparent good results," he reported.

Marty Furgol One Stroke Off Pace As Final Session Comes Up Today

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Tex., Feb. 24. —(AP)— Lew Worsham, former National Open champion from Oakmont, Pa., was plagued with trouble on the back nine today but came in with a two under par 70 that gave him the third round lead in the $1,0000 Houston Open.

His 54-hold 207, nine under par, left him one stroke ahead of Marty Furgol, Long Beach, Calif., whose par 72 on the 6967-yard Memorial Park course gave him a third round 208.

Worsham, with a four-under 32 on the front nine, topped one shot and put another into a lake for a penalty stroke on the backside. He wound up by seeing a three-foot putt stop on the lip of the eighteenth green cup and he had to settle for a par.

Meanwhile, Ed (Porky) Oliver, Seattle, Wash., the second round leader, and Jim Deal, Houston, the 36-hole runner - up, were having all kinds of trouble on the windswept course.

Oliver, three over par on the front nine, came in with a 77 that dropped him to a 21 total. Deal zoomed to an eight-over 80 for a 215.

Grouped at 209 were Jack Burke, Houston, Henry Ransom, St. Andrews, Ill., and John Weitzel, Harrisburg, Pa.

Holding 210's were Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., Gwen Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., E. J. Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., and Jimmie Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif.

Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, with a 69, was the only player to break 70 under the strong wind today. With his earlier 70 and 72 rounds he holds a 211 tie with Oliver and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco.

M'Neill Upset By Straight Clark In Indoor Net Event

New York, Feb. 24. —(AP)— Seventh-seeded Straight Clark of Pasadena, Calif., today upset top-seeded Don McNeill, 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0, to gain the finals of the National Indoor Tennis Championships.

Clark will meet New Yorks' Bill Talbert for the title tomorrow. Talbert whipped Ed Moylan of Trenton, N. J., 6-4, 6-3, 7-5, to move up.

The fall of McNeill, the defending champion, came a great surprise. After trailing two games to one, Clark unfurled his powerful back-court placements to eliminate the New Yorker. Near the end, the sting from McNeill's service was gone and he committed numerous errors.

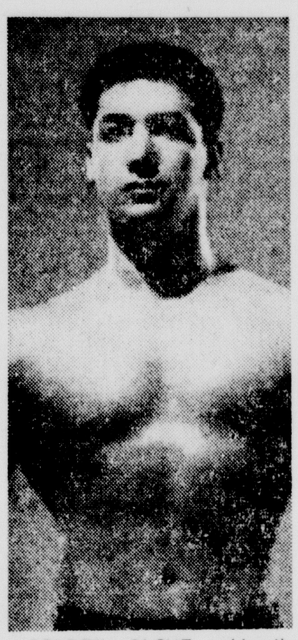

The final—and deciding — set was no contest. Visibly tired and weak from a cold, the 32-year-old McNeill made little effort to return Clark's smashing cross-court placements.

Big Ten Supports TV Ban; To Discuss Bowl Renewal

Chicago, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The faculty representatives of the Western Conference, policy making body for the group, today approved a recommendation of the athletic directors to continue banning live television of football games for another year.

In the closing session of the "Big Ten's" three - day business meeting, the directors and the faculty representatives approved a seven-man committee to meet with the Pacific Conference committee next Saturday night in Chicago to discuss renewal of the Rose Bowl pact.

The Big Ten's television policy for 1951-52 will permit experimental football telecasts and unstricted television of 12 minor sports.

GOLDEN GLOVE midsouth heavyweight champion, Louis Ladart (above), Monroe, will be participating in the divisional Western Tournament of Champions at Chicago, beginning tomorrow. Ladart, a former Neville High School athlete who was a district 155-pound prep champ in Louisiana in 1940, won the heavyweight crown as the recent Memphis, Tenn., Golden Gloves Tournament. A son of Mrs. Virginia Ladart, Monroe, the boxer is a technical sergeant in the 153th fighter squadron of the Tennessee Air National Guard.

Penn Rally Beats Engineers, 83-77

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—(AP)—University of Pennsylvania overcame a 23-point deficit tonight to capture an 83 to 77 overtime victory from Georgia Tech before 4,293 fans.

Georgia Tech's Engineers boasted the wide margin with five minutes of the second half gone, but were unable to stop Penn's tremendous surge.

After trailing throughout, Penn caught Tech at 63-63 with six and one-half minutes remaining. The score was knotted twice more before Penn went ahead with three minutes to go.

The Engineers made it 75-75 with 1:09 left, but Penn, after freezing it for the better part of a minute, failed to connect on a last-second try, and the contest went into overtime.

Penn then scored eight straight, before the Southerners could manage their lone tally.

Loyola Wolfpack Stops Southeastern, 62 To 52

New Orleans, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Loyola took an early lead and stayed in front the rest of the game tonight to defeat Southeastern Louisiana College 62-52 in a Gulf States Conference basketball game here.

Center Tom Ketchum was the difference between the teams. The six-foot seven-inch rebound artist controlled both backboards, taking high point honors with 19.

Bert Barnett led Southeastern scorers with 15 points.

U. S. Slaps Million Dollar Lien Against Cage-Fixer's Property

Meanwhile, Hogan Continues Investigation Into Bribery Cases

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The government placed a huge income tax lien today against Salvatore T. Sollazzo, who allegedly spent thousands to fix big-time college basketball games.

With interest and penalties, the government's claim amounts to $1,128,493.

The effect of the lien was to freeze Sollazzo's assets until the government can collect whatever it may be entitled to.

Sollazzo is being held without bail, accused of bribing cage stars from three New York colleges to fix basketball games. The colleges involved are Long Island University, City College of New York, and New York University.

Eight players or ex-players are said to have admitted taking $25,000 in bribes for their part in the alleged fix.

The income tax lien lists allegedly unpaid taxes running into hundreds of thousands of dollars for each of the years from 1943 through 1947.

There was no indication from the government as to the source of Sollazzo's income during those years. He is a jewelry manufacturer.

The internal revenue bureau, it was learned, went over Sollazzo's income status months ago, long before the big basketball scandal broke here last week end.

In another development, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today he would favor taking college basketball out of Madison Square Garden "unless some means can be found to keep the lice from entering into the picture and corrupting those boys."

Long Island University already has cancelled its remaining basketball games for this season, including its last two at the garden. Five other schools also have pulled out of the garden since the scandal broke.

Dewey made his remarks to newsmen at La Guardia Field on his way to Washington. He told them:

"The colleges have a very serious moral problem to settle among themselves, and that is whether this is not exploitation and commercialization of the youngsters on their team."

District Attorney Hogan, meanwhile, pushed ahead with his probe of the big basketball fix—the fourth and largest bribe scandal to hit the college sport since 1945.

For the second day in a row, Ed Gard sho wedup at Hogan's office for more questioning.

Hogan said he wanted to talk further with Gard about the former L. I. U. player's association with Sollazzo.

The district attorney has said that Gard was the first player to accept bribes from Sollazzo. That was last season when Gard was captain of L. I. U. 's basketball team. He did not play this season.

Gard, it is alleged, then drew into the fix plan Sherman White, LeRoy Smith and Adolph Bigos, all stars of the current L. I. U. team. The four are said to have admitted fixing seven games—three last season and four this season.

Gard also is accused of acting as Sollazzo's go-between in bribing three stars of CCNY'S national championship cage squad—Ed Warner, Ed Roman and Al Roth. He also is alleged to have had dealings with another player, Connie Schaff of N. Y. U.

Hogan said he plans to talk further with Roman to try to find out what has become of the bribes he allegedly took. Most of the bribe money has been uncovered and seized from the other players.

Hogan clammed up quickly when newsmen tried to draw him out on whether the scandal has roots as yet uncovered.

When asked if other colleges or players would be brought into the probe, the district attorney said:

"I don't care to answer any questions with regard to other schools and players. No matter how I would answer, it would be unfair to the school and the player."

GOLDEN GLOVERS NEARING FINALS

Divisional Championships Open At Chicago, New York Tomorrow

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Crack amateur fighters, survivors of an original field of some 27,500, will shoot for divisional championships next week in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at Chicago and New York.

The Western Tournament, bringing together champions from 46 centers in 22 states, will be staged in Chicago Stadium Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights with the finals a week later.

The eastern eliminations, drawing from 13 centers in six states, Washington, D. C., and Puerto Rico, will be staged simultaneously at New York's Ridgewood Grove and Madison Square Garden.

The eastern champions, to be crowned Wednesday, will meet Chicago's winners for national titles in the inter-city bouts here March 19.

Some 20,000 amateurs — stevedores, soldiers and college men — took part in the western tournaments which stretched from Chicago to Los Angeles, down to Nashville and Memphis in the deep south to Fort Worth in the southwest.

There were some 7,500 in the field which originally started slugging it out in the east. These included Puerto Ricans, who annually come up with stout contenders in the lighter weights, and marines from Cherry Point and Camp LeJeune in North Carolina.

From these fistic marksmen — if we are to judge from experience —will come the professional ring's champions of tomorrow.

The greatest fighters of the age hammered out their reputations first in the Golden Gloves. Outstanding of the gloves graduates are Joe Louis, the Brown Bomber who ruled heavyweight ranks for 13 years, and Ray Robinson, the welterweight and middleweight king who is described as pound-for-pound the greatest fighter of modern times.

The present heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles, and the lightweight titleholder, Joey Maxim, are other distinguished graduates of the Golden Gloves, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune, New York Daily News and dozens of other newspapers.

Other champions who got their start in this amateur classic are: triple - titleholder Barney Ross, light-heavies Gus Lesnevich, Bob Olin and Melio Bettina; middleweights Tony Zale and Solly Kreiger; featherweights Petey Scalzo and Sol Bartello; bantamweights Lew Salica and Harold Dade.

The Golden Gloves were started 25 years ago. The first team of eight champions — 112 pounds through heavyweight — was crowned March 28, 1927, at Madison Square Garden. Chicago launched its tournament a year later and the inter-city series followed.

Ags Sure Of Tie In Southwest Race

Houston, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Texas Aggies clinched at least a tie for their first Southwest Conference basketball championship in 28 years at the Rice field gym tonight, beating the Rice Owls, 45-42, in a thrilling battle before about 5,000 fans.

The Aggies had a hard time repeating for the conference title between 1923 and 1951, and had a hard time preserving a lead they held from the opening minutes against Rice.

Main reason was that the Aggies lost key man Walt Davis on personal fouls with 10 minutes and 37 seconds of the game remaining. Davis left the ball game with the score 38-31 in favor of A. and M. But the Aggies had to fight tooth and toe nail the rest of the way to win.

The Owls pulled up to 42-45 with a minute and five seconds of the game remaining. Jewell McDowell took over from there as the Aggies froze out the remainder of the game.

McDowell led scores for A and M. with 19 points.

YANKEES

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, has worked out an agreement with Jack Jensen whereby the latter will try out his hand as an infielder and pitcher as well as an outfielder.

Stengel says Jensen has the second best curve ball and fast ball of any man on the team. He wants to turn the outfielder into a pitcher. Jensen has objected because he feels that, as a pitcher, he might be farmed out to a minor league team for experience.

As an outfielder he is assured of a job with the world champions.

Stengel said today Jensen will be given a fair trial in the outfield, at third base and then on the mound during the club's spring training program here.

The sun came out again here today, drying out the park, wet down by yesterday's light rain. This afternoon there was an inter-squad practice game.

ATHLETICS

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Philadelphia Athletics' Manager Jimmy Dykes told his squad to take the day off tomorrow.

"Go fishing. Go to the beach or anything else you like. Only stay away from the ball park," he told them after practice today. Dykes said it was strictly a reward by the manager for a hard week's work.

PHILLIES

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Ken Johnson, Philadelphia Phillies' southpaw pitcher was injured today for the second time this week.

Eddie Waitkus lined a fast one through the box that struck Ken just below the left elbow. On Thursday Johnson was similarly struck on the toe by a drive off the bat of Stan Lopata.

Trainer Frank Wiechec administered first aid and, although there was no indication of a fracture, Johnson was ordered off the field for x-ray examinations.

Earlier in the day, practice was interrupted when "Firemen Jim" Konstanty, last year's hero relief hurler, made his appearance. Jim arrived a week late because he has been on a tour of U.S. army camps in Europe.

WHITE SOX

Palm Springs, Calif., Feb. 24. —(AP)—After four workouts that appeared to be on the leisurely side, Manager Paul Richards of the Chicago White Sox today stepped up the pace for his pitching staff. Louis Aloma, Cuban pitcher, arrived to complete the staff of 18 hurlers. He has been playing in the Cuban League this winter and is in excellent shape.

TIGERS

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Jerry Priddy checked into the Detroit Tiger spring training camp today, the third infielder to report early.

Priddy reported to Manager Red Rolfe and then set out to find a house before practice for infielders and outfielders opens next Thursday. Shortstop Johnny Lipon and Bob Mavis, a recruit from Toledo, were the other early infield arrivals.

Rolfe drove his batterymen through a two-hour session today in perfect weather, watched for a third straight day by Outfielder Vic Wertz. Though he hasn't signed a contract, Wertz insists that his salary difficulties are not serious.

CUBS

Avalon, Calif., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs today put his squad of 33 players through their first drill of the season. The pitchers worked out under the eyes of Charley Root, a long time Cub pitching star, who is starting a career as a Cub coach. Frisch has high hopes to retaining Lefty Bob Schultz, who won 25 and lost 6 for Nashville last year, and Cal McLish, who won 20 and lost 11 for tailend Los Angeles.

RED SOX

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Manager Steve O'Neill indicated today the Boston Red Sox infield was wide open as far as Lou Boudreau is concerned.

"Boudreau may go well and if he does you can't keep him out," stout Steve said.

Boudreau slowed somewhat the last two seasons after his great year in 1948 when he managed Cleveland Indians to the world championship.

When the Sox signed him this winter he was regarded by most observers as utility player and pinch hitter.

BRAVES

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Busiest man in the Boston Braves' spring training camp today was Trainer Doc Lacks. Six squad members were battling lagrippe and four others had heavy colds.

Lacks was running around with pills and medication for: Earl Torgeson, Walt Linden, Normie Roy, Del Crandall, Bob Chipman, Don Conley, Max Surkont, Walker Cooper, Chey Nichols and Dick Kelly.

GIANTS

Sanford, Fla., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Manager Leo Durocher has bestowed upon Veteran Righthander Larry Jansen the honor of pitching the first inning of the training season's opening intra-equad game tomorrow for the New York Giants.

It will be a seven-inning game with six other pitchers working an inning apiece. The other hurlers selected by Durocher are Jim Hearn, Sal Maglie, Dave Koslo Sheldon Jones, Rookie Norman Fox and former American Leaguer Allen Gettel.

SUNGLOW SCORES IN WIDENER 'CAP

Brookmeade Horse Beats Out Three Rings In Mighty Stretch Drive

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24 —(AP)— A mighty effort in the final few yards of the stretch swept Sunglow to victory in the $50,000-added Widener Handicap at Hialeah race track today and earned the Brookmeade stable the richest purse in Florida racing history.

The chestnut colt's final surge carried him past the favored Three Rings to a length and a quarter triumph over a near record field of 16 handicap stars and won $54,100 for Brookemeade, last year's top money winning stable.

The purse, $150 higher than the previous record of $53,950 collected by The Rhymer in the 1942 Widener, brought the four-year-old Sunglow's total winnings to $134,350. The gross value of today's race was $72,700.

Doug Dodson became the first jockey to win the Widener three times as he guided Sunglow to his spectacular stretch victory before an audience of 22,688. Dodson won the race—highlight of the Florida winter season—on Armed in 1946 and 1947.

Sunglow had to survive a foul claim by Hedley Woodhouse, Three Rings' rider, before entering the winner's circle. Woodhouse charged that Sunglow moved over against Three Rings in the stretch and forced him off stride.

Dodson did not deny that his mount bumped Three Rings, but contended that Three Rings was drifting out from the inside and added that he didn't believe the collision had any effect on the final outcome of the race.

Sunglow, coupled in the entries with Brookmeade's Going Away, paid $9, $4.20 and $3.10. Three Rings returned $6.40 and $4.50. Rokeby stable's County Delight, who was third by a neck, paid $4.60.

Mitchell, Tucker Agree To Terms With Indians

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 24 —(AP)—Outfielders Dale Mitchell and Thurman Tucker returned signed contracts to the Cleveland Indians today.

The Indians would not tell the salaries involved.

That left only four contracts outstanding.

Mitchell played regularly in left field last season and had a .309 batting average. Tucker batted .178.

Those who have not returned contracts are Pitchers Bob Lemon, (23-11) and Mike Garcia (11-11), Second Baseman Bob Avila (.295), and Fielder Allie Clark (.215).

Eddie Erdelatz, Navy's new head football coach, scouted a game for Earl Blaik of Army when the latter was coach at Dartmouth.

HOPES KOREA TO TO SET EXAMPLE

Truman Says U. S. Will Stand Staunch To Back U. N. Action

Chicago, Feb. 24. —(AP)— President Truman expressed hope today that the UN action in Korea and "other measures of self defense taken by the free world will restrain potential aggressors from other imperialistic ventures."

Expressing this view in a message to the chairmen of the American Association for the United Nations conference, the president added:

"The United States continues to stand ready, as it has in the pat, to explore every approach to the honorable conciliation of outstanding difficultie betwen it and any other nation.

"When, however, an aggressor strikes without provocation, the United Nations can act with determination to resist the attack."

Mr. Truman said the UN is "the world's best hope for peace."

"The United Nations, as even the Soviets should know, furnishes an important forum for the peaceful settlement of differences among nations," he added.

But he said it "has been made clear in Korea" that the UN can meet unprovoked attack.

With present emphasis on strengthening free nations to meet possible aggression, he said, it is important not to neglect hunger, misery and despair. He called these "fundamental causes of world unrest."

"And it is equally important that our attention be concentrated on another great purpose of the United Nations — promoting human rights and fundamental freedoms," he said.

The president's message was sent to Harry A. Bullis, Minneapolis, chairman of General Mills; Palmer Hoyt, Denver Post publisher; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and W. Walter Williams, Seattle businessman and former chairman of the committee on economic development.

They are co-chairmen of the association's emergency conference on U.S. responsibility for world leadership Sunday through Tuesday.

The American Association for the United Nations is a non profit educational organization devoted to building public opinion behind the UN. It has no official connection with UN.

OIL REFINERIES GETTING BUSY

Preparing To Meet Heavy Summer Demand For Gasoline

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Tex., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Oil refiners are making an early start in preparing to meet a heavy summer gasoline season.

United States gasoline storage last Saturday approximated 134,598,000 barrels, only 988,000 below the all-time high established last April 1.

The heavy gasoline consumption season generally is considered to extend from April 1 to September 1.

Storage climbed 1,484,000 barrels last week. Should this rate continue gasoline stocks would exceed 140,000,000 by April.

Heavy production in recent weeks of gasoline and light heating fuel oil has foun drefineries operating at near capacity. Crude oil in above ground storage also have dropped sharply.

Last week the nation's refineries processed a record 6,444,000 barrels of crude a day. This average exceeded domestic crude production by 507,100 barrels daily.

During the previous week crude stocks dropped 3,925,000 barrels since mid-September.

This is below the level refiners consider to be the minimum crude storage needed to permit efficient processing of petroleum's four principal products.

Representatives of the refining industry last fall advised the Texas railroad commission crude stocks should be maintained at from 240,000,000 to 245,000,000 barrels.

Gasoline production last week approximated 20,425,000 barrels, compared to a week earlier, 20,009,000. Heavy fuel oil output dropped 505,000 to a total of 9,209,000 barrels.

Declines in fuel stocks reflect the switch from emphasis on heating oil output to gasoline. Light fuel oil stocks declined 3,645,000 barrels last week, with heavy oils falling 332,000.

Refinery operations this winter have been in sharp contrast to the comparatively mild 1948-49 and 1949-50 seasons. Demand for heating oils has been heavy all winter.

The Chicago edition of the Wall Street Journal this week said the heating oil-consuming season in 20 key eastern and midwestern cities has been 19.6 per cent colder this year than last year.

Domestic crude production last week averaged 5,936,000 barrels a day, an increase of 75,650 daily. Crude output should crawl past the 6,000,000 barrels a day for the second time in history shortly after March production allowables become effective.

MAN HELD

A 28-year-old West Monroe man was in the parish jail last night charged with disorderly conduct with juvenile girls.

Police identified the man as Johnny Adams, 28, of Arkansas road.

Adams, being held in default of a $450 bond, was taken into custody at a downtown theater, police said.

Maybe we should warn optimists right now. Don't eat chestnuts in the dark.

Says Betting Agency Earned Over Four Million Annually

St. Louis, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A member of a group charged with conducting a nationwide betting business by telegraph told the senate crime investigating committee today that his business had grossed as much as four or five million dollars annually.

Sidney Wyman, the witness, testified from the stand that the business grossed about $1,000,000 during its best year.

Later Attorney Morris Shenker told officials of the committee that upon reconsideration his client, Wyman, wanted to go on record as saying the business grossed him four or five million dollars a year.

Wyman testified the business was conducted "mostly through Western Union." He denied agents of the telegraph company were given 25 per cent of the profits and said he wasn't acquainted with Western Union officials.

"People just wired their money in," Wyman said. "If they had any coming we would send it back."

Wyman admitted, under questioning, his business had sent gifts to Western Union agents, generally around Christmas time, but that the gifts usually amounted to less than $50.

Wyman was one of four men arrested last May in a raid on a St. Louis county establishment described by police as headquarters of a nationwide betting business.

He refused to testify on the nature of his business when called before the committee today. Thereafter Committee Counsel John L. Burling referred to it as "operation X."

Wyman said C. J. Rich of St. Louis was a partner in the business. Rich was one of more than 55 witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the committee but he failed to show up.

Shenker, St. Louis criminal lawyer who represented several persons at the hearing, presented a medical certificate showing Rich was suffering from heart disease. Shenker admitted that Rich had been well enough to attend to his business recently.

"Tell him to come on in here," said Senator Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman.

Wyman said most of the telegrams his business received were addressed to East St. Louis, Ill., although headquarters of the business were in St. Louis county. Asked why, he said he and his partners felt that to be the safest method. Wyman denied he and his associates paid for police protection in East St. Louis.

John T. English, East St. Louis police commissioner, testified that funds totaling about $131,000 came into his possession between 1943 and 1949. He admitted that he personally paid federal income taxes on the money but said the funds represented "political contributions' and did not belong to him personally.

English told the committee he kept the money in a safe deposit box and doled out sums from time to time for use by the Democratic party in the area.

The committee planned to wind up its public hearings about noon tomorrow. Kefauver was the only committee member on hand today, but he announced that Senator Wiley (R.-Wis.) would arrive tomorrow.

Earlier Kefauver threatened a contempt citation against James J. Carroll, nationally known "betting commissioner," unless Carroll appears before the committee.

That was the word from Kefauver when Shenker told him Carroll, who was subpoenaed, was ill and in Miami, Fla., Shenker insisted Carroll had not been properly notified when and where to appear.

Red of face, Kefauver replied that Carroll had better show up before the committee ends its hearings in St. Louis tomorrow.

J. E. Taylor, Missouri attorney general, and William L. Holzhausen, president of the St. Louis police board, both testified they thought a federal law prohibiting interstate transmission of racing information is necessary for effective concontrol of gambling.

Taylor told the committee that Continental Press Service of Chicago is the fountainhead of racing information throughout the country. Taylor said he had reason to believe that a syndicate formed in Chicago by remnants of the old Capone gang tried in 1946-47 to take over all racing news distribution in the mid-west.

Under questioning, Holzhausen said the influence of Charles Binaggio, a northside Kansas City Democratic leader slain last spring did not extend into the St. Louis area.

The police commissioner said, also that Governor Forrest Smith of Missouri had always given him strict instructions to enforce all state and city laws. Holzhausen said that, to his knowledge, underworld interests had made no effort to infiltrate the St. Louis police department.

There is little major crime in St. Louis but organized gambling continues to be "a thorn in our side," Holzhausen said.

Accuse Truman Of Obstruction

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)—The ranking Republican member of the house ways and means committee tonight charged President Truman with obstructing intelligent consideration of tax increases.

Rep. Reed of New York demanded that Mr. Truman send the second part of his "tax package" to congress at once in order that the ways and means committee might intelligently draft a tax bill.

Unless Mrs. Truman cooperates more fully, congress won't be able to pass tax legislation until next fall, Reed warned.

The president has asked for $10,000,000,000 of tax increases now, plus perhaps $6,500,000,000 later, Reed said in a statement:

"The tactics of Mr. Truman in submitting his tax proposals piecemeal are not only confusing to the committee but also to the millions of American taxpayers.

"By refusing to provide us with his complete tax program, the president is obstructing orderly consideration of the whole tax question."

"If we do the job we should do to reduce the non-military spending of the fair deal administration it should not be necessary to take an additional $16,500,000,000 out of the taxpayers' pockets," he continued.

Thumb, Owner Back Together

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 24. —(AP)—Velman M. Yeager, 41, a farmer, and his lost thumb are together again today.

An alert motorist saw the thumb on the street after Yeager's motorcycle had collided with an automobile. The motorist took the thumb to the hospital where Yeager had arrived 30 minutes earlier.

The attending physician sewed the thumb back on "with apparent good results," he reported.

in the lowest-priced field!

NEW "SAFETY-FLOW RIDE"

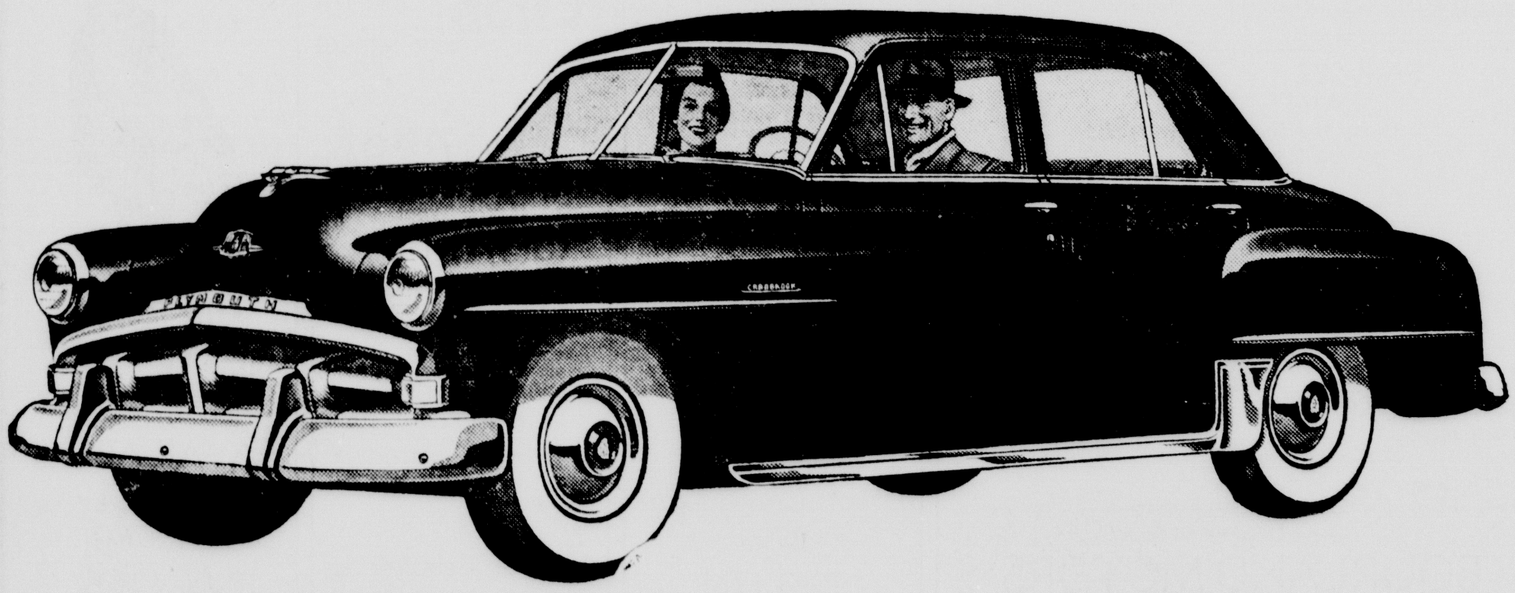

A completely new use of hydraulics to give you shock protection never possible before. New Oriflow shock absorbers, combined with balanced springing and other engineering factors, bring you new driving ease, comfort and freedom from fatigue. New safety, too — since the car has better roadability and is easy to control on rough roads.

BRILLIANT NEW STYLING

With a graceful yet massive new grille, new bumper design, new flowing roof lines, a 15% larger rear window and other style advancements, Plymouth is literally new every way you look at it. Inside, there's a new instrument panel, new trim, a wide variety of rich fabrics and a degree of color harmony never available before in the lowest-priced field.

OTHER NEW FEATURES

New electric windshield wipers eliminate the need for a vacuum booster, since they clean at a constant rate under all driving conditions. A new by-pass cooling system, standard on all models, means fast warm-up with full engine protection under all conditions. A new radiator pressure cap increases the cooling capacity and also helps keep water or anti-freeze from boiling away. A new "T-handle" hand brake pulls easily, sets positively, and releases at a turn of the handle. And there are many other mechanical advances.

the new

with still greater value for you

GREAT ENGINEERING

You also get all the fine features that have already made Plymouth "the low-priced car most like the high-priced cars." You get Safety-Rim Wheels that keep the tire on straight and protect you in case of a blowout . . . Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes with two extra hydraulic cylinders in the front wheels for smoother, more predictable stops . . . high-performance 97-horsepower engine with 7.0 to 1 compression ratio . . . and a long list of other features that Plymouth, and Plymouth only, offers in the lowest-priced field!

But you make the comparison! Look at all the low-priced cars and drive them all. Compare the features. Then decide! Your nearby Plymouth dealer would like to arrange a demonstration.

WAITING UNTIL "SOMETHING GOES WRONG" IS THE EXPENSIVE WAY TO RUN YOUR CAR

In view of the extensive cut back in the production of automobiles and trucks, due to our National Defense Program . . . it is more important NOW THAN EVER BEFORE to take care of your present car or truck. It may have to last you for a long time!

IF YOU WANT TO MAKE YOUR CAR LAST LONGER

YOUR AUTHORIZED AUTOMOBILE CAR AND TRUCK DEALER

URGES YOU TO:

1. Keep the tire pressure at the exact figure—no more, no less.
2. Criss-cross tires every so often, using the spare.
3. Keep speed down, especially if you're driving on synthetic rubber.
4. Make sure your wheels are aligned properly.
5. Fill your gas tank often—air in the tank mixes with the gas, and air contains moisture which is harmful to the motor.
6. Make sure all battery connections are tight and corrosion-free.
7. Check brakes every 5,000 miles.
8. Have a complete change of grease in the rear end and transmission twice a year.
9. Have a chassis lubrication every 1,000 miles.
10. AND HAVE A COMPLETE CHECK-UP TWICE A YEAR.

MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The stock market made a little headway today in the slowest session in nearly four months.

The automobile section was easily the most favored on the buying side with gains running to more than a point at times.

Hudson was the first favorite of that division, but Chrysler, General Motors and Studebaker soon were actively sought by buyers.

The volume of trading came to an estimated 700,000 shares, the slowest short session since the first Saturday in November. A week ago the volume came to 820,000 shares.

MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The stock market made a little headway today in the slowest session in nearly four months.

The automobile section was easily the most favored on the buying side with gains running to more than a point at times.

Hudson was the first favorite of that division, but Chrysler, General Motors and Studebaker soon were actively sought by buyers.

The volume of trading came to an estimated 700,000 shares, the slowest short session since the first Saturday in November. A week ago the volume came to 820,000 shares.

NEWS FROM THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The citizenship program sponsored by the Louisiana State Library, announced in this column last week is getting off to a fine start. The Ouachita Parish Public Library is cooperating in every way with clubs and groups interested in promoting a better citizenship among our people. Many people are not aware that apathy on the part of citizens is responsible for so many of the ills of our government. Promotion of good citizenship has been selected as the main project of the parish librarians in the state of Louisiana for the year 1951, with special emphasis being given to this project during the month of March. Several of the clubs have already planned programs dealing with citizenship. On February 22, Mrs. Dorothy Romero, assistant librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library talked to the Civitan Club about this project and they pledged their support. On the same day Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library gave a radio broadcast honoring George Washington as the first citizen of our country, as part of the program of the Fort Miro Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution. On March 2 the Quota Club is sponsoring a book review of the book "Red Masquerade" by Angela Calormis. This is a true story of a girl who masqueraded as a member of the Communist party in order to gain information about their activities. This is a startling book and one that every citizen should read or hear. Mrs. Thomas Jett, one of the outstanding reviewers of the Twin Cities and a member of the Quota Club is giving this review. It is open to the public and is a most worthwhile project. We would be interested in hearing about the citizenship programs of other clubs.

If you are called upon to plan a program during the month of March, why not plan it around the subject of citizenship? The Ouachita Parish Public Library will be glad to help you plan the program. We have suggested program topics. We have lists of books on the subject of citizenship and we can borrow films for you from the Louisiana State Library.

The films are 16 mm sound films and may be borrowed free from the state library. A list of these films called "Visualizing Citizenship" has been prepared by the state library. You may secure one of these lists at your local library. One of the films taken from this list was borrowed for the use of the Missionary Society of the Claiborne Church and shown on Tuesday night of this past week. It was called "Fight for Better Schools." This is the dramatic story of how the citizens of Arlington County, Virginia, planned and worked to raise their schools from among the nation's poorest to a level which has been called an educator's dream. This film emphasizes the importance of an active and informed citizenry and shows what every town can do to improve its school system. This film hould be enjoyed by P.-T. A. groups especially. Most satisfactory reports were given by the ladies who saw the film.

There are many other films available from the same source. "Are You a Good Citizen" is a film 11 minutes in length which explains through several dramatized episodes, the characteristics of a good citizen. "The Bill of Rights" is 20 minutes long. It portrays by means of dramatic reenactment some of the events influencing the colonists' demand for freedom of speech, religion, and person, culminating in the adoption of the first 10 amendments to the Constitution known as the Bill of Rights.

Another film of importance is "Does It Matter What You Think?" This film is 15 minutes in length. It demonstrates how opinions and attitudes are influenced by the printed word, radio, movies and discussion. It presents the challenge that organized public opinion can accomplish wonders when rightly used and emphasizes the importance of an individual's beliefs and of his expressing them by voting and by group action.

"Searchlight on the Nations' is 20 minutes long. It deals with the international exchange of information through modern communications such as press, radio, film and telephoto. Men are still separated from each other. Half of the human race does not have ears to hear. This film tells how the United Nations is working to break down these barriers to progress and to promote international understanding and good will by the free interchange of ideas.

These are only a few of the films listed in the pamphlet "Visualizing Citizenship." If you are going to need one of these films, be sure to request it early. Your librarians will be glad to get it for you.

NEWS FROM THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The citizenship program sponsored by the Louisiana State Library, announced in this column last week is getting off to a fine start. The Ouachita Parish Public Library is cooperating in every way with clubs and groups interested in promoting a better citizenship among our people. Many people are not aware that apathy on the part of citizens is responsible for so many of the ills of our government. Promotion of good citizenship has been selected as the main project of the parish librarians in the state of Louisiana for the year 1951, with special emphasis being given to this project during the month of March. Several of the clubs have already planned programs dealing with citizenship. On February 22, Mrs. Dorothy Romero, assistant librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library talked to the Civitan Club about this project and they pledged their support. On the same day Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library gave a radio broadcast honoring George Washington as the first citizen of our country, as part of the program of the Fort Miro Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution. On March 2 the Quota Club is sponsoring a book review of the book "Red Masquerade" by Angela Calormis. This is a true story of a girl who masqueraded as a member of the Communist party in order to gain information about their activities. This is a startling book and one that every citizen should read or hear. Mrs. Thomas Jett, one of the outstanding reviewers of the Twin Cities and a member of the Quota Club is giving this review. It is open to the public and is a most worthwhile project.

We would be interested in hearing about the citizenship programs of other clubs.

If you are called upon to plan a program during the month of March, why not plan it around the subject of citizenship? The Ouachita Parish Public Library will be glad to help you plan the program. We have suggested program topics. We have lists of books on the subject of citizenship and we can borrow films for you from the Louisiana State Library.

The films are 16 mm sound films and may be borrowed free from the state library. A list of these films called "Visualizing Citizenship" has been prepared by the state library. You may secure one of these lists at your local library. One of the films taken from this list was borrowed for the use of the Missionary Society of the Claiborne Church and shown on Tuesday night of this past week. It was called "Fight for Better Schools." This is the dramatic story of how the citizens of Arlington County, Virginia, planned and worked to raise their schools from among the nation's poorest to a level which has been called an educator's dream. This film emphasizes the importance of an active and informed citizenry and shows what every town can do to improve its school system. This film hould be enjoyed by P.-T. A. groups especially. Most satisfactory reports were given by the ladies who saw the film.

There are many other films available from the same source. "Are You a Good Citizen" is a film 11 minutes in length which explains through several dramatized episodes, the characteristics of a good citizen. "The Bill of Rights'" is 20 minutes long. It portrays by means of dramatic reenactment some of the events influencing the colonists' demand for freedom of speech, religion, and person, culminating in the adoption of the first 10 amendments to the Constitution known as the Bill of Rights.

Another film of importance is "Does It Matter What You Think?" This film is 15 minutes in length. It demonstrates how opinions and attitudes are influenced by the printed word, radio, movies and discussion. It presents the challenge that organized public opinion can accomplish wonders when rightly used and emphasizes the importance of an individual's beliefs and of his expressing them by voting and by group action.

"Searchlight on the Nations' is 20 minutes long. It deals with the international exchange of information through modern communications such as press, radio, film and telephoto. Men are still separated from each other. Half of the human race does not have ears to hear. This film tells how the United Nations is working to break down these barriers to progress and to promote international understanding and good will by the free interchange of ideas.

These are only a few of the films listed in the pamphlet "Visualizing Citizenship." If you are going to need one of these films, be sure to request it early. Your librarians will be glad to get it for you.

Miss George Nell Anthony Bride Of Lt. D. W. Bradford

Marriage Solemnized In Historic Mt. Olivet Episcopal Church In Pineville

Historic Mt. Olivet Episcopal church in Pineville, La., was the scene, February the third, of the marriage of Miss George Nell Antony daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. George Claiborne Antony of Alexandria and Lt. Daniel Wayne Bradford of Monroe, La. The candlelit ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Rayford McLean in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends who were escorted down the aisle by the formally attired groomsmen, Charles Reid, Jr., R. L. Davis, Jr., of Monroe, Preston Fergus of Tyler, Tex., and Louis Leatherman of Pineville.

A beautiful setting for the ceremony was created by the placement of tall white Marie Antoinette baskets overflowing with white carnations, white gladioli and white stock against a background of palms and ferns. Artistic clusters of white stock tied with silver tulle marked each pew down the center aisle. Myriad cathedral tapers in candelabra of graduated lengths were lighted just before the ceremony, by altar boys in black and white vestments.

The organist, Miss Mildred Vallery, rendered a prenuptial concert and accompanied the soloist, Fred Tannehill, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Springtime colors, rose pink, aqua and leaf green, were accentuated in the billowy tulle gowns worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Anne Hill of Alexandria, Miss Sara Nelson and Miss Mary Farlow of Fort Worth, Tex., Miss Rosemary Leatherman of Pineville. They carried arm bouquets of carnations dyed to harmonize with their gowns.

The maid of honor, Miss Carolyn Peters of Monroe, wore a leaf green tulle gown and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses tied with long lengths of green satin ribbon.

Lieutenant Bradford, in air force uniform was attended by Graham Hughes of Monroe.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Samuel Antony wore the traditional wedding gown of ivory Duchess satin fashioned with deep yoke of marquisette edged with a narrow bertha, embroidered in pearls. The sleeves puffed high at the shoulders, were long and tight fitting .The skirt extremely full ended in a court train. Her only piece of jewelry was the bridegroom's gift, a small platinum watch.

The short veil of bridal illusion and heirloom lace was caught to a cap of tulle and pearls. White orchids tied with long lengths of narrow satin ribbon caught with valley lilies, surmounted the ivory bound prayer book carried by the bride.

Following the double-ring ceremony a reception was held at the parish house adjoining the church where considerable beauty of detail was observed in the floral decor. A cathedralesque atmosphere was created by hundreds of tapers burning in the background. White gladioli and white stock overflowed from tall floor standards.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Harvey Bardwell, stood in the receiving line with members of the wedding party. Mrs. Bardwell wore a rose colored crepe model with small rose colored, advanced spring model hat and elbow length rose colored gloves.

The bride's table, overlaid with handsome Point Venise lace, was centrally adorned with a wide spreading plaque of white stock and white carnations flanked by tall silver candelabra supporting white tapers. Silver trays held individual wedding cakes served with frosted punch.

The wedding cake, a work of art, was three-tiered and beaut

Local Composers Will Be Presented In Open Program

Musical Coterie Is Presenting Native And Resident Composers In Special Program At Northeast Louisiana State College

The Musical Coterie is presenting in Open Program—native and resident composers of Monroe—March 16 at Brown Hall, Northwest Louisiana State College.

Approaching music from the creative angle, the Coterie interviewed resident composers whose compositions will be performed in the program.

Among the local guest composers participating in the Coterie program are: Harry M. Lemert, Head of the Department of Music at N. L. S. C.; Francis H. Burke, Brass and String instructor at N. L. S. C.; J. F. Monroe, Assistant professor of Music at N. L. S. C.; Thomas Roland Carter, N. L. S. C. student.

Only Native

Mr. Carter is the only composer native to Monroe. He was born in West Monroe in 1931. He has studied harmony and theory at N. L. S. C. with Harry Lemert and J. F. Monroe.

His "Chorale" for mixed voices, done in class here, will be his first composition to be performed.

Department Head

Harry M. Lemert, Head of the Department of Music at N. L. S. C. was born in Wellsboro, Indiana. He received his bachelor of Music Education degree from the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago and Master of Music Education degree from the Vander-Cook School of Music, Chicago.

He had Advanced Graduate Work in musicology, theory and music education at George Peabody college, Nashville, and Advanced Graduate work toward doctorate (completing this program now) at the University of Texas, Austin.

Mr. Lemert is also a graduate of Army School of Music in Washington, D. C. In the spring of 1950 Mr. Lemert won a first place award from the Louisiana Federation of Music Clubs.

The composition that received the award will be performed March 16th. Quoting Mr. Lemert, "This is the first performance of my "Trio for Piano, Clarinet and Viola."

It is cast in the form of an "instrumental trio partly as the result of my personal interest in this particular combination and partly because of the availability of performers on these instruments. Work was begun on it before the announcement of the competition in which it received the first place award. The announcement of the competition did, however, help to get it finished."

N. L. S. C. Instructor

Francis H. Burke was born in Atlanta, Georgia; during his high school years he was always active in the band and orchestra on trumpet, baritone, tympani, string bass, and violin.

He attended Miami University, Oxford, Ohio for one year as a science student, but still performed on French horn in band and orchestra. Attended second year at Shenandoah Conservatory, Dayton Virginia majoring in violin and theory. Attended University of Miami, Coral Gables, Florida, graduated with a B. A. degree major in music, minor in zoology.

He studied violin and composition at the University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona where he graduated in 1947 with the Master Music degree.

Mr. Burke came to Monroe in 1947 and teaches brasses and strings at N. L. S. C. This versatile musician says the organ is the greatest instrument in existence due to its virtually unlimited resources of dynamic and tonal combinations all under the control of one player.

He has invented a device for expanding the possibilities of tonal combinations on the organ, but has not secured a patent on the device.

In 1945 he wrote the piece "Carnival" to utilize the resources of the pipe organ and yet be adaptable to the new technique of playing necessary to utilize his own device. "Carnival" will be performed March 16th.

Assistant Professor

J. F. Monroe was born in Rienzi, Mississippi. He did undergraduate work in music at Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and Baylor University; graduate work at American Conservatory of Music, Chicago and University of North Carolina. His most important teachers were Severin Eisenberger and Daniel Ericourt at the Cincinnati Conservatory; Dr. Leo Sowerby at the American Conservatory, Chicago and Dr. Glen Haydon, University of North Carolina.

Mr. Monroe served with the Army Air Force during World War II and is at present Assistant Professor in the Dept. of Music N. L. S. C. Concerning his compositions which will be heard March 16th Mr. Monroe said, the "Two Miniatures", songs, were the beginning of a song cycle which has not yet been completed.

These two songs had their premier performance over station W. A. C. O. in Waco, Texas, 1939. The "Sonatina" was written in 1944. It is based upon a conscious imitation of the idioms of the impressionistic school.

Information On Plants And Shrubs Injured In Freeze

"It seems the weather man has finally decided to let Louisiana return to its place in the Sunny South," states Mrs. Mildred G. Swift, Assoc. Agent.

"I'm sure many of you have been wondering what to do with the plants that were injured by the freeze. I wish I could be very encouraging and helpful but there is not much that can be done. It is too early to tell just how much injury has been done. Some plants may lose all of their foliage and then leaf out again later on. The chief danger to azaleas is from split bark on the main trunk near the ground level. Often the plant seems healthy, and then in midsummer it begins to die back. Close examination will show the injury to the bark.

"The best thing that can be done for all shrubs now is to give them a good application of a complete fertilizer, such as 4-12-4, which will help them to overcome any damage that may have been done. For azaleas and camellias there is a specially prepared fertilizer, that has an acid reaction. So if you have several of these shrubs it is well to buy azalea and camellia fertilizer.

"It is time to be getting your rosebeds in shape for the blooming season that is just ahead. The beds should be well worked, and fertilized to stimulate growth. Prune the hybrid tea roses, removing all weak and dead wood. Leave only five or six of the strongest cones. Cut these back to from 10 to 18 inches. Always cut just above an outside bud. This is important for it determines the shape of your bush. The new growth will come out in the direction in which the top bud points. So if you prune to an inside bud, you get cris cross branches in the center of your plant. Remove and burn all prunings. Then spray the bushes and the ground around with Bordeauz mixture. This is to control leaf spot. A thorough spraying with Bordeaux at this time will give you a head start on rose diseases—then if you will dust the plants about every 10 days with dusting sulphur to which arsenate of lead has been added, you'll have roses free from leaf spot and from injury from chewing insects. This is a standard dust for roses. It's the dust you see mentioned as Massey dust.

"Prune your hybrid tea roses as I suggested, but don't make the mistake of pruning your climbing roses that bloom in the spring. The bloom buds for this spring have already formed. If you prune now you will cut away much of your blooms. Climbing roses should be pruned just after flowering. At that time remove all the dead or diseased wood, weak canes, and cut back enough to keep under control.

Fashion Revue Held At The Bayou DeSiard Country Club

Latest Feminine Modes Shown At Benefit Style Show Sponsored By Delta Rho Delta

"A Preview of the 1951 Easter Parade of Styles" proved to be one of the interesting highlights during the month of February when spring and summer fashions were modeled at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club February 14.

The event was sponsored by the Delta Rho Delta National Business and Professional Women's sorority in cooperation with the Ouachita parish chapter of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis.

Mrs. Frank Breese, popular in Little Theatre and a member of the Monroe Junior Charity League, was narrator of the spring and summer feminine modes. She was lovely in an evening gown of deep pink nylon marquisette which was strapless with a stole covering one shoulder.

The famous Ouachita Parish High School ensemble, under the direction of Miss Romona Cormier, sang "Some Enchanted Evening," "Erie Canal," "Younger Than Springtime," "Cool Water" and "June is Busting out All Over."

Baskets of pink gladioli and greenery were placed at vantage points.

Nancy Snellings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Snelling, Jr., was the first model who appeared in a white pique off the shoulder model with elastic bodice.

Sue Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Brown, in a flowered silk organza with organdy collar and ruffles, was wearing a white straw bonnet with navy streamers.

Ann McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. McDonald, followed in a pink balloon sun dress with pink eyelet. She carried a black purse with white gloves.

Gladys Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brown III, was wearing a dress of chartreuse and tan stripe with buttons down the front and a full gathered skirt. Her hat was of white pique with brown trimming.

Mollie Brown, another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brown III, wore a cinnamon brown linen dress with pleated skirt and a jacket in pink wool. Her bonnet and bag were in natural straw.

Jackie and Gretchen Masur, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Masur, were next to model the youthful creations. Jackie was wearing an aqua waffle pique with a pyramid coat in white wool. The dress had an organdy yoke with puffed sleeves and rolled cuffs. Gretchen was wearing a dress of chocolate brown with tiny red buttons. She wore a white roll brim hat with red streamers and carried a white purse and red gloves.

Mrs. Gene Demmery modeled a navy blue wool suit with three-quarter length sleeves with jacket. The pockets were piped with red. She was wearing navy accessories.

Mrs. Edgar Brown was lovely in suit of navy trimmed in white linen with three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a short coat with bat-wing sleeves and stand up collar in flaming red. Her accessories were of navy trimmed in red.

Mrs. Richard Kellogg was next to model in a suit of white wine. Again the three-quarter length sleeves were featured. Her hat was lilac and other accessories were black.

Modeling a black suit with rhinestone buttons and carrying a red umbrella was Mrs. Garrett Stewart. Her beret of black straw featured French veiling with dots and velvet trim.

Mrs. Dick Bradley was wearing a pyramid taffeta lined coat with black accessories. Beneath her coat she was wearing a desert pink shantung suit.

Miss George Nell Anthony Bride Of Lt. D. W. Bradford

Marriage Solemnized In Historic Mt. Olivet Episcopal Church In Pineville

Historic Mt. Olivet Episcopal church in Pineville, La., was the scene, February the third, of the marriage of Miss George Nell Antony daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. George Claiborne Antony of Alexandria and Lt. Daniel Wayne Bradford of Monroe, La. The candlelit ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Rayford McLean in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends who were escorted down the aisle by the formally attired groomsmen, Charles Reid, Jr., R. L. Davis, Jr., of Monroe, Preston Fergus of Tyler, Tex., and Louis Leatherman of Pineville.

A beautiful setting for the ceremony was created by the placement of tall white Marie Antoinette baskets overflowing with white carnations, white gladioli and white stock against a background of palms and ferns. Artistic clusters of white stock tied with silver tulle marked each pew down the center aisle. Myriad cathedral tapers in candelabra of graduated lengths were lighted just before the ceremony, by altar boys in black and white vestments.

The organist, Miss Mildred Vallery, rendered a prenuptial concert and accompanied the soloist Fred Tannehill, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Springtime colors, rose pink, aqua and leaf green, were accentuated in the billowy tulle gowns worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Anne Hill of Alexandria, Miss Sara Nelson and Miss Mary Farlow of Fort Worth, Tex., Miss Rosemary Leatherman of Pineville. They carried arm bouquets of carnations dyed to harmonize with their gowns.

The maid of honor, Miss Carolyn Peters of Monroe, wore a leaf green tulle gown and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses tied with long lengths of green satin ribbon.

Lieutenant Bradford, in air force uniform was attended by Graham Hughes of Monroe.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Samuel Antony, wore the traditional wedding gown of ivory Duchess satin fashioned with deep yoke of marquisette edged with a narrow bertha, embroidered in pearls. The sleeves, puffed high at the shoulders, were long and tight fitting .The skirt, extremely full ended in a court train. Her only piece of jewelry was the bridegroom's gift, a small platinum watch.

The short veil of bridal illusion and heirloom lace was caught to a cap of tulle and pearls. White orchids tied with long lengths of narrow satin ribbon caught with valley lilies, surmounted the ivory bound prayer book carried by the bride.

Following the double-ring ceremony a reception was held at the parish house adjoining the church, where considerable beauty of detail was observed in the floral decor. A cathedralesque atmosphere was created by hundreds of tapers burning in the background. White gladioli and white stock overflowed from tall floor standards.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Harvey Bardwell, stood in the receiving line with members of the wedding party. Mrs. Bardwell wore a rose colored crepe model with small, rose colored, advanced spring model hat and elbow length rose-colored gloves.

The bride's table, overlaid with handsome Point Venise lace, was centrally adorned with a wide spreading plaque of white stock and white carnations flanked by tall silver candelabra supporting white tapers. Silver trays held individual wedding cakes served with frosted punch.

The wedding cake, a work of art, was three-tiered and beauti-

War and Churchill

During World War II Franklin D. Roosevelt cabled Winston Churchill in Britain, "I am proud to be living in the same century with you." Most of us should feel the same way. We have watched Churchill as the indominatable statesman who carried a defendant nation through a major crisis. We have seen him emerge as the major international figure of the first-half century. We have followed his post-war dabbling in art as a pertinent facet of the creative mind. Now we follow him in what may well be one of his most lasting contributions to the world he helped to lead.

Winston Churchill's fourth volume of his memories of the second calls this "The Hinge of Fate, becontinues where "The Grand Alliance" left off. Churchill himself calls this "The Hinge of Fate., because "in it we turn from almost uninterrupted disaster to almost unbroken success." In the same cohesive vein as its predecessors, "The Hinge of Fate" is another testimony to Churchill's strength as a world-shaper as well as another evidence that he is a compelling, uncompromising writer. (THE HINGE OF FATE. By Winston S. Churchill. 1000 pp. Boston: Houghton Miflin Company. $6.00)

In Rome With Williams

Tennessee Williams has written at least two provocative plays, "The Glass Menagerie" and "A Streetcar Named Desire." Now he writes his first novel, "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone." Briefly, it concerns an aging actress in Rome who must inevitably go the way of all flesh, i. e. become involved with what Williams deems "beautiful young men." Every line of Mrs. Stone's fall drips with sensuality and is the biggest disappointment from a major author in some time. Mr. Williams' forte, if Mrs. Stone is exemplary, is certainly not the novel, nor is Mrs. Stone's sex life very memorable a portrait. (THE ROMAN SPRING OF MRS. STONE. By Tennessee Williams. 148 pp. New York: New Directions. $2.00)

Lanza Sings Again

The rise of Mario Lanza to the pinnacle of success must be some commentary on public desire for better music. Whatever it is, it gives us two more of his much-demanded albums, the operatic arias and duets from his M-G-M movie, "The Toast of New Orleans," and another one containing popular recordings from the same picture. In the operatic selections, his duets with Elaine Malbin, soprano, from "Madama Butterffy" and "La Traviata" make fine listening. His Flower Song from "Carmen" has rarely been carried better.

His recordings of popular tunes rank him once and for all as one of the best voices in the nation today. For the Cahn-Brodzsky melodies, on the whole, are mediocre, but Lanza gives them an individuality and style that make them sound better than they are. Best of the lot is his "Boom Biddy Boom," although his skyrocketing "Be My Love," from the film, was not included in the album's selections. The separate recording of that song marks the first time such a classic interpretation has ever swooned the jukebox crowd.

Lanza's current success, alongside that of Ezio Pinza and Lauritz Melchior, gives cause to wonder whether the Frankie Sinatras aren't taking a heavy beating. (THE TOAST OF NEW ORLEANS. 1. Operatic Arias and Duets. 2. Popular Songs. RCA Victor. 33, 45, 78).

Romantic Carrie

At an age when most people settle down to the enjoyment of life, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, widowed, an invalid, and with an eight-year-old son, began the life that was to put her name on nearly every piano in the world. Dabbling in painting and music, she began humming improvised tunes to which she added verses, later painting designs to be used for title pages. She started publishing her own songs.

By degrees her little business grew and with the publication of "A Perfect Day," the tide changed definitely. Jesse Bartlett Davis and Mme. Schumann-Heink began singing her melodies. The rest is an old, familiar story. Her "Just A 'Wearin' For You" and "I Love You Truly" tell it better. These songs are too established in everyday ceremony for elaborate criticism. Now that she has published a sheet-music portfolio, "Songs Everybody Sings," they take their place beside others of her famous offerings. Many of these selections, especially the lyrics, are excessively sentimental. But Carrie Jacobs-Bond, in her own little corner, is as distinct a shaper of American music as the Kerns and Gershwins and Fosters. Her songs in one publication will be right at home with the piano and the player. (SONGS EVERYBODY SINGS. Boston: Carrie Jacobs-Bond & Son. $2.00)

Mr. Lemert is also a graduate of Army School of Music in Washington, D. C. In the spring of 1950 Mr. Lemert won a first place award from the Louisiana Federation of Music Clubs.

The composition that received the award will be performed March 16th. Quoting Mr. Lemert, "This is the first performance of my "Trio for Piano, Clarinet and Viola."

It is cast in the form of an "instrumental trio partly as the result of my personal interest in this particular combination and partly because of the availability of performers on these instruments. Work was begun on it before the announcement of the competition in which it received the first place award. The announcement of the competition did, however, help to get it finished."

N. L. S. C. Instructor

Francis H. Burke was born in Atlanta, Georgia; during his high school years he was always active in the band and orchestra on trumpet, baritone, tympani, string bass, and violin.

He attended Miami University, Oxford, Ohio for one year as a science student, but still performed on French horn in band and orchestra. Attended second year at Shenandoah Conservatory, Dayton Virginia majoring in violin and theory. Attended University of Miami, Coral Gables, Florida, graduated with a B. A. degree major in music, minor in zoology.

He studied violin and composition at the University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona where he graduated in 1947 with the Master Music degree.

Mr. Burke came to Monroe in 1947 and teaches brasses and strings at N. L. S. C. This versatile musician says the organ is the greatest instrument in existence due to its virtually unlimited resources of dynamic and tonal combinations all under the control of one player.

He has invented a device for expanding the possibilities of tonal combinations on the organ, but has not secured a patent on the device.

In 1945 he wrote the piece "Carnival" to utilize the resources of the pipe organ and yet be adaptable to the new technique of playing necessary to utilize his own device. "Carnival" will be performed March 16th.

Assistant Professor

J. F. Monroe was born in Rienzi, Mississippi. He did undergraduate work in music at Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and Baylor University; graduate work at American Conservatory of Music, Chicago and University of North Carolina. His most important teachers were Severin Eisenberger and Daniel Ericourt at the Cincinnati Conservatory; Dr. Leo Sowerby at the American Conservatory, Chicago and Dr. Glen Haydon, University of North Carolina.

Mr. Monroe served with the Army Air Force during World War II and is at present Assistant Professor in the Dept. of Music N. L. S. C. Concerning his compositions which will be heard March 16th Mr. Monroe said, the "Two Miniatures", songs, were the beginning of a song cycle which has not yet been completed.

These two songs had their premier performance over station W. A. C. O. in Waco, Texas, 1939. The "Sonatina" was written in 1944. It is based upon a conscious imitation of the idioms of the impressionistic school.

Information On Plants And Shrubs Injured In Freeze

"It seems the weather man has finally decided to let Louisiana return to its place in the Sunny South," states Mrs. Mildred G. Swift, Assoc. Agent.

"I'm sure many of you have been wondering what to do with the plants that were injured by the freeze. I wish I could be very encouraging and helpful but there is not much that can be done. It is too early to tell just how much injury has been done. Some plants may lose all of their foliage and then leaf out again later on. The chief danger to azaleas is from split bark on the main trunk near the ground level. Often the plant seems healthy, and then in midsummer it begins to die back. Close examination will show the injury to the bark.

"The best thing that can be done for all shrubs now is to give them a good application of a complete fertilizer, such as 4-12-4, which will help them to overcome any damage that may have been done. For azaleas and camellias there is a specially prepared fertilizer, that has an acid reaction. So if you have several of these shrubs it is well to buy azalea and camellia fertilizer.

"It is time to be getting your rosebeds in shape for the blooming season that is just ahead. The beds should be well worked, and fertilized to stimulate growth. Prune the hybrid tea roses, removing all weak and dead wood. Leave only five or six of the strongest canes. Cut these back to from 10 to 18 inches. Always cut just above an outside bud. This is important for it determines the shape of your bush. The new growth will come out in the direction in which the top bud points. So if you prune to an inside bud, you get cris cross branches in the center of your plant. Remove and burn all prunings. Then spray the bushes and the ground around with Bordeauz mixture. This is to control leaf spot. A thorough spraying with Bordeaux at this time will give you a head start on rose diseases—then if you will dust the plants about every 10 days with dusting sulphur to which arsenate of lead has been added, you'll have roses free from leaf spot and from injury from chewing insects. This is a standard dust for roses. It's the dust you see mentioned as Massey dust.

"Prune your hybrid tea roses as I suggested, but don't make the mistake of pruning your climbing roses that bloom in the spring. The bloom buds for this spring have already formed. If you prune now you will cut away much of your blooms. Climbing roses should be pruned just after flowering. At that time remove all the dead or diseased wood, weak canes, and cut back enough to keep under control.

Girl Scout News

Now that the Girl Scout adults have had their annual meeting, which, by the way, was a most enjoyable and profitable occasion, the Scouts themselves are planning their big city-wide get-together to observe the 39th birthday of the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

Meeting for the second time on Saturday, February 17 with Mrs. W. T. Davis, Juliette Low, chairman, and Mrs. R. E. Harrell, a member of the program committee. members of the Girl Scout planning board have just about completed arrangements for this observance. They have asked troops to be sure to learn "Girl Scouts Together," "Our Chalet," and "Foxlease Vesper" to sing on the program. Members of Intermediate troops who were present are:

Trudy Baugh, Janis Joyce, Jimmie Bell Elliott, Janis Hilburn Sylvia Gentry, Yvonne Huckabee, Kathryn Talton, Geraldine Dickerson, Barbara Luton, Pat Ann Davis, Margaret Field, and Elaine Williams.

The modern girl may not be as domestic as her grandmother, but she still likes to learn to cook, and homemaking is still one of the favorite program fields. Mrs. W. V. Roy and Mrs. Sidney Williams report that their third grade Brownies had quite a successful cookie making at their regular meeting not long ago.

Girls of Brownie Troop 37, which meets on Saturday mornings at the home of their leader, Mrs. A. C. Lea, have become quite proficient in making cookies, and we hear that they are good cleaner-uppers, too. Wonderful!

After making cookies in their troop some time ago, the girls of Brownie Scout Troop 34 were interested in seeing how a bakery turns out such quantitites. With Mrs. H. V. Brady and Mrs. S. C. Strausser, their leaders, the girls recently made a trip to Bond's Bakery where they were fascinated by the whole process.

We're still hearing of troop plans for collecting the Juliette Low world friendship fund pennies. Mrs. J. H. Netherland, leader of Troop 13 at Mitchell School, reports that girls in her troop are saving pennies earned by drying dishes. A Brownie Scout helps at home, anyway, but this is a special mother-daughter arrangement. When Troop 13 presents its little gift-wrapped box of pennies on March 11, it will represent some hours of dishdrying.

Troop 9, one of the newest Intermediate troops, is making good use of outside people to add interest to troop program. At a recent meeting Mrs. G. W. McKeithen, formerly of Cambridge, England, told the girl about Girl Guiding in that country. On another meeting day Mr. Caesar Romero from the forestry department talked with them about trees and about preventing forest fires. On still another Tuesday the troop with their leaders, Mrs. W. B. Hilburn and Mrs. S. C. Matthews, met at the Girl Scout office to learn to tie knots. Thus in three meetings the girls sampled three of the program fields, international friendship, nature, and sports and games. Sounds like good planning and good program!

MRS. SAM SMITH ENTERTAINS MEMBERS OF REVIEW CLUB

The Review Club met with Mrs. Sam Smith at 606 Auburn on Monday. Following a brief business meeting, the members enjoyed the two reviews of the afternoon.

Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., reviewed the delightful book, "Proper Bostonians" by Cleveland Amory. The author has seen Boston through a state of mind and confirmed the reading world in its present attitude toward Boston legend. His book is alive with personalities and anecdotes, and its tone is a mixture of humor, respect and affection, through some phases of Boston society ruled over by the Boston matron are written with a dry and acid pen. A characteristic trait of the Proper Bostonian is the fact that he remembers his grandfathers. Bosotn has long been remembered as a city suffering from what has been called Grandfather on the Brain. Boston is a city that takes itself seriously. A newspaper columnist once said: "Writing a humorous column in Boston is like making faces in Church.' Only by reading this entertaning book can one fully appreciate the successful efforts of Cleveland Amory.

"Jane Mecom" by Carl Van Doren was reviewed by Mrs. C. B. Braun in an interesting manner. According to Mrs. Braun, "Jane Mecom" is a biographical duet taken from letters written, over a period of fifty years, by Benjamin Franklin and his youngest sister, Jane Mecon. No fiction is admitted to the story, nor is it needed to portray this delightful person with her "Valiant, upright spirit, with so much woman and so much mind." Even more important, and this is the unique contribution of this volume, is the picture of the daily life of every day people in Colonial and Revolutionary times. It portrays their trials during the war, what they ate and wore, their houses and furniture and their means of livelihood.

Following the program, Mrs. Smith served delicious refreshments to the members present: Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. C. B. Braun, Mrs. Billy Inabnet, Mrs. Ben Cobb, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. A. T. Givens, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. Durwood Griffin, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. A. R. Holloway, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. J. P. Noel, Mrs. Lea Thompson, Mrs. Corbin Turpin and Mrs. L. N. Waddell.

fully embossed with white crystallized roses. The first piece of cake was cut by the bride and groom and then the bride's attendants pulled the white satin ribbons attached to the various symbols imbedded in the bottom layer.

Mrs. Louis Peters of Monroe, cousin of the bride, assisted in the courtesies. She wore a dinner model of beige lace with small brown velvet evening hat and corsage of Talisman roses. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Gussey Antony, wearing a handsome dinner model and small flower hat, presided over the wedding cake. Four intimate friends of the bride, Misses Lou Frissell, Faye Whatley, Catherine Pearson and Louise Fisackerly, wearing bouffant gowns of tulle, also assisted in serving.

Relatives and intimate friends, following the reception, motored to the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bardwell, where the wedding gifts, varied and beautiful, were on display. Outstanding among the gifts was a complete set of sterling silver and a set of Lennox china. A gift of distinction was a lei of orchids flown from Honolulu.

The bride changed her wedding gown for an advanced spring model of navy blue with white accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

Following their honeymoon the bride and groom will be at home in Phoenix, Ariz., where Lieutenant Bradford will be stationed for the time being with the United States air force.

The bride is a graduate of the Bolton High School in Alexandria and attended Texas State College for Women at Denton, Tex.

War and Churchill

During World War II Franklin D. Roosevelt cabled Winston Churchill in Britain, "I am proud to be living in the same century with you." Most of us should feel the same way. We have watched Churchill as the indominatable statesman who carried a defendant nation through a major crisis. We have seen him emerge as the major international figure of the first-half century. We have followed his post-war dabbling in art as a pertinent facet of the creative mind. Now we follow him in what may well be one of his most lasting contributions to the world he helped to lead.

Winston Churchill's fourth volume of his memories of the second calls this "The Hinge of Fate, becontinues where "The Grand Alliance" left off. Churchill himself calls this "The Hinge of Fate,, because "in it we turn from almost uninterrupted disaster to almost unbroken success." In the same cohesive vein as its predecessors, "The Hinge of Fate" is another testimony to Churchill's strength as a world-shaper as well as another evidence that he is a compelling, uncompromising writer. (THE HINGE OF FATE. By Winston S. Churchill. 1000 pp. Boston: Houghton Miflin Company. $6.00)

In Rome With Williams

Tennessee Williams has written at least two provocative plays, "The Glass Menagerie" and "A Streetcar Named Desire." Now he writes his first novel, "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone." Briefly, it concerns an aging actress in Rome who must inevitably go the way of all flesh, i. e. become involved with what Williams deems "beautiful young men." Every line of Mrs. Stone's fall drips with sensuality and is the biggest disappointment from a major author in some time. Mr. Williams' forte, if Mrs. Stone is exemplary, is certainly not the novel, nor is Mrs. Stone's sex life very memorable a portrait. (THE ROMAN SPRING OF MRS. STONE. By Tennessee Williams. 148 pp. New York: New Directions. $2.00)

Lanza Sings Again

The rise of Mario Lanza to the pinnacle of success must be some commentary on public desire for better music. Whatever it is, it gives us two more of his much-demanded albums, the operatic arias and duets from his M-G-M movie, "The Toast of New Orleans," and another one containing popular recordings from the same picture. In the operatic selections, his duets with Elaine Malbin, soprano, from "Madama Butterfly" and "La Traviata" make fine listening. His Flower Song from "Carmen" has rarely been carried better.

His recordings of popular tunes rank him once and for all as one of the best voices in the nation today. For the Cahn-Brodzsky melodies, on the whole, are mediocre, but Lanza gives them an individuality and style that make them sound better than they are. Best of the lot is his "Boom Biddy Boom," although his skyrocketing "Be My Love," from the film, was not included in the album's selections. The separate recording of that song marks the first time such a classic interpretation has ever swooned the jukebox crowd.

Lanza's current success, alongside that of Ezio Pinza and Lauritz Melchior, gives cause to wonder whether the Frankie Sinatras aren't taking a heavy beating. (THE TOAST OF NEW ORLEANS. 1. Operatic Arias and Duets. 2. Popular Songs. RCA Victor. 33, 45, 78).

Romantic Carrie

At an age when most people settle down to the enjoyment of life, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, widowed, an invalid, and with an eight-year-old son, began the life that was to put her name on nearly every piano in the world. Dabbling in painting and music, she began humming improvised tunes to which she added verses, later painting designs to be used for title pages. She started publishing her own songs.

By degrees her little business grew and with the publication of "A Perfect Day," the tide changed definitely. Jesse Bartlett Davis and Mme. Schumann-Heink began singing her melodies. The rest is an old, familiar story. Her "Just A 'Wearin' For You" and "I Love You Truly" tell it better. These songs are too established in everyday ceremony for elaborate criticism. Now that she has published a sheet-music portfolio, "Songs Everybody Sings," they take their place beside others of her famous offerings. Many of these selections, especially the lyrics, are excessively sentimental. But Carrie Jacobs-Bond, in her own little corner, is as distinct a shaper of American music as the Kerns and Gershwins and Fosters. Her songs in one publication will be right at home with the piano and the player. (SONGS EVERYBODY SINGS. Boston: Carrie Jacobs-Bond & Son. $2.00)

BRIDE OF RECENT DATE

Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, D. A. R. Celebrates First Anniversary

Mrs. Henry Montgomery Speaks On 'Woman Of The American Revolution'

The spirit of patriotism flamed high among members of the Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when they met in the Social Hall at the First Methodist Church to observe their first anniversary of the founding of the chapter. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Clark Butler, Mrs. Jeff Caldwell, Mrs. V. O. Allen, Mrs. J. G. Rickerson, and Mrs. Jesse Norris. Mrs. John P. Lewis was in charge of decorations.

A color scheme of red, white, and blue was used. Blue ribbons extended the length of the white damask covered tables and were interspersed with red candles in crystal holders encircled with red nandina leaves.

Centering the head table was an unusually attractive arrangement of red gladioli, blue and white stock, and red, white, and blue ribbons. On an adjoining table overlaid with a madeira cloth, was placed the large two-tiered birthday cake. Surrounding the cake were sprays of nandina leaves and clusters of blue and white stock. White candles burned in crystal holders.

Seated at the head table were Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, regent, Mrs. James Conway Liner, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Mrs. Clark Butler, Mrs. Jack Entrican, Mrs. R. B. Archibald, Miss Martha McDonald, Mrs. Henry Montgomery, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield Jr., Mrs. Tom Rainbolt, and Mrs. J. O. Miller.

The pledge of allegiance to the flag was recited in unison, led by Mrs. Lela Cullom. The invocation was said by Mrs. H. C. Irvin.

Mrs. Stovall took this opportunity to express appreciation to those who had worked so diligently to organize the chapter and to further the work: Mrs. Liner, Mrs. J. R. Wooten, Mrs. E. G. Calvert, Mrs. Clifton Mize, and Mrs. Charles Chisholm. Mrs. Liner brought greetings to the chapter.

Mrs. R. B. Archibald sang, in beautiful voice, "God Touched the Rose" by Mary Helen Brown. She was accompanied by Miss Martha McDonald. A special feature of the program was an original skit "The Making of the Flag". Miss Sue Hunt was cast in the role of Betsy Ross. The children were Jorenda Reynolds, Dianne Entrican, Anna Wilhams and Jimmie Rickerson. The skit was written and directed by the chapter regent.

Mrs. Henry Montgomery spoke on the subject "Woman of the American Revolution." She said in part:

"While the men were in the army of the American Revolution, women all over the land were performing tasks that they had never before been called upon to do. They shod the horses, split rails, made soap, melted up their cherished pewter plate and moulded bullets, made salt petre for gun powder, managed large plantations, often plowing and seeding and harvesting the crops. Doubtless, more than one labored in the fields as did Dorcas Matteson and Anna Aldrich of Rhode Island, with their infants cradled out of harms way in the trees. It was the women who ruined the English trade by organizing themselves into Liberty Leagues and refusing to buy tea or manufactured goods. This meant that, in a day when there were no factories, all the clothing for their not inconsiderable families had to be made by hand. The country resounded to the whirl of the spinning wheel and the click of knitting needles, the hum of the carding machine and the thump of the loom. They drank tea of herbs and leaves with apparent relish. Garments of the once cherished imported goods were taboo and matrons took pride in the coarse homespun clothing which were the work of their own hands.

"In May of 1776. Washington called for 13,000 warm coats for his army to be ready before winter. They were ready before that time limit was up — each coat bearing the name of the maker and her village. They were called "bounty coats" and were highly prized by their owners. The women of Philadelphia, under Sarah Franklin Bache, only daughter of Benjamin Franklin, raised money and made 2,000 shirts. Ester Reed, also of Philadelphia, by her tireless efforts, raised and collected large sums of money to buy medical supplies. Mary Warren, sister of James Otis, was considered one of the most intellectual women of her day, and she carried on a wide correspondence with thinking people all over the country, and her influence bound them into a concerted band, and thus the value of propaganda had its incipiency."

"Ever resourceful, the women of the revolution matched their wits with the enemy and won many a battle. We have the records of at least three women who were on the payroll of the Continental Army as regular soldiers — Molly Pitcher, Deborah Sampson, and Margaret Corbin."

Mrs. Montgomery gave thrilling accounts of the exploits in the cause of freedom of Mary Draper, Betsy Ross, Molly Stark, the mother of Andrew Jackson, Mary Knight, Elizabeth Zane, Nancy Hart, Jane McCrea, Lindley Murray, Lidia Darrah, Emily Geiger, Martha Washington, Abigail Adams, Mrs. David Wright, and recounted the story of the intrepid Mother Batherick, a woman in her sixties, who surprised the Redcoats while out digging dandelions. She seized their guns and captured six British soldiers singlehanded, and marched them to military headquarters at Spy Pond, Massachusetts." A delicious luncheon was served to approximately forty members and guests.

Mr. Childress urged all who planned to have gardens to spread barnyard manure early over the garden plot, supplemented with a good commercial fertilizer, and nitrate soda or ammonia, will make a good side dressing for growing plants.

Since it breathes atmospheric air, the electric eel must have access to the surface of the water two or three times a minute. Eels have been drowned when they accidentally were submerged for only ten minutes. They can, however, withstand periods of 72 hours out of water, as long as their mouths are kept moist.

WHEN ONE WORD LEADS TO ANOTHER . . . you may be sure it is inspired by something unusual like the interesting collection of antique clocks at HUCKABAY'S JEWELRY. I found two made in 1870, the first models of the modern spring wound clock (only one of these is for sale). HUCKABAY'S had one weight clock, right out of the pages of history, 1850 to 1870. It is powered by weights. Two calendar clocks caught my eye, one registers the date; the other tells the month, day of the week and the date. Drop by HUCKABAY JEWELRY and let Mr. Huckabay himself tell you the interesting history on these antique clocks that he has gathered from everywhere.

Girl Scout News

Now that the Girl Scout adults have had their annual meeting, which, by the way, was a most enjoyable and profitable occasion, the Scouts themselves are planning their big city-wide get-together to observe the 39th birthday of the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

Meeting for the second time on Saturday, February 17 with Mrs. W. T. Davis, Juliette Low, chairman, and Mrs. R. E. Harrell, a member of the program committee. members of the Girl Scout planning board have just about completed arrangements for this observance. They have asked troops to be sure to learn "Girl Scouts Together," "Our Chalet," and "Foxlease Vesper" to sing on the program. Members of Intermediate troops who were present are:

Trudy Baugh, Janis Joyce, Jimmie Bell Elliott, Janis Hilburn Sylvia Gentry, Yvonne Huckabee, Kathryn Talton, Geraldine Dickerson, Barbara Luton, Pat Ann Davis, Margaret Field, and Elaine Williams.

The modern girl may not be as domestic as her grandmother, but she still likes to learn to cook, and homemaking is still one of the favorite program fields. Mrs. W. V. Roy and Mrs. Sidney Williams report that their third grade Brownies had quite a successful cookie making at their regular meeting not long ago.

Girls of Brownie Troop 37, which meets on Saturday mornings at the home of their leader, Mrs. A. C. Lea, have become quite proficient in making cookies, and we hear that they are good cleaner-uppers, too. Wonderful!

After making cookies in their troop some time ago, the girls of Brownie Scout Troop 34 were interested in seeing how a bakery turns out such quantitites. With Mrs. H. V. Brady and Mrs. S. C. Strausser, their leaders, the girls recently made a trip to Bond's Bakery where they were fascinated by the whole process.

We're still hearing of troop plans for collecting the Juliette Low world friendship fund pennies. Mrs. J. H. Netherland, leader of Troop 13 at Mitchell School, reports that girls in her troop are saving pennies earned by drying dishes. A Brownie Scout helps at home, anyway, but this is a special mother-daughter arrangement. When Troop 13 presents its little gift-wrapped box of pennies on March 11, it will represent some hours of dishdrying.

Troop 9, one of the newest Intermediate troops, is making good use of outside people to add interest to troop program. At a recent meeting Mrs. G. W. McKeithen, formerly of Cambridge, England, told the girl about Girl Guiding in that country. On another meeting day Mr. Caesar Romero from the forestry department talked with them about trees and about preventing forest fires. On still another Tuesday the troop with their leaders, Mrs. W. B. Hilburn and Mrs. S. C. Matthews, met at the Girl Scout office to learn to tie knots. Thus in three meetings the girls sampled three of the program fields, international friendship, nature, and sports and games. Sounds like good planning and good program!

MRS. SAM SMITH ENTERTAINS MEMBERS OF REVIEW CLUB

The Review Club met with Mrs. Sam Smith at 606 Auburn on Monday. Following a brief business meeting, the members enjoyed the two reviews of the afternoon.

Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., reviewed the delightful book, "Proper Bostonians" by Cleveland Amory. The author has seen Boston through a state of mind and confirmed the reading world in its present attitude toward Boston legend. His book is alive with personalities and anecdotes, and its tone is a mixture of humor, respect and affection, through some phases of Boston society ruled over by the Boston matron are written with a dry and acid pen. A characteristic trait of the Proper Bostonian is the fact that he remembers his grandfathers. Bosotn has long been remembered as a city suffering from what has been called Grandfather on the Brain. Boston is a city that takes itself seriously. A newspaper columnist once said: "Writing a humorous column in Boston is like making faces in Church.' Only by reading this entertaning book can one fully appreciate the successful efforts of Cleveland Amory.

"Jane Mecom" by Carl Van Doren was reviewed by Mrs. C. B. Braun in an interesting manner. According to Mrs. Braun, "Jane Mecom" is a biographical duet taken from letters written, over a period of fifty years, by Benjamin Franklin and his youngest sister, Jane Mecon. No fiction is admitted to the story, nor is it needed to portray this delightful person with her "Valiant, upright spirit, with so much woman and so much mind." Even more important, and this is the unique contribution of this volume, is the picture of the daily life of every day people in Colonial and Revolutionary times. it portrays their trials during the war, what they ate and wore, their houses and furniture and their means of livelihood.

Following the program, Mrs. Smith served delicious refreshments to the members present; Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. C. B. Braun, Mrs. Billy Inabnet, Mrs. Ben Cobb, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. A. T. Givens, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. Durwood Griffin, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. A. R. Holloway, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. J. P. Noel, Mrs. Lea Thompson, Mrs. Corbin Turpin and Mrs. L. N. Waddell.

MISS SUE WHITAKER WEDS HAROLD FOSTER

Miss Sue Whitaker became the bride of Thomas Harold Foster in a ceremony at 4 o'clock last Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church, Houston, Texas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Clyde Whitaker of Houston, formerly of this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewert Foster, 1308 North Confederate.

The double-ring ceremony was read by Dr. Porter M. Bailes. Back of the all white altar was an arch of candelabra, flanked by massed palms and branched candelabra joined with white satin ribbon and decorated with white satin bows and garland of greenery. The altar was fronted with baskets of white gladioli, lilacs, and Gara mums. The bride knelt on a prie-dieu covered with white embossed satin. Bows of white satin ribbon marked the family pews.

Mrs. W. G. Watson was nuptial soloist. She was accompanied by Mrs. Craven Beard, organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Duchess satin and Chantilly lace designed by Coronet, with fitted bodice of satin, overlaid with lace, portrait neckline enhanced with iridescent pallettes, and glove-fitting sleeves of lace with calla points at the hands finished with lace applique and embroidery. The bouffant skirt, accented with wide lace panels, fell in soft folds into a cathedral length train. Her long veil of French illusion was attached to a Dutch bonnet of lace embroidered in pearls and pallettes. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid combined with French maline and showered with satin streamers caught in love knots with clusters of white lilacs.

Miss Phyllis White of Monroe, was maid of honor. She was attired in a bouffant gown of pastel green taffeta with jacket of forest green lace. She carried a heart-shaped arrangement of yellow feathered mums. The bridesmaids were Misses Dorothy and Norma Jean Foster, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Sammie Lu Robinson of Gainesville. Their dresses, designed along identical lines with that of the maid of honor, were of forest green taffeta with pastel green lace jackets. They carried heart-shaped arrangements of pink carnations.

Mrs. Whitaker, mother of the bride, wore a bittersweet brown taffeta and lace dress, brown profile hat of illusion over pink blossoms and pink elbow-length gloves. Her corsage was of purple orchids.

Thomas Holland served as best man. The groomsmen were Calvin Millington, Royce Ford, and Charles Duffey.

A reception was held after the wedding in the Gold and Mirror Rooms of the Blackstone Hotel. Palms and basket arrangements of white flowers were placed at vantage points. White lilacs decorated the table which held the three-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. White lilacs also surrounded the punch bowl. Mrs. E. B. Ussery served the cake, Mrs. T. F. Holland presided at the punch bowl and Miss Barbara Allen was in charge of the bride's book.

After their return from a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Foster will be at home in Denver City. For traveling, the bride wore a navy suit with matching topper, navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride is a senior at Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Phi Mu sorority.

The bridegroom graduated from Louisiana State University last year. He was a member of Chi Alpha fraternity and Delta Sigma Phi, honorary fraternity for personnel management students.

Out-of-town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Robinson, Mrs. M. C. Whitaker and Mrs. O. F. Ruble of Gainesville; Mrs. and Mrs. Paul Meyer of Weatherford; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Ussery, Miss Carolyn Ussery and James Ussery of Austin.

Paint near the temperature of steam is applied by spray in a new "hot spray" process, for which the necessary heating equipment now has been developed. Varnish and lacquer can be applied by the same method. In the process, heat replaces a large part of the solvents now used in paint.

FEBRUARY BRIDE

Mrs. Thomas Harold Foster was before her recent marriage the former Miss Sue Whitaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Clyde Whitaker, of Houston, Tex., formerly of this city. Mr. Foster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewart Foster, also of Houston, Tex.

GI TO BE GIVEN 'FEE' BASIS AID

M'Clendon, Service Officer, Makes This Announcement

Medical and prescription expenses can be eliminated entirely from a veteran's budget if he is being rendered what the Veterans' Administration calls "Out patient treatments," the Department of Veterans' Affairs announces.

And, according to H. B. McClendon, Ouachita parish service officer, the veterans may be treated by a local physician on a "fee" basis, if conditions do not warrant hospitalization care or VA field station service.

McClendon explained that outpatient care included medical or dental treatment, prescription medicines, prosthetic appliances and other supplies needed by a veteran who has a service-connected disability.

"Outpatient service saves beds for other VA patients who can not be treated outside the hospital," McClendon said. "Each parish service office has a list of the names of doctors or dentists who are participating in the VA program and the veteran has his choice of doctors."

McClendon invited veterans to come into his office at Room 204, Parish Courthouse, Monroe, La., for assistance in this and other matters.

Tech Cafeteria Will Close March 3

Ruston, Feb. 24.—(Special)—Total enrollment for this semester at Louisiana Tech has risen to 1,732 students, Mabel May, registrar, announced this week. This is an increase of 23 over the previously reported total at the beginning of the semester, she said.

Included in the present total are 1,131 men students and 601 women.

Official registration period was extended to February 10 at the beginning of the semester because of icy roads and snow which caused many students to arrive late. No penalties for late registration were assessed before and up to that date.

Compared to the enrollment total of 2,146 at Tech a year ago, the present number represents a decrease of 414 students for that period. This drop attributed to the draft, enlistment of students into the armed forces and other conditions.

BRIDE OF RECENT DATE

Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, D. A. R. Celebrates First Anniversary

Mrs. Henry Montgomery Speaks On 'Woman Of The American Revolution'

The spirit of patriotism flamed high among members of the Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when they met in the Social Hall at the First Methodist Church to observe their first anniversary of the founding of the chapter. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Clark Butler, Mrs. Jeff Caldwell, Mrs. V. O. Allen, Mrs. J. G. Rickerson, and Mrs. Jesse Norris. Mrs. John P. Lewis was in charge of decorations.

A color scheme of red, white, and blue was used. Blue ribbons extended the length of the white damask covered tables and were interspersed with red candles in crystal holders encircled with red nandina leaves.

Centering the head table was an unusually attractive arrangement of red gladioli, blue and white stock, and red, white, and blue ribbons. On an adjoining table overlaid with a madeira cloth, was placed the large two-tiered birthday cake. Surrounding the cake were sprays of nandina leaves and clusters of blue and white stock. White candles burned in crystal holders.

Seated at the head table were Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, regent, Mrs. James Conway Liner, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Mrs. Clark Butler, Mrs. Jack Entrican, Mrs. R. B. Archibald, Miss Martha McDonald, Mrs. Henry Montgomery, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield Jr., Mrs. Tom Rainbolt, and Mrs. J. O. Miller.

The pledge of allegiance to the flag was recited in unison, led by Mrs. Lela Cullom. The invocation was said by Mrs. H. C. Irvin.

Mrs. Stovall took this opportunity to express appreciation to those who had worked so diligently to organize the chapter and to further the work: Mrs. Liner, Mrs. J. R. Wooten, Mrs. E. G. Calvert, Mrs. Clifton Mize, and Mrs. Charles Chisholm. Mrs. Liner brought greetings to the chapter.

Mrs. R. B. Archibald sang, in beautiful voice, "God Touched the Rose" by Mary Helen Brown. She was accompanied by Miss Martha McDonald. A special feature of the program was an original skit "The Making of the Flag", written and directed by the chapter regent. Miss Sue Hunt was cast in the role of Betsy Ross. The children were Jorenda Reynolds, Dianne Entrican, Anna Williams, and Jimmie Rickerson. The skit was

Mrs. Henry Montgomery spoke on the subject "Woman of the American Revolution." She said in part:

"While the men were in the army of the American Revolution, women all over the land were performing tasks that they had never before been called upon to do. They shod the horses, split rails, made soap, melted up their cherished pewter plate and moulded bullets, made salt petre for gun powder, managed large plantations, often plowing and seeding and harvesting the crops. Doubtless, more than one labored in the fields as did Dorcas Matteson and Anna Aldrich of Rhode Island, with their infants cradled out of harms way in the trees. It was the women who ruined the English trade by organizing themselves into Liberty Leagues and refusing to buy tea or manufactured goods. This meant that, in a day when there were no factories, all the clothing for their not inconsiderable families had to be made by hand. The country resounded to the whirl of the spinning wheel and the click of knitting needles, the hum of the carding machine and the thump of the loom. They drank tea of herbs and leaves with apparent relish. Garments of the once cherished imported goods were taboo and matrons took pride in the coarse homespun clothing which were the work of their own hands.

"In May of 1776, Washington called for 13,000 warm coats for his army to be ready before winter. They were ready before that time limit was up — each coat bearing the name of the maker and her village. They were called "bounty coats" and were highly prized by their owners. The women of Philadelphia, under Sarah Franklin Bache, only daughter of Benjamin Franklin, raised money and made 2,000 shirts. Ester Reed, also of Philadelphia, by her tireless efforts, raised and collected large sums of money to buy medical supplies. Mary Warren, sister of James Otis, was considered one of the most intellectual women of her day, and she carried on a wide correspondence with thinking people all over the country, and her influence bound them into a concerted band, and thus the value of propaganda had its incipiency."

"Ever resourceful, the women of the revolution matched their wits with the enemy and won many a battle. We have the records of at least three women who were on the payroll of the Continental Army as regular soldiers — Molly Pitcher, Deborah Sampson, and Margaret Corbin."

Mrs. Montgomery gave thrilling accounts of the exploits in the cause of freedom of Mary Draper, Betsy Ross, Molly Stark, the mother of Andrew Jackson, Mary Knight, Elizabeth Zane, Nancy Hart, Jane McCrea, Lindley Murray, Lidia Darrah, Emily Geiger, Martha Washington, Abigail Adams, Mrs. David Wright, and recounted the story of the intrepid Mother Batherick, a woman in her sixties, who surprised the Redcoats while out digging dandelions. She seized their guns and captured six British soldiers singlehanded and marched them to military headquarters at Spy Pond, Massachusetts." A delicious luncheon was served to approximately forty members and guests.

Since it breathes atmospheric air, the electric eel must have access to the surface of the water two or three times a minute. Eels have been drowned when they accidentally were submerged for only ten minutes. They can, however, withstand periods of 72 hours out of water, as long as their mouths are kept moist.

Only little children should spend their time blowing bubbles and waiting for the breaks.

WHEN ONE WORD LEADS TO ANOTHER . . . you may be sure it is inspired by something unusual like the interesting collection of antique clocks at HUCKABAY'S JEWELRY. I found two made in 1870, the first models of the modern spring wound clock (only one of these is for sale). HUCKABAY'S had one weight clock, right out of the pages of history, 1850 to 1870. It is powered by weights. Two calendar clocks caught my eye, one registers the date; the other tells the month, day of the week and the date. Drop by HUCKABAY JEWELRY and let Mr. Huckabay himself tell you the interesting history on these antique clocks that he has gathered from everywhere.

BEYOND QUESTION . . . We found enchanting fashion in the spring treats for mothers to be at THE MATERNITY SHOP, 809 Natchitoches St., West Monroe. It is a butcher linen jacket over a one-piece rayon crepe print (early-American rural scene) with trouser pleated skirt and hip pockets that narrow down to a slim, sleek look and it has hook over invisible adjustment that you'll love. . . . Another creation that took my eye has a big bow, twinkling rhinestone buttons and French tucking that makes a bouquet-fresh suit in Prima-finish cotton broadcloth with cut-out window skirt. . . . Put Off Finesse Whenever Possible

By Oswald Jacoby

An expert hates to stake his contract on a mere finesse when any better chance is available. South's play of the rather shaky slam contract shown today is a good example.

West opened the ten of hearts, and dummy won with the king. Declarer immediately returned dummy's low diamond. His object was to set up an additional diamond trick, if possible, without losing control of the suit.

East put up the king of diamonds at once and returned the three of clubs. At this stage South was sure

	NORTH ♠ A K 10 7 ♥ A K 6 5 2 ♦ A 6 ♣ 7 5	84
WEST ♠ J 9 4 2 ♥ 10 9 8 7 ♦ 9 5 ♣ K J 6		EAST ♠ 8 6 3 ♥ 3 ♦ K J 7 3 2 ♣ 10 8 4 3
	SOUTH (D) ♠ Q 5 ♥ Q J 4 ♦ Q 10 8 4 ♣ A Q 9 2

of five hearts, three spades, two diamonds and a club. A successful club finesse would therefore give him the twelfth trick.

Nevertheless, South put up the ace of clubs, refusing the finesse. He saw that he could eventually try a finesse of dummy's ten of spades for the twelfth trick—and one finesse was as good as another. In the meantime, the jack of diamonds might drop; or perhaps somebody would be squeezed.

South's reasoning was quite proper. The spade finesse would have worked, if needed, and the club finesse would have lost. As it happened, however, no finesse was needed, since West was squeezed.

Aftr taking the ace of clubs, South cashed the queen and jack of hearts. He next entered dummy with the ace of diamonds to take the ace of hearts and the last heart. On these cards, South discarded two clubs, while West discarded the jack of clubs.

South got back to his hand with the queen of diamonds. He hoped that the jack would fall, but it didn't.

However, East had been forced to abandon his clubs and one spade in order to save the diamonds. West had to discard on the diamond; and, since he couldn't afford to release the king of clubs, had to part with a spade.

This told South that all the spades would drop, so he just took the top spades and made the fulfilling trick with the ten of spades.

Q—With both sides vulnerable, your partner deals and bids one spade. The next player passes. You hold: Spades K-4-2, Heart 6, Diamonds, A-J-5-3-2, Clubs A-8-7-2. What do you do?

A—Bid two diamonds. Your high-card strength is almost enough to assure a game. However, your spade support is not good enough for a jump raise. (A jump raise should guarantee at least four trumps.) Hence you must bid the diamonds first. Later on, you can raise the spades.

MISS JULIA BRYAN IS BRIDE OF LIONEL DEVON ALFORD

In an impressive double ring ceremony solemnized Saturday, February 3, at eight o'clock in the evening at 418 Slack Ave., West Monroe, Miss Julia Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. GEORGIA TUCKER GIVES PROGRAM

February P.-T. A. Held In Honor Of Two Women Founders

The Georgia Tucker P.-T. A. held their meeting February 22nd at 3:15 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. D. G. Nichols, president, conducted the meeting.

Founders' Day observance was the theme of the program. Mrs. Henry Hargrove, Founders' Day chairman, was in charge. Mrs. Hargrove stated that in 1895, 55 years ago, Mrs. Theodore W. Birney, a native of Georgia who was interested in child welfare conceived the idea of closer cooperation between teachers and parents. She interested Mrs. P. A. Hearst, wife of a California senator in her idea and on Feb. 17th, 1897, they held their first meeting. They had expected about 25 people to attend the assembly there were 2,000. From this meeting and through the efforts of these two women the P.-T. A. was established.

Mrs. Nichols presented Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal, who gave a talk on the importance of safe play for the child. She said the dangers of allowing children to play in the neighborhood with bee-bee guns while playing with other children are grave and if an eye is damaged there is permanent disability. She urged that parents help by explaining to their children the danger of throwing rocks, that several children had been cut badly and that that, too, is dangerous.

Mrs. Vincent spoke on the P.-T. A., its function. She stated that closer relationship between home and school is the challenge of our P.-T. A. Mrs. Vincent said that the school felt free to call on the parents for help in solving the school problems of the children, and that the parents should feel free to call on the teachers to help solve the problems concerning the children at home. Mrs. Vincent further stated that the education of a child should be started in the home. That the development of emotional stability, the development of faith and the attitudes of the child toward accepting the changing situations in life should be started in the home. She told how education is a continuous process and that a child is sent to school to supplement his education, and to help develope a well-rounded adult.

Mrs. Dick Troy, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Tom Davenport, Mrs. C. R. Simpson, room mothers and Miss Oliver gave a skit, "Are You Satisfied With Your Report Card?"

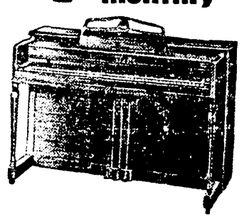

The skit presented dealt with the questions under discussion concerning the report card. They have been investigating different grading systems in different schools. Whether to eliminate the report card and substitute parent conferences or the writing of reports by the teachers to be sent to the parents. These questions are under discussion, and a system which will be satisfactory to all will be decided upon.

Mrs. Walter Crow, hospitality chairman, assisted by Mrs. John Brown and Mrs. S. A. Den served birthday cake and punch.

Mrs. Burns 1st grade and Mrs. Simpson's 3rd grade tied for the largest parent attendance of the primary grades. Mrs. Ha's 6th grade had the largest parent attendance of the elementary grades.

Miss Sue Whitaker became the bride of Thomas Harold Foster in a ceremony at 4 o'clock last Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church, Houston, Texas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Clyde Whitaker of Houston, formerly of this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewart Foster, 1308 North Confederate.

The double-ring ceremony was read by Dr. Porter M. Bailes. Back of the all white altar was an arch of candelabra, flanked by massed palms and branched candelabra joined with white satin ribbon and decorated with white satin bows and garland of greenery. The altar was fronted with baskets of white gladioli, lilacs, and Gara mums. The bride knelt on a prie-dieu covered with white embossed satin. Bows of white satin ribbon marked the family pews.

Mrs. W. G. Watson was nuptial soloist. She was accompanied by Mrs. Craven Beard, organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Duchess satin and Chantilly lace designed by Coronet, with fitted bodice of satin, overlaid with lace, portrait neckline enhanced with iridescent pallettes, and glove-fitting sleeves of lace with calla points at the hands finished with lace applique and embroidery. The bouffant skirt, accented with wide lace panels, fell in soft folds into a cathedral length train. Her long veil of French illusion was attached to a Dutch bonnet of lace embroidered in pearls and pallettes. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid combined with French maline and showered with satin streamers caught in love knots with clusters of white lilacs.

Miss Phyllis White of Monroe, was maid of honor. She was attired in a bouffant gown of pastel green taffeta with jacket of forest green lace. She carried a heart-shaped arrangement of yellow feathered mums. The bridesmaids were Misses Dorothy and Norma Jean Foster, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Sammie Lu Robinson of Gainesville. Their dresses, designed along identical lines with that of the maid of honor, were of forest green taffeta with pastel green lace jackets. They carried heart-shaped arrangements of pink carnations.

Mrs. Whitaker, mother of the bride, wore a bittersweet brown taffeta and lace dress, brown profile hat of illusion over pink blossoms and pink elbow-length gloves. Her corsage was of purple orchids.

Thomas Holland served as best man. The groomsmen were Calvin Millington, Royce Ford, and Charles Duffey.

A reception was held after the wedding in the Gold and Mirror Rooms of the Blackstone Hotel. Palms and basket arrangements of white flowers were placed at vantage points. White lilacs decorated the table which held the three-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. White lilacs also surrounded the punch bowl. Mrs. E. B. Ussery served the cake, Mrs. T. F. Holland presided at the punch bowl and Miss Barbara Allen was in charge of the bride's book.

After their return from a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Foster will be at home in Denver City. For traveling, the bride wore a navy suit with matching topper, navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride is a senior at Louisiana State University, where she is a member of Phi Mu sorority.

The bridegroom graduated from Louisiana State University last year. He was a member of Chi Alpha fraternity and Delta Sigma Phi, honorary fraternity for personnel management students.

Paint near the temperature of steam is applied by spray in a new "hot spray" process, for which the necessary heating equipment now has been developed. Varnish and lacquer can be applied by the same method. In the process, heat replaces a large part of the solvents now used in paint.

GI TO BE GIVEN 'FEE' BASIS AID

M'Clendon, Service Officer, Makes This Announcement

Medical and prescription expenses can be eliminated entirely from a veteran's budget if he is being rendered what the Veterans' Administration calls "Out patient treatments," the Department of Veterans' Affairs announces.

And, according to H. B. McClendon, Ouachita parish service officer, the veterans may be treated by a local physician on a "fee" basis, if conditions do not warrant hospitalization care or VA field station service.

McClendon explained that outpatient care included medical or dental treatment, prescription medicines, prostethic appliances and other supplies needed by a veteran who has a service-connected disability.

"Outpatient service saves beds for other VA patients who can not be treated outside the hospital," McClendon said. "Each parish service office has a list of the names of doctors or dentists who are participating in the VA program and the veteran has his choice of doctors."

McClendon invited veterans to come into his office at Room 204, Parish Courthouse, Monroe, La., for assistance in this and other matters.

Tech Cafeteria Will Close March 3

Ruston, Feb. 24.—(Special)—Total enrollment for this semester at Louisiana Tech has risen to 1,732 students, Mabel May, registrar, announced this week. This is an increase of 23 over the previously reported total at the beginning of the semester, she said.

Included in the present total are 1,131 men students and 601 women.

Official registration period was extended to February 10 at the beginning of the semester because of icy roads and snow which caused many students to arrive late. No penalties for late registration were assessed before and up to that date.

Compared to the enrollment total of 2,146 at Tech a year ago, the present number represents a decrease of 414 students for that period. This drop attributed to the draft, enlistment of students into the armed forces and other conditions.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. S.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Yes. Some persons can read from 2,000 to 4,000 words a minute! The amazing thing is that they comprehend what they read. They are really reading, not merely looking at the type. Usually fast reading is partly inborn, but it is amazing how you can learn the habit. Our booklet, "How To Read Faster and Better," has enabled many to double their reading speed — and comprehension. Sent at cost, 15 cents (coin only) plus self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. Dr. Walter M. Stokes, in his book, "Modern Pattern for Marriage," says, (paraphrased): "Preparation for marriage begins at birth. When teenage comes, children should cease depending on parents, and find pleasure, strength and wisdom in testing themselves in the outer world. They should feel happy and proud about the sexual self and develop habits and ideals that prepare them for marriage. This includes the whole development of sound personality and character." Can there be anything finer?

Answer to Question No. 3

3. No. But Andre Vishinsky seems to be a special case. I have concluded that two things account for his irrelevent absurdities: First, when he was born he was probably spanked on the wrong end. Still, babies are spanked to give them wind, so, maybe he was spanked on both ends! Second, he seems to fulfill the instructions given with your fountain pen, "When this pen flows too freely, it is a sign it is nearly empty."

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Rules Regulate Wild Cards

One of the important changes in the new code of laws governs the number of wild cards you are allowed to have in a canasta. In the old days, you could add as many wild cards as you liked to a completed canasta.

Under the new code you may never have more than three wild cards in any canasta. There is, however, no limit on the number of natural cards in a canasta.

For example, suppose you put down four kings and three deuces in a meld, thus completing a canasta. You may add as many kings as you like to that meld (then or later)—but you never add another deuce or joker to that meld.

What happens if a player tries to add a wild card to a closed canasta? How does anybody know how many wild cards there were in the canasta? Under the new laws, any player may open the canasta up at such a time to make sure that it doesn't acquire a fourth wild by mistake.

What happens if a player does try to put a fourth wild card in a canasta? If anybody notices it in time, he may ask to have the canasta opened up. Then the three wild cards already in the canasta will be seen. The offender may use the wild card in some other meld or may discard it without penalty. However, if he decides to take the wild card back into his hand, his side is penalized 100 points.

What happens if at the end of a hand it is discovered that a canasta contains four wild cards? It is then assumed that one of those wild cards is still unmelded. Moreover if there is any doubt whether the extra card should be a joker or a deuce, it is assumed to be a joker.

For example, South melds out and play stops. It is, then noticed that one of the North-South canastas contains three deuces and a joker (in addition to four kings). One of those cards is taken out of the canasta and counted as though it were still in North's hand.

Perhaps it can be clearly remembered (and agreed upon by the opponents) that the joker was part of the original canasta; and then one of the deuces is counted in North's hand. Otherwise the joker is taken out of the canasta and counted in North's hand.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

P.-T. A. In Collinston Gives Founder Honor

Founders' Day was observed by the Collinston P.-T. A. with a program and refreshment hour following the regular order of business February 21.

Mrs. A. H. Harper, vice-president, presided at the business session. Miss Marie Hodges served as secretary.

The probram was opened by Mrs. Veva Waldrop reading the Founders' Day message. Mrs. A. H. Harper spoke on the establishment of the P.-T. A. and its advantages to children, parents, and teachers. Mrs. Virginia Page addressed the group on "Why you are needed in the P.-T. A."

The refreshment table added a festive note to the celebration of Founders' Day. Centering the lace draped table was a large white cake embossed in blue, including the figures "51" indicating the anniversary observed. Flanking the cake on either side were three candles in blue and white, the P.-T. A. colors. Yellow daffodils at the base of the candlesticks lent a breath of spring and completed the pretty decor.

The refreshment committee: Mrs. David Pipes, Mrs. A. H. Harper and Mrs. W. T. Fontenot, served coffee with the cake to the 18 members present.

Others present were principal Dale Lowrey, Thomas Hogg, Billy Caskey, Mrs. Lucille Puckett, Mrs. Neil Oliver, Miss Jeanne Goodwin, Mrs. Dale Lowrey, Mrs. Louise Kelier, Mrs. Bernice Pratt, Mrs. Evelyn Stewart, Mrs. J. D. Langston, and Mrs. Gordon Hightower.

DO YOU KNOW PIANOS?

Consider carefully the following question before you select your new piano. No matter how attractive a piano may LOOK, it is the HIDDEN musical and mechanical qualities which make it a fine instrument, or an unsatisfactory one.

Q. I have heard that the piano's sounding board is most important in tone quality. How can I judge its excellence?

A. This is difficult for a layman to judge. Your ear should tell you how the tone sounds. Inspection of the back of the piano helps tell whether the back is heavy enough and built so the sounding board will always hold its "crown" that must be maintained for good tone. Look for heavy, solid back posts made of good wood. Avoid glued-up back posts which often conceal inferior wood in their inner layers.

Put Off Finesse Whenever Possible

By Oswald Jacoby

An expert hates to stake his contract on a mere finesse when any better chance is available. South's play of the rather shaky slam contract shown today is a good example.

West opened the ten of hearts, and dummy won with the king. Declarer immediately returned dummy's low diamond. His object was to set up an additional diamond trick, if possible, without losing control of the suit.

East put up the king of diamonds at once and returned the three of clubs. At this stage South was sure of five hearts, three spades, two diamonds and a club. A successful club finesse would therefore give him the twelfth trick.

Nevertheless, South put up the ace of clubs, refusing the finesse. He saw that he could eventually try a finesse of dummy's ten of spades for the twelfth trick—and one finesse was as good as another. In the meantime, the jack of diamonds might drop; or perhaps somebody would be squeezed.

South's reasoning was quite proper. The spade finesse would have worked, if needed, and the club finesse would have lost. As it happened, however, no finesse was needed, since West was squeezed.

Aftr taking the ace of clubs, South cashed the queen and jack of hearts. He next entered dummy with the ace of diamonds to take the ace of hearts and the last heart. On these cards, South discarded two clubs, while West discarded the jack of clubs.

South got back to his hand with the queen of diamonds. He hoped that the jack would fall, but it didn't.

However, East had been forced to abandon his clubs and one spade in order to save the diamonds. West had to discard on the diamond; and, since he couldn't afford to release the king of clubs, had to part with a spade.

This told South that all the spades would drop, so he just took the top spades and made the fulfilling trick with the ten of spades.

Q—With both sides vulnerable, your partner deals and bids one spade. The next player passes. You hold: Spades K-4-2, Heart 6, Diamonds, A-J-5-3-2, Clubs A-8-7-2. What do you do?

A—Bid two diamonds. Your high-card strength is almost enough to assure a game. However, your spade support is not good enough for a jump raise. (A jump raise should guarantee at least four trumps.) Hence you must bid the diamonds first. Later on, you can raise the spades.

Today's Question

With both sides vulnerable, your partner deals and bids one spade. The next player passes. You hold: Spades K-8-4-2, Heart 6, Diamonds A-J-5-3, Clubs K-8-7-2. What do you do?

GEORGIA TUCKER GIVES PROGRAM

February P.-T. A. Held In Honor Of Two Women Founders

The Georgia Tucker P.-T. A. held their meeting February 22nd at 3:15 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. D. G. Nichols, president, conducted the meeting.

Founders' Day observance was the theme of the program. Mrs. Henry Hargrove, Founders' Day chairman, was in charge. Mrs. Hargrove stated that in 1895, 55 years ago, Mrs. Theodore W. Birney, a native of Georgia who was interested in child welfare conceived the idea of closer cooperation between teachers and parents. She interested Mrs. P. A. Hearst, wife of a California senator in her idea and on Feb. 17th, 1897, they held their first meeting. They had expected about 25 people to attend the assembly there were 2,000. From this meeting and through the efforts of these two women the P.-T. A. was established.

Mrs. Nichols presented Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal, who gave a talk on the importance of safe play for the child. She said the dangers of allowing children to play in the neighborhood with beebee guns while playing with other children are grave and if an eye is damaged there is permanent disability. She urged that parents help by explaining to their children the danger of throwing rocks, that several children had been cut badly and that that, too, is dangerous.

Mrs. Vincent spoke on the P.-T. A., its function. She stated that closer relationship between home and school is the challenge of our P.-T. A. Mrs. Vincent said that the school felt free to call on the parents for help in solving the school problems of the children, and that the parents should feel free to call on the teachers to help solve the problems concerning the children at home. Mrs. Vincent further stated that the education of a child should be started in the home. That the development of emotional stability, the development of faith and the attitudes of the child toward accepting the changing situations in life should be started in the home. She told how education is a continuous process and that a child is sent to school to supplement his education, and to help develope a well-rounded adult.

Mrs. Dick Troy, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Tom Davenport, Mrs. C. R. Simpson, room mothers and Miss Oliver gave a skit, "Are You Satisfied With Your Report Card?"

The skit presented dealt with the questions under discussion concerning the report card. They have been investigating different grading systems in different schools. Whether to eliminate the report card and substitute parent conferences or the writing of reports by the teachers to be sento the parents. These questions arunder discussion, and a system wch will be satisfactory to all will e decided upon.

Mrs. Walter Crow, ospitality chairman, assisted by rs. John Brown and Mrs. S. A. Dea served birthday cake and punch

Mrs. Burns 1st grade id Mrs. Simpson's 3rd grade tiedfor the largest parent attendanceof the primary grades. Mrs. Ha's 6th grade had the largest pant attendance of the elementary rades.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Rules Regulate Wild Cards

One of the important changes in the new code of laws governs the number of wild cards you are allowed to have in a canasta. In the old days, you could add as many wild cards as you liked to a completed canasta.

Under the new code you may never have more than three wild cards in any canasta. There is, however, no limit on the number of natural cards in a canasta.

For example, suppose you put down four kings and three deuces in a meld, thus completing a canasta. You may add as many kings as you like to that meld (then or later)—but you never add another deuce or joker to that meld.

What happens if a player tries to add a wild card to a closed canasta? How does anybody know how many wild cards there were in the canasta? Under the new laws, any player may open the canasta up at such a time to make sure that it doesn't acquire a fourth wild by mistake.

What happens if a player does try to put a fourth wild card in a canasta? If anybody notices it in time, he may ask to have the canasta opened up. Then the three wild cards already in the canasta will be seen. The offender may use the wild card in some other meld or may discard it without penalty. However, if he decides to take the wild card back into his hand, his side is penalized 100 points.

What happens if at the end of a hand it is discovered that a canasta contains four wild cards? It is then assumed that one of those wild cards is still unmelded. Moreover if there is any doubt whether the extra card should be a joker or a deuce, it is assumed to be a joker.

For example, South melds out and play stops. It is then noticed that one of the North-South canastas contains three deuces and a joker (in addition to four kings). One of those cards is taken out of the canasta and counted as though it were still in North's hand.

Perhaps it can be clearly remembered (and agreed upon by the opponents) that the joker was part of the original canasta; and then one of the deuces is counted in North's hand. Otherwise the joker is taken out of the canasta and counted in North's hand.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

P.-T. A. In Collinston Gives Founder Honor

Founders' Day was observed by the Collinston P.-T. A. with a program and refreshment hour following the regular order of business February 21.

Mrs. A. H. Harper, vice-president, presided at the business session. Miss Marie Hodges served as secretary.

The probram was opened by Mrs. Veva Waldrop reading the Founders' Day message. Mrs. A. H. Harper spoke on the establishment of the P.-T. A. and its advantages to children, parents, and teachers. Mrs. Virginia Page addressed the group on "Why you are needed in the P.-T. A."

The refreshment table added a festive note to the celebration of Founders' Day. Centering the lace draped table was a large white cake embossed in blue, including the figures "54" indicating the anniversary observed. Flanking the cake on either side were three candles in blue and white, the P.-T. A. colors. Yellow daffodils at the base of the candlesticks lent a breath of spring and completed the pretty decor.

The refreshment committee: Mrs. David Pipes, Mrs. A. H. Harper and Mrs. W. T. Fontenot, served coffee with the cake to the 18 members present.

Others present were principal Dale Lowrey, Thomas Hogg, Billy Caskey, Mrs. Lucille Puckett, Mrs. Neil Oliver, Miss Jeanne Goodwin, Mrs. Dale Lowrey, Mrs. Louise Keller, Mrs. Bernice Pratt, Mrs. Evelyn Stewart, Mrs. J. D. Langston, and Mrs. Gordon Hightower.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Yes. Some persons can read from 2,000 to 4,000 words a minute! The amazing thing is that they comprehend what they read. They are really reading, not merely looking at the type. Usually fast reading is partly inborn, but it is amazing how you can learn the habit. Our booklet, "How To Read Faster and Better," has enabled many to double their reading speed — and comprehension. Sent at cost, 15 cents (coin only) plus self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. Dr. Walter M. Stokes, in his book, "Modern Pattern for Marriage," says, (paraphrased): "Preparation for marriage begins at birth. When teenage comes, children should cease depending on parents, and find pleasure, strength and wisdom in testing themselves in the outer world. They should feel happy and proud about the sexual self and develop habits and ideals that prepare them for marriage. This includes the whole development of sound personality and character." Can there be anything finer?

Answer to Question No. 3

3. No. But Andre Vishinsky seems to be a special case. I have concluded that two things account for his irrelevent absurdities: First, when he was born he was probably spanked on the wrong end. Still, babies are spanked to give them wind, so, maybe he was spanked on both ends! Second, he seems to fulfill the instructions given with your fountain pen, "When this pen flows too freely, it is a sign it is nearly empty."

DO YOU KNOW PIANOS?

Consider carefully the following question before you select your new piano. No matter how attractive a piano may LOOK, it is the HIDDEN musical and mechanical qualities which make it a fine instrument, or an unsatisfactory one.

Q. I have heard that the piano's sounding board is most important in tone quality. How can I judge its excellence?

A. This is difficult for a layman to judge. Your ear should tell you how the tone sounds. Inspection of the back of the piano helps tell whether the back is heavy enough and built so the sounding board will always hold its "crown" that must be maintained for good tone. Look for heavy, solid back posts made of good wood. Avoid glued-up back posts which often conceal inferior wood in their inner layers.

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The humanity of Jesus is clearly manifested and emphasized throughout the Four Gospels, even in the Gospel of John, which, in its prologue, asserts most fully His eternal and divine nature. The Word was in the beginning, "and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

But Jesus of Nazareth was the Word made flesh, dwelling among men (John 1:14). This is the doctrine of the Incarnation, and it would have no reality, if the divine Word did not truly become man.

So, in the Gospel story we see Jesus sharing our common human life. He knew weariness and needed rest; He hungered; once He asked a Samaritan woman for a drink.

He felt the spiritual need of prayer, and in difficult days He went into a mountain, and continued all night in prayer. Both the Gospel records and the Epistle to the Hebrews tell how He was subject to temptation, "in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin."

That "like as we are" is significant. It was only after He had conquered that the angels came and ministered unto Him. (Matthew 4:11).

We miss the true relationship of the earthly life of Jesus to us, and our relationship to Him, if we do not grasp and realize the fact of His true humanity. But it is likewise necessary to see how it was in that earthly life that His divinity was revealed. It is in living with Him, as the disciples lived with Him, that we, too, shall fell the power and glory of the Christ.

It is possible, I believe, to live with Him in human fellowship as well as in spiritual communion, to know the Man, Christ Jesus, as well as the divine Lord.

We can so live in the Gospels, walking with Jesus and the disciples along the seashore, on the mountain, among the multitudes, in flowery fields and quiet places, among His friends.

We can have His comforting presence in homes of doubtful, questioning Pharisees; with other questioners who came by night, in the tragic scenes leading to the Cross, and the triumphant experiences of the Resurrection.

In such a way can the wonderful life and the wonderful story become as real to us, and much more significant and engrossing than the incidents and environment of daily life.

That the noblest Christians have so known Jesus and lived with Him is evident in many life histories. The imitation of Christ, the following of the example of the Master, has given many an example of love and service in which humanity has attained its greatest height.

In contrast to that glory of Christian living is the denial of God in the mass of evil, hatred, and violence in the world.

If men everywhere had the knowledge of God, if they knew the Gospels, and the Jesus Christ of the Gospels, the greatest hope of a better world would be realized. Yet how few think of the Gospel as the greatest weapon of hope and security

CLAIBORNE PAYS WOMEN TRIBUTE

Honors Founders Of Parent-Teacher In Annual Affair At School

A birthday celebration commemorating the founding of the P.-T. A. is held each year by local associations throughout the nation in memory of its founders, Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

February 17 marks the 54th anniversary of the P.-T. A. and Claiborne P.-T. A. in tribute to the spirit of the founders rendered a very interesting program under the direction of Mrs. Alvie Wallace, the Founder's Day chairman. The main feature of the program was a pageant entitled, "Three Letters." Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, narrator took the audience back to the year 1897 and Mrs. Orie Hatten, Mrs. Bernie Emery and Mrs. Harold Traylor dressed in costumes of that era dramatized parents returning from the first day at school.

The year 1922 was next dramatized by Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. Jimmy Adams, and Mrs. Fred Riser. They too, were returning home from the first day of school, and were musing about the changed attitudes of parents and teachers about the need for home school cooperation.

The next dramatization was portrayed by Mrs. Clay Wilson, Mrs. Marie Wallace, and Mrs. J. C. Dickerson, and the year was 1945. They recounted the improvements and the public awareness of people everywhere concerning education of children and youth.

At the conclusion of this pageant, Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, the narrator said, "The national congress of parents and teachers has taken its place as an integral and indispensable factor in national welfare and vitality and fundamentally our purposes are the same now as always. This fact in itself is strong evidence of the inner soundness and worth of the parent-teacher ideal. Gifts made on this day are for extension of parent teacher work. From this source, field service has been financed, courses have been conducted, and all the state branches have been strengthened.

A short playlet was given by Polly Jane Riser, and Geraldine Dickerson, 4-H Club girls, entitled, "A Small Affair."

The final number on the program was a song skit by 12 girls in the newly organized Girl Scout troup, sponsored by the P.-T. A.

A short business session followed and delegates were elected to the district meeting to be held at the First Baptist Church March 7. Eight ladies were elected, and Supt. Mack Avants and Fred Riser will represent the male side of the membership. A nominating committee elected at this time will report at the next meeting.

Mrs. Bernie Emery, the president, turned the meeting over to the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Fred Riser, who invited the members in to enjoy a beautifully decorated cake and spiced punch.

Our Children

PARENTS' VOICES

The behavior of children is the result of parental attitudes and practices. Children reflect the character of their fathers and mothers, not as they see themselves but as they are reflected in the experiences their children enjoy or endure in association with them. What they would have their children become they must be in daily practice.

The voice that a parent uses in addressing a child carries the overtones of his inner self in unmistakable clarity to the mind of the listening child. Nothing is hidden; all he feels and thinks and is comes through.

If there is anger, fear, uncertainty, dislike behind the tone it will crackle and sparkle and threaten like a bunch of lighted firecrackers and the feeling, the attitude behind it, will be registered in the memory of the child to color his behavior in time to come.

If there is affectionate understanding, sympathy and friendship behind the tones, the child will respond as a flower-bud opening in the warmth of the sunshine and that, too, will be registered in memory to gentle and direct his behavior toward cooperative and effective ends.

Children respond to gentleness and firmness, while they turn a deaf ear to shouted commands. There is no such power in a shout as there is in a low-toned firmly spoken direction. Once a child has been conditioned to indifference een conditioned to indifference which leads to disobedience and to rebellion. A shout should be reserved for emergencies as when a child strays from safety toward danger. Only in such situations is a shout effective and then only if the child has been conditioned to the low-toned, firmly controlled voice. To the child conditioned to expect shouts, the cry of danger will be just another shout and to be taken accordingly.

What is to be done when a little child looks up from his play at a word from his parent and then calmly returns to his game? Wait a moment for a response. Give his mind time to function. If he does not respond go close to him, say his name, tell him what to do in a few clear words remembering that many words drown ideas, and wait again. If still no response, take him where you want him to be, without anger or roughness, and stand by until he obeys. But don't shout.

It is the still small voice of the spirit that reaches the child, not the voice of physical power, and it must rise from the disciplined spirit of his parents.

Lying is a bad habit and it must Lying is a bad habit and it must be cured. Dr. Patri advises parents to encourage children to tell the truth in his leaflet P-15, "Lying." To obtain a copy, send ten cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Less Students For Semester Enroll

Natchitoches, La., Feb. 24. — (Special)—Final enrollment figures for the spring semester at Northwestern State College stood at 1,396 students today as against 1,453 for the corresponding period a year ago, Otis R. Crow, college registrar, announced today. Although the total enrollment for the fall semester of the present school year was 1,571, the shrinkage in student numbers this semester was far less than was anticipated in view of the rather heavy exodus due to mid-year graduation and withdrawal from school of 101 men students to enter military service before the start of the spring semester, Mr. Crew said.

This spring semester finds 84 new students on campus, of whom 49 are men. Women students outnumber the men students this semester, there being 809 co-eds and 587 men students.

Well Known Quartet Began In Home Church

One summer day four boys, Freddie Rae Hall, Donald Bates, Gary Parrish and Billie Graff, stood around the piano where Mary Jane Dressler was playing church hymns. They decided to form a quartet and sing hymns. This was just a starting point for the boys. Their pastor, Homer R. Spence and J. P. Lindsay, their choir director, heard them singing and has encouraged the young people along.

Besides singing in their own home church, which is Good Hope, they have sung at other places. Their first appearance was at a Training Union meeting held at Cheniere Church. Then they sang at Calvary Baptist Church, the Church of God in McGuire addition and last Monday night they sang for the Sunday School convention held at the Trinity Church. They received an invitation to sing at the state convention to be held in alexandria this coming Monday night, which they have accepted.

These boys have named themselves the Bethany Quartet. Since Good Hope has Kenneth Adams as their choir director, they are going strong.

The public is invited to come out and hear these young people.

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:8.

Not what we wish, but what we want.
Oh! let thy grace supply.
The good unasked, in mercy grant;
The ill, though ask'd, deny.

FINEST OF YOUTH CHOIRS TO SING

Centenary College Will Send Its Choice Group Here For Concert

When the Centenary College Choir presents a concert on March 2nd at 8:00 p.m. in Brown Hall auditorium, local music-lovers will have the opportunity to hear one of the finest college choirs in the southwest.

Members of the 49 voice musical aggregation, made famous by their appearances in San Francisco, New York, and Chicago at Lions International conventions and by coast-to-coast network broadcast on "Solo and Soliloquy' and "Rex Maupin Presents" programs on the American Broadcasting Company and the preceding year with Paul Lavalles "Band of America" program on National Broadcasting Company, have begun their current season with the determination not only to maintain their reputation, but to add to their achievements during the coming year.

Looking toward this avowed aim, Director A. C. Voran put them through a full schedule of physical conditioning and rehearsals for a week at Camp Beeneaire on Lake Bistineau in Webster parish, Louisiana, during the first week of September. This week at camp, according to Mr. Voran, was more valuable than a month's regular rehearsals during the school term.

A number of new voices have joined the choir this year, Mr. Voran said, because a number of students have been attracted by the choir's growing fame.

He thinks that choir camp plays an important part in creating an "esprit de corps" among members. He feels that the morale and the spirit of cooperation which camp life engenders contributes as much to their performances as good singing. By having students live and work together for a week at camp, the foundation is laid for harmonious group life later on.

Mr. Voran trains his charges to carry as much of the responsibility of the choir's heavy schedule as possible. Representatives from each voice section form a board of directors in addition to the elective officers. All of them together form an executive council which collaborates with Vorna on choir policy.

Program of the Centenary College Choir will range from classical music to sacred numbers with a few jazz tunes thrown in for good measure.

L. O. Fisher Director Of Sunday Convention

Four or five of the local Baptist churches will meet at the McClendon Baptist Church, old Nachitoches road today at 2:30 p.m. for an old fashioned singing meet directed by L. O. Fisher.

Those who enjoy the old songs will have an afternoon of pleasure it is assured.

There will be solos, quartets, trios and other groups to participate.

Organized Naval Reserve Is Established At Selman Field

Have Electronics Unit, Facilities For Radio And Radar

By Jim Reynolds

The Twin Cities may seem far from a seacoast town to most of the Monroe-West Monroe population, but there'll be a definitely salty tang to the air for 55 local Naval Reservists from now on.

In fact, the navy (at least on a part-time basis) is moving in, with the establishment of an organized reserve unit at Selman Field.

Previously, the unit, commanded by Commander T. C. "Buck" Pipes, was on a volunteer reserve basis. Members did not collect drill pay for any training sessions.

Now, announces the C. O., the unit is switching into the pay system. "As members of the organized naval reserve," he said, both officers and enlisted men in our complement will receive a full day's pay for each two hour drill attended."

The aim of the local sailors is to set up a complete electronics unit, specifically electronics warfare company 8-8, with facilities for all types of radio, radar and sonar istruction.

From its old, two-story home at Selman Field, the unit has moved into a refinished, shipshape building opposite the new administration building at the airport. Navy equipment costing approximately $250,000 has been moved in and set up, ready for instruction.

Crediting the city officials of Monroe for "complete cooperation," the skipper pointed to the radio antenna poles, donated and installed by the city without cost.

Remodeling the new headquarters was an expensive step. The total cost was estimated at $4,000. Contractor Frank Eason handled the work on the outside of the structure, Herbert F. Dillard the interior work, and the Stubbs Electric Co. took charge of the rewiring and heating problems. In addition, the navy hired a Seattle, Wash., contractor who has had extensive experience in the field to install the electronic equipment, under the supervision of a representative of the eighth naval district.

High frequency, high power radio equipment, underwater sound equipment and radar units including BR (interrogation) and IFF (identification) units are ready for the instruction of the trainees. Handling the technical training will be the commanding officer and H. L. "Dusty" Rhodes. All officers will instruct, either in advanced technical courses or basic subjects such as seamanship.

Lt. Comm. Tom Hayes, Jr., executive officer of the company, added other factors to the list of advantages brought by membership in the reserve group. "Our full complement will be 50 men and five officers," he said. "Every one of them, in addition to being paid the full daily sum they would earn on active duty in their present grade, will pile up promotion and retirement points for every drill attended."

Hayes warned that members would not be draft exempt merely because of their affiliation with the reserve, but said that the unit had been assured that all possible consideration would be given naval reserve members when their cases came before the board, and that it was reasonable to assume they might rate deferment unless manpower needs became increasingly greater.

Lt. Roy Johns, recruiting officer for the unit, announced that approximately 30 openings existed in the local reserve group, most for seaman recruits. He said enlistment was open to young men 17 and older and urged the 17 through 19 year old group specifically to investigate the advantages of the reserve.

Prospective enlistees were urged to call Johns at his home, telephone number 3-1766.

Shoe Factory Put On Feet

By Julius Humi

NEA Staff Correspondent

Trieste—(NEA)—As an example of international cooperation, Trieste's new Fortuna Shoe Co. is hard to beat. An American, using funds from the Allied military government, set up a plant in Trieste with Italian and Yugoslavian workers and raw materials from Madagascar.

The American is ex-diplomat Thomas A. McCann, of Minneapolis. He saw the possibilities of using Trieste's large number of skilled workers, and the fact that the city is a free port, in a manufacturing enterprise.

McCann obtained a 90,000,000 lire ($144,000) loan from the Allied military government and imported a complete shoe factory from Boston. And he used local raw materials—plus raffia from Madagascar palms—to specialize in hand-woven beach and summer sandals.

Before production began in January, the Fortuna salesmen had hustled up orders for more than 30,000 pairs of shoes. And they could have had more, but were afraid of the production kinks that usually beset a new plant. The kinks haven't developed, however.

The sandals have wooden soles, which are cut in Florence, Italy, and Lubliajana, Yugoslavia. These are then covered with raffia dyed by girls working in villages around Trieste. At the factory, workmen sew the braided raffia into strips, forming the uppers, straps and ankle bands for the shoes.

Salesmen who took samples into the U. S., England, Germany and Scandinavia, were warmly welcomed, possibly because of a worldwide leather shortage. Orders were quickly obtained for the shoes which sell at retail for $5 and look like expensive models.

The factory's present output is only 900 pairs a day, but McCann hopes to reach a 6000-pair-per-day figure when the factory is in full operation. So far, everything has broken right for the plant, which has the blessing of the AMG.

The company's name may have something to do with the breaks it's gotten so far. Fortuna means lucky.

BIRTHDAY HOLIDAY PROPOSED

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A resolution to make the birthday of the late President Roosevelt, Jan. 30, a legal public holiday was introduced yesterday by Senator Lehman (D.-N. Y.).

That some form of vegetable life exists on Mars is quite probable, an astronomer has stated. This plant life would be somewhat like the mosses and lichens of frigid mountain peaks of the earth.

RADIO CLUB AIDS IN CIVIL DEFENSE

Notified Of Part It Will Play In Case Of Emergency

The Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio Club was informed (Feb. 22) on the role it would play in any civil defense emergency. District Chairman George Tidwell and West Monroe Defense Chairman Louis Lee told the club, which includes John Pete McKee, West Monroe communications chief and Bernie Wilenzick, Monroe communications chief, that any all-out attack on such centers as Baton Rouge would leave the "ham" radio operators with the only surviving means of communication.

Tidwell discussed their communications services during the recent emergency which the ice-and-snow storms created in this area. The Amateur Radio Club was so organized that its members were able to direct traffic where other forms of communications were knocked out. The Illinois Central Railroad, which "hams" dispatched from New Orleans, and the Associated Press, whose news releases they brought into the Twin Cities, have written formal letters of appreciation for their emergency work.

Also present was H. E. Griffith, district communication coordinator of Northeast Louisiana.

Much of the meeting was devoted to a discussion between the club and the civil defense directors on the vital need for emergency power.

With normal power lines potentially lost during air attack, the club's president, T. C. Pipes, and member, Pat Lynch, pointed out that some arrangement for emergency power sources must be realized. During the recent emergency, they contended, the "hams" were able to handle all traffic related to deaths, medicine, food needs, transportation and news services through enough emergency gear and mobile power to get them through. An air attack, they concluded, would be a different story.

Civilian Job Status Is Ticklish For Reservists

Bitterest By-Product Of Korean War Is Damage Done To Jobs Of Thousands Of Reservists And National Guardsmen

Washington—(NEA)—One of the most bitter by-products of the Korean war is the damage it has done to the jobs of hundreds of thousands of reservists and National Guardsmen.

Most Pentagon officials put the blame on employers. Employers blame the Pentagon. Most of the men who are affected blame both,

About the only thing there is agreement on is that when this is all over the present reserve structure of the services is going to have to be junked for something more modern and workable. Or there will have to be some kind of universal service or training.

A few typical examples tell the story best:

Case A joined the National Guard before World War II, was called to active duty and served meritoriously. He rejoined the Guard after the war. Just before Korea his firm promised him a promotion with a good increase in salary. On the basis of this he bought a new home with payments his promised raise could easily take care of.

However, when it looked as if he might be called to active duty after the Korean war started, the promotion never came through. Another man was given the job, the Guard member is about to lose his new home and all he put int it and there isnt much chance of his being called to active duty.

Just before Korea, Case B quit his job to open a business of his own. He thought he had the finances all arranged through the local bank. But when the bank learned that he was in the reserves and might be called up, it refused to go through with the loan. Now he can't get his old job back, can't get finances to start his venture, can't get a new job. And he hasn't heard from the services about a call back to duty.

Case C concerns a young man who was just starting out in the fuel-oil business. He had signed up a lot of customers for the winter just as Korea started. His competitor whispered it around that this man was a reservist who would be called to active duty and that he would never be able to deliver his oil. As a result, all of his contracts were cancelled, he could find no new customers and he lost every cent he put into the venture.

Case D is the young fellow who was called out with his Guard unit in the recent "snow emergency" to help some stranded motorists. He was gone from his job three days and when he returned was fired. All he can do is find part-time jobs laboring.

Multiply these examples by a big percentage of reservists and Guardsmen all over the U. S. to get a general idea of the problems they face in the way of getting promotions, new jobs or just keeping the ones they have.

In their own defense the business men say this:

"It just doesn't make sense to spend six months training a new man for a job if we're going to lose him right away."

"What's the sense of promoting a man to an important job when he'll only be able to hold it a couple of weeks and we'll just have to find another one for the job?"

"We can't assign a man who is liable to call to any of our important defense work. His leaving will cause a delay in our production."

The employers can point to the air force itself as an offender in this matter, too. The A. F. recently advertised for hundreds of new workers to open an air base. Next morning when a crowd of men gathered to go to work they were told by a public address system that all reservists might as well go home.

Big gripe of both employers and reservists against the services is the inability to get any positive information on a man's status.

Pentagon spokesmen agree that more and more firms are being talked into handling their reserve personnel problems in a much more enlightened fashion. The Pentagon, in turn, is trying to give reservists more positive information.

Brightest side of the picture is the fact that defense spending is rapidly creating a labor shortage all over the country and it is getting easier all the time for reservists to get jobs.

Tech Enrollment Shows Increase

Ruston, Feb. 23.—(Special)—Because of a drop in enrollment at Louisiana Tech, the cafeteria in Iva Adams hall, new dormitory for women students, will be closed with the serving of the noon meal on Saturday, March 3, President R. L. Ropp said today.

The closing will result in a saving of $2,000 a month, the president stated. After March 3, students and faculty members now patronizing the cafeteria in Adams hall will be served in the cafeteria of the main dinning hall.

"Further in the interest of economy," President Ropp declared, "we are asking the students to be conservative in their selection of food, particularly bread and milk. We do not want their eyes to be bigger than their stomachs. For instance, while passing along the serving line, some students take three slices of bread but eat only two. Some take a bottle of milk and use a little of the top for their coffee, with the rest of the milk being left unused. These things, when done by several hundred persons three times a day, amount to a considerable loss.

CIVIL DEFENSE TOPIC

Civil defense will be discussed by Southwestern Louisiana school superintendents today with State Supt. Shelby M. Jackson. It is the third of four scheduled meetings with state school officials.

Lion In House Makes Country Officials Roar

By Glen Perrins

(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Salt Lake City, Utah—(NEA)—Major Sheridan has been banned from Salt Lake City, too, unless he goes into a pen.

Major Sheridan: "A cage would be so foolish . . ."

J. E. Frank, will definitely not go into a pen.

And Major Sheridan, says Mrs. Frank, will definitely not go into a pen.

Major Sheridan is a lion, 18 months old, frisky and friendly. But Salt Lake City officials did not seem to want his friendship.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank brought him here from Sheridan, Wyo., in June, 1949, when the major was a five-week-old cub, suffering from pneumonia. Mrs. Frank doctored him. She claims legal ownership, a claim the city does not dispute.

Last October, the major was in the front yard when a seven-year-old boy put his foot under the gate. The major thought it was something to wrestle with. The howls were heard all the way down in City Hall, where Mayor Earl J. Glade gave the Franks 30 days to move, providing they took Major Sheridan with them.

They moved to Holladay, just a few miles outside the city limits. County officials, who are used to dealing with lions in the mountains, didn't know what to do about one in town.

The county can't make up its mind whether to ban the major, to give him a license if he stays in an enclosure, or to allow him to stay, providing he's penned, without a license.

"How could we cage him," asks Mrs. Frank, "when a cage would be so foolish for a lion that romps about the house?"

The county hasn't answered that one yet.

Jacques Bril Is Private Eye--- Also, Ear Nose and Throat

By Richard Kleiner

New York —(NEA)— Jacques Bril is a private investigator, the kind of guy the movies would call a "private eye." But he uses so many other senses in his sleuthing that to be accurate you'd have to call him a private eye, ear, nose and throat.

By employing modern electronic gadgets, Bril traps his man (or woman) through sound or smell, just as often as he does by sight. He calls what he does "scientific detection of deception,' which is another way of saying that a machine in the lab is worth a lot of questioning.

Bril, a criminologist for the state of New Jersey, is a dapper man with a dapper mustache and a dapper diamond ring sparkling on his right little finger. His interest in electronic crime detecting devices goes way back, as he's one of the investors of the lie detector, perfected in 1929.

The lie detector, incidentally, works on animal electricity and not on blood pressure as most people think. It seems every living thing gives off a measured amount of electricity. When upset (or telling a fib) this changes. Electrodes, strapped to the palms, record the changes.

This worked out so well for everybody (except crooks) that Bril began to use other electronic gimmicks. His car is equipped with a radio telephone. And, in case he is not in when the phone rings, he has a new device, called a Tele-Magnet, which answers it for him.

This almost - human machine picks up the receiver, switches on a record which says Bril isn't in but please leave a message, then switches on a tape recorder which records the message. When Bril comes back to the car, a tabulator tells him how many people called. He turns another switch and listens to the recorded phone calls.

He has another TeleMagnet in his office. His operatives, out trailing somebody, don't bother taking notes. Every once in a while, they call the office and record their notes on the TeleMagnet. Bril says it gets their impressions and facts while they're still fresh.

He's quite partial to recording devices, claiming they have revolutionized crime investigation.

"I can wire your house with you sitting there," he says, with a sly twinkle, "and you'll never know it. Here's two gimmicks—I could come in as a phone repairman or to read your meter. I'd have your house wired and you'd be sitting there, unaware of it all. There's lots of ways."

Once the house is wired, a wire recorder is set up and the investigators are in business. With such a rig, Bril heard a political figure in a small town tell his housekeeper (and, if turned out girl friend) not to get excited about people discovering his wife's body. The poor lady had disappeared, but Bril heard the man say something about under the floor in the garage. A little digging and there she was.

Jacques Bril and detecting gadgets: "I can wire your house with you sitting there, and you'll never know it."

Portable microphones and transmitters can be hidden in such common and unsuspicious objects as briefcases, hearing aids and canes. An investigator carrying such a set-up talks to the suspect while walking along the street. A car, following maybe a halfmile behind, has a receiver and a recorder.

Bril has used a new instrument, called a photo-electric recording spectrometer. With it, he can take a speck of paint, no bigger than the head of a pin, and tell the year, make and model of car it came from. That's because all car manufacturers vary their paint formula from year to year, and model to model. All the formulas are registered.

The same machine can also identify perfume. A capsule-full of air from a room where a perfumed lady was present can be tested. The instrument learns what perfume it was. Which can be helpful information in cherchezing la femme.

TWEED COAT STOLEN

A gray tweed coat was stolen from the Charity Hospital Friday night, reported Monroe police officers. The coat belonged to Mrs. Sternberg, 907 Jackson street.

A new power grinder for the laboratory revolves the mortar or grinding bowl electrically, while a weighted arm holds the pestle and swings it back and forth in the bowl. It handles laboratory solids faster and more efficiently than the hand mortar-and-pestle method.

Millsaps School Has 4-H Club Meeting

The Millsaps School 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting Thursday, February 22, in the school lunchroom with approximately one hundred twenty members in attendance. In the absence of the president and vice-president, the secretary, Peggy Traxler, presided.

The program was in charge of Sue Hammonds and consisted of a medley of songs by members of the sixth grade and a piano solo by Harlan Humphries.

The executive council member of Millsaps Club, Harlan Humphries, gave an interesting report of the recent meeting of the parish 4-H executive committee at the agricultural building in West Monroe. At this meeting plans were made to hold the annual 4-H Achievement Day at Crosley School on Saturday, May 5. All rules remain the same as for previous Achievement Days.

The Millsaps Club agreed to participate in celebrating national 4-H Week March 3-11. The club will present a radio broadcast over a local station and in every other way possible draw attention to 4-H work.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, assistant home demonstration agent, gave the girls a demonstration in yard improvement. Robert W. Childress, assistant county agent, showed the boys how to effectively use several kinds of commercial fertilizers.

Local leaders present at the meeting were Mrs. Jake Humphries, Mrs. Lavon Oglesbee, James Walters, and Clifford Roberts.

U. S. Reconstruction Effort In Formosa May Set Asian Pattern By Out-Performing Red Promises

Taipei, Formosa —(NEA)— A two-year-old American financed program of rural reconstruction has so improved the lot of tenant farmers on Formosa that officials see in it a pattern which might overcome Communist promises in other parts of Asia.

At a $2,257,000 expenditure of Economic Cooperation Administration funds, the joint commission on rural reconstruction boosted the island's vital rice crop last year from 1,060,000 to 1,214,500 tons. The dollar value of this additional rice yield alone is almost eight times the program cost to date. Exportable rice surpluses, expected for the 1951 crop year, will further reduce Formosa's need for dollar-aid.

At the same time the island's feudal system of "one-way" rental contracts has been revised. Former contracts could be altered or ended at the wish of the landlord, and required rentals as high as 70 per cent of crops. ECA-JCRR sponsored reforms have brought a 37.5 per cent rent-ceiling in force.

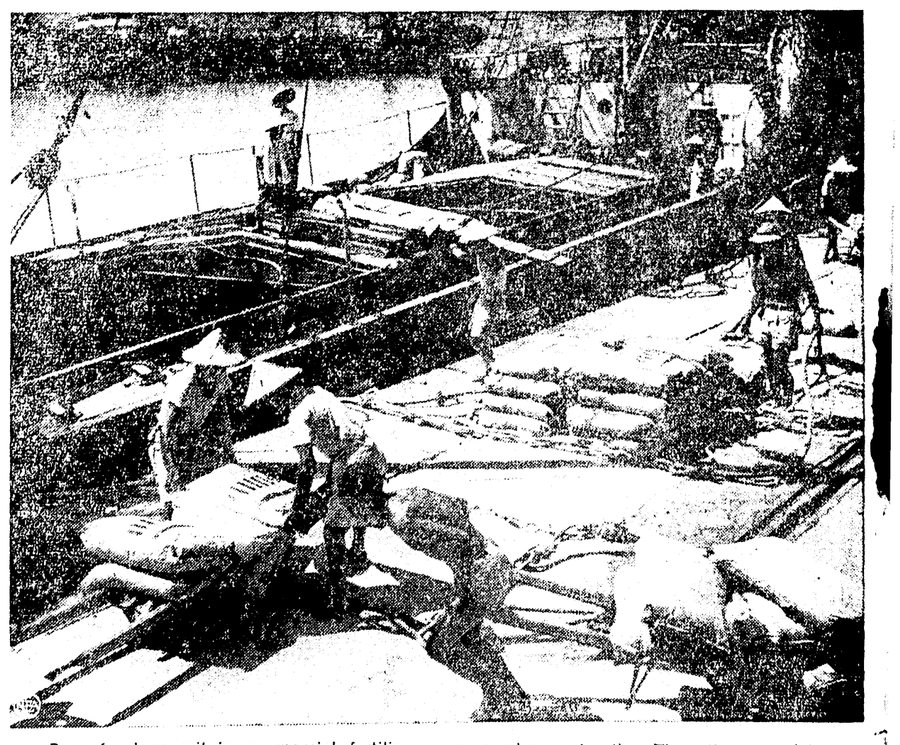

The JCRR was created by the 80th congress as a part of the 1948 China aid program. It is composed of three members named by the president of China, and two appointed by President Truman.

The Americans, both "old China hands" are Dr. Raymond T. Moyer, chief of ECA's China Mission, and Dr. John Earl Baker, one-time adviser to China's Ministry of Railways and for many years an executive of China relief.

The commission started too late for success on the mainland, but since moving to Formosa with the nationalist government has achieved spectacular results.

JCRR has accomplished its "purpose," the creation of rural stability by attacking the ills of the Formosan farmer on a wide front. Its specific aims have been dictated by the things the farmers themselves consider of first importance in improving their lives.

In the agricultural field, the commission has supported projects for the extension and improvement of irrigation facilities essential to the rice farmer, and has provided commercial fertilizers with which to bolster the lean soil.

Boon for lean soil is commercial fertilizer, brought into Formosa by the joint commission on rural reconstruction. These Formosan laborers are unloading a cargo of fertilizer.

Chief of JCRR's island-wide fertilizer distribution program is 26-year-old Ralph Gleason of Tonneville, S. C., who served in Korea with both American military government and ECA before joining the ECA-JCRR team on Formosa.

Perhaps the most dramatic ECA-JCRR effort took place in January, 1950, when an epidemic of rinderpest threatened the island's vital water buffalo population.

A prompt isolation-vaccination-destruction campaign stopped the outbreak cold. Cattle which were destroyed to prevent spread of the disease were replaced by ECA funds, a step which sold the farmers on the sincerity of the JCRR program.

"The water buffalo are our lives," one farmer said. "That is what you have given us."

Less spectacular, but no less novel to Formosans, is the rural health program which has invaded even the rugged mountain homes of the island's aborigines.

Until the ECA-JCRR project started, the islanders accepted disease with characteristic easterr resignation. Target number-one for the health program is tuberculosis, which takes a tremendous toll of death and lost work hours from the island's manpower potential.

Bible Comment

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The humanity of Jesus is clearly manifested and emphasized throughout the Four Gospels, even in the Gospel of John, which, in its prologue, asserts most fully His eternal and divine nature. The Word was in the beginning, "and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

But Jesus of Nazareth was the Word made flesh, dwelling among men (John 1:14). This is the doctrine of the Incarnation, and it would have no reality, if the divine Word did not truly become man.

So, in the Gospel story we see Jesus sharing our common human life. He knew weariness and needed rest; He hungered; once He asked a Samaritan woman for a drink.

He felt the spiritual need of prayer, and in difficult days He went into a mountain, and continued all night in prayer. Both the Gospel records and the Epistle to the Hebrews tell how He was subject to temptation, "in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin."

That "like as we are" is significant. It was only after He had conquered that the angels came and ministered unto Him. (Matthew 4:11).

We miss the true relationship of the earthly life of Jesus to us, and our relationship to Him, if we do not grasp and realize the fact of His true humanity. But it is likewise necessary to see how it was in that earthly life that His divinity was revealed. It is in living with Him, as the disciples lived with Him, that we, too, shall fell the power and glory of the Christ.

It is possible, I believe, to live with Him in human fellowship as well as in spiritual communion, to know the Man, Christ Jesus, as well as the divine Lord.

We can so live in the Gospels, walking with Jesus and the disciples along the seashore, on the mountain, among the multitudes, in flowery fields and quiet places, among His friends.

We can have His comforting presence in homes of doubtful, questioning Pharisees; with other questioners who came by night, in the tragic scenes leading to the Cross, and the triumphant experiences of the Resurrection.

In such a way can the wonderful life and the wonderful story become as real to us, and much more significant and engrossing than the incidents and environment of daily life.

That the noblest Christians have so known Jesus and lived with Him is evident in many life histories. The imitation of Christ, the following of the example of the Master, has given many an example of love and service in which humanity has attained its greatest height.

In contrast to that glory of Christian living is the denial of God in the mass of evil, hatred, and violence in the world.

If men everywhere had the knowledge of God, if they knew the Gospels, and the Jesus Christ of the Gospels, the greatest hope of a better world would be realized. Yet how few think of the Gospel as the greatest weapon of hope and security

Honors Founders Of Parent-Teacher In Annual Affair At School

A birthday celebration commemorating the founding of the P.-T. A. is held each year by local associations throughout the nation in memory of its founders, Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

February 17 marks the 54th anniversary of the P.-T. A. and Claiborne P.-T. A. in tribute to the spirit of the founders rendered a very interesting program under the direction of Mrs. Alvie Wallace, the Founder's Day chairman. The main feature of the program was a pageant entitled, "Three Letters." Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, narrator took the audience back to the year 1897 and Mrs. Orie Hatten, Mrs. Bernie Emery and Mrs. Harold Traylor dressed in costumes of that era dramatized parents returning from the first day at school.

The year 1922 was next dramatized by Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. Jimmy Adams, and Mrs. Fred Riser. They too, were returning home from the first day of school, and were musing about the changed attitudes of parents and teachers about the need for home school cooperation.

The next dramatization was portrayed by Mrs. Clay Wilson, Mrs. Marie Wallace, and Mrs. J. C. Dickerson, and the year was 1945. They recounted the improvements and the public awareness of people everywhere concerning education of children and youth.

At the conclusion of this pageant, Mrs. M. L. DeFreese, the narrator said, "The national congress of parents and teachers has taken its place as an integral and indispensable factor in national welfare and vitality and fundamentally our purposes are the same now as always. This fact in itself is strong evidence of the inner soundness and worth of the parent-teacher ideal. Gifts made on this day are for extension of parent teacher work. From this source, field service has been financed, courses have been conducted, and all the state branches have been strengthened.

A short playlet was given by Polly Jane Riser, and Geraldine Dickerson, 4-H Club girls, entitled, "A Small Affair."

The final number on the program was a song skit by 12 girls in the newly organized Girl Scout troup, sponsored by the P.-T. A.

A short business session followed and delegates were elected to the district meeting to be held at the First Baptist Church March 7. Eight ladies were elected, and Supt. Mack Avants and Fred Riser will represent the male side of the membership. A nominating committee elected at this time will report at the next meeting.

Mrs. Bernie Emery, the president, turned the meeting over to the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Fred Riser, who invited the members in to enjoy a beautifully decorated cake and spiced punch.

Our Children

PARENTS' VOICES

The behavior of children is the result of parental attitudes and practices. Children reflect the character of their fathers and mothers, not as they see themselves but as they are reflected in the experiences their children enjoy or endure in association with them. What they would have their children become they must be in daily practice.

The voice that a parent uses in addressing a child carries the overtones of his inner self in unmistakable clarity to the mind of the listening child. Nothing is hidden; all he feels and thinks and is comes through.

If there is anger, fear, uncertainty, dislike behind the tone it will crackle and sparkle and threaten like a bunch of lighted firecrackers and the feeling, the attitude behind it, will be registered in the memory of the child to color his behavior in time to come.

If there is affectionate understanding, sympathy and friendship behind the tones, the child will respond as a flower-bud opening in the warmth of the sunshine and that, too, will be registered in memory to gentle and direct his behavior toward cooperative and effective ends.

Children respond to gentleness and firmness, while they turn a deaf ear to shouted commands. There is no such power in a shout as there is in a low-toned firmly spoken direction. Once a child has been conditioned to indifference een conditioned to indifference which leads to disobedience and to rebellion. A shout should be reserved for emergencies as when a child strays from safety toward danger. Only in such situations is a shout effective and then only if the child has been conditioned to the low-toned, firmly controlled voice. To the child conditioned to expect shouts, the cry of danger will be just another shout and to be taken accordingly.

What is to be done when a little child looks up from his play at a word from his parent and then calmly returns to his game? Wait a moment for a response. Give his mind time to function. If he does not respond go close to him, say his name, tell him what to do in a few clear words remembering that many words drown ideas, and wait again. If still no response, take him where you want him to be, without anger or roughness, and stand by until he obeys. But don't shout.

It is the still small voice of the spirit that reaches the child, not the voice of physical power, and it must rise from the disciplined spirit of his parents.

Lying is a bad habit and it must Lying is a bad habit and it must be cured. Dr. Patri advises parents to encourage children to tell the truth in his leaflet P-15, "Lying." To obtain a copy, send ten cents in coin to him, care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Less Students For Semester Enroll

Natchitoches, La., Feb. 24. — (Special)—Final enrollment figures for the spring semester at Northwestern State College stood at 1,396 students today as against 1,453 for the corresponding period a year ago, Otis R. Crow, college registrar, announced today. Although the total enrollment for the fall semester of the present school year was 1,571, the shrinkage in student numbers this semester was far less than was anticipated in view of the rather heavy exodus due to mid-year graduation and withdrawal from school of 101 men students to enter military service before the start of the spring semester, Mr. Crew said.

This spring semester finds 84 new students on campus, of whom 49 are men. Women students outnumber the men students this semester, there being 809 co-eds and 587 men students.

Well Known Quartet Began In Home Church

One summer day four boys, Freddie Rae Hall, Donald Bates, Gary Parrish and Billie Graff, stood around the piano where Mary Jane Dressler was playing church hymns. They decided to form a quartet and sing hymns. This was just a starting point for the boys. Their pastor, Homer R. Spence and J. P. Lindsay, their choir director, heard them singing and has encouraged the young people along.

Besides singing in their own home church, which is Good Hope, they have sung at other places. Their first appearance was at a Training Union meeting held at Cheniere Church. Then they sang at Calvary Baptist Church, the Church of God in McGuire addition and last Monday night they sang for the Sunday School convention held at the Trinity Church. They received an invitation to sing at the state convention to be held in alexandria this coming Monday night, which they have accepted.

These boys have named themselves the Bethany Quartet. Since Good Hope has Kenneth Adams as their choir director, they are going strong.

The public is invited to come out and hear these young people.

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.—Matthew 6:8.

Not what we wish, but what we want.
Oh! let thy grace supply.
The good unasked, in mercy grant;
The ill, though ask'd, deny.

Centenary College Will Send Its Choice Group Here For Concert

When the Centenary College Choir presents a concert on March 2nd at 8:00 p.m. in Brown Hall auditorium, local music-lovers will have the opportunity to hear one of the finest college choirs in the southwest.

Members of the 49 voice musical aggregation, made famous by their appearances in San Francisco, New York, and Chicago at Lions International conventions and by coast-to-coast network broadcast on "Solo and Soliloquy' and "Rex Maupin Presents" programs on the American Broadcasting Company and the preceding year with Paul Lavalles "Band of America" program on National Broadcasting Company, have begun their current season with the determination not only to maintain their reputation, but to add to their achievements during the coming year.

Looking toward this avowed aim, Director A. C. Voran put them through a full schedule of physical conditioning and rehearsals for a week at Camp Beeneaire on Lake Bistineau in Webster parish, Louisiana, during the first week of September. This week at camp, according to Mr. Voran, was more valuable than a month's regular rehearsals during the school term.

A number of new voices have joined the choir this year, Mr. Voran said, because a number of students have been attracted by the choir's growing fame.

He thinks that choir camp plays an important part in creating an "esprit de corps" among members. He feels that the morale and the spirit of cooperation which camp life engenders contributes as much to their performances as good singing. By having students live and work together for a week at camp, the foundation is laid for harmonious group life later on.

Mr. Voran trains his charges to carry as much of the responsibility of the choir's heavy schedule as possible. Representatives from each voice section form a board of directors in addition to the elective officers. All of them together form an executive council which collaborates with Vorna on choir policy.

Program of the Centenary College Choir will range from classical music to sacred numbers with a few jazz tunes thrown in for good measure.

L. O. Fisher Director Of Sunday Convention

Those who enjoy the old songs will have an afternoon of pleasure it is assured.

There will be solos, quartets, trios and other groups to participate.

RANCH WIFE PONDERS LIFE

Fred MacMurray encourages his bride, Irene Dunne, who is a bit down after her first day of ranch life, in "Never A Dull Moment," gay romantic comedy in which the two are starred. In the supporting cast are Andy Devine and William Demarest. "Never A Dull Moment" opens a three-day engagement at the Paramount Theatre today.

Dunne, MacMurray Star In Film At Paramount

With Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray in the stellar roles, RKO Radio's "Never A Dull Moment" deals in hilarious fashion with the trials of a sophisticated New York woman who marries a westerner and finds herself struggling with the complexities of life in the great open spaces. It opens three-day run at Paramount today.

Produced by Harriet Parsons the picture has Miss Dunne in the role a successful Broadway songwriter, and MacMurray as a Wyoming cow-puncher whom she meets at a charity rodeo and marries after a hectic courtship. He takes her to his ramshackle ranch, and there she encounters his two little girls who disapprove of their new stepmother. She tries to get used to baffling western ways, with highly humorous adventures stemming from the attempt.

The film features a notable supporting cast headed by William Demarest as a grumpy neighbor, Andy Devine as MacMurrays foreman, Gigi Perreau and Natalie Wood as the two children and Philip Ober as a New York friend of the bride. George Marshall directed with Lous Breslow and Doris Anderson writing the screenplay from the novel by Kay Swift. The latter has also authored two songs which are heard in the motion picture, as sung by Miss Dunne. They are "Once You Find Your Guy" and "The Man with the Big Felt Hat," another composition by Miss Swift, "Sagebrush Lullaby" is also introduced.

In Movieland

Hollywood, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Screen Writers Guild this week put on a show which is Hollywood's closest approach to Washington's gridiron dinner.

Just as the Gridiron Club spoofs figures in the government, the writer's show lampooned Hollywood and its foibles. In some portions, the program resembled a high school charade, despite the four-figure salaries of its authors and performers. But much of the show evoked laughter from the star-studded audience who came to honor the year's best film writing.

Van Heflin emceed the event. He admitted that he had been chosen because Phil Silvers, the emcee last year, had been funnier than most of the skits. "So they chose an actor who has never gotten a laugh in his life," said Van.

However, he broke his record when he introduced a singing trio composed of Jane Russell, Marie Wilson and Arlene Dahl. "These girls have two things in common," he said, adding a few seconds later, "beauty and talent."

The girls had beauty all right, but they will never threaten the Andrews sisters as a trio.

David Wayne, as a fraustrated writer, and Edward G. Robinson, as a producer, appeared in a skit wherein they tried to get a Mother Goose film past the censor, played by Paul Douglas. The proposed title, "Sextette," could not be allowed said the censor. In the end, the story of Jack and Jill turned out to be two marines charging up a hill, protected by the U. S. navy.

Groucho Marx put on a satire of his "You Bet Your Life" air show. His contestants were the two much-publicized producers, Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna. Marx found out from them that producers are people who spend five days in Palm Springs and the weekends in Hollywood—"because the tennis courts are crowded then."

"Our magic word tonight is 'television,'" said Groucho. "If one our contestants says 'television,' the next Guild banquet will be held at a hot dog stand at the beach." (The word "television" was a sure-fire laugh throughout the evening).

Next followed "All About Fairfax Ave.," a skit combining "All About Eve" and "Sunset Blvd." Claire Trevor played a combination of Bette Davis and Gloria Swanson with overtones of Tallulah Bankhead.

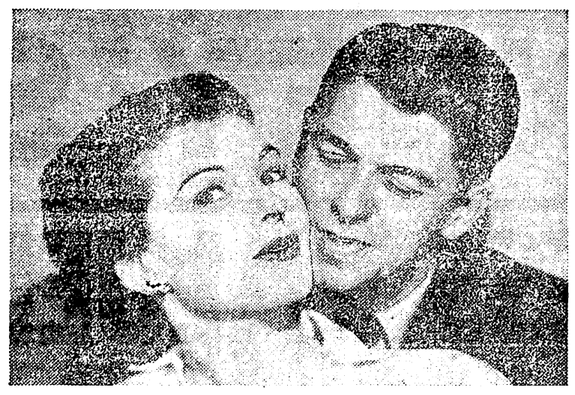

George Jessel posed as the world's oldest living film exhibitor and produced a wealth of charts to show why the movie business isn't what it used to be. He skipped lightly over an item called studio overhead, which he said represented 50 per cent of a film's cost.

It was a gay evening and proved that Hollywood can sometimes laugh at itself.

AT JOY DRIVE-IN TUESDAY

Ruth Hussey and Ronald Reagan in a romantic scene from "Louisa," Universal-International's riotous family comedy!

'Louisa' Hits Screen As Treat For Family

Family fare full of fun describes Universal-International's "Louisa," the rollicking comedy release on view at the Joy Drive-in theater Tuesday.

The cast is star-studded with Roland Reagan as the father and Ruth Hussey in the role of the mother in a family that is set topsy-turvy when a sprightly, romantic grandmother, as played by Spring Byington, gets herself involved in a romantic triangle with Charles Coburn and Edmund Gwenn.

"Louisa" is a comedy of every day family problems. Its people are you and I, our mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, daughters, sons, aunts, and uncles. And Ronald Ragan, as the vortex of the family whirlpool, plays a typical young American father with proper restraint and yet enough comic harassment to identify himself with every family man in the land who comes home at least twice a week to family troubles.

Ruth Hussey, as Reagan's long-suffering, deeply understanding and very beautiful wife, gives that touch of charm to the suburban household that every lovely spouse should give. As the woes and cares of the entire family bounce against her good humor and energy we come to realize that without her the picture would be as empty as a real-life home without a mother.

A sprightly down - to - earth American kid performance is turned in by Jimmy Hunt as the 10-year-old youngster of Reagan and Miss Hussey. But the surprise of the film is Universal-International's 18-year-old titian - haired discovery, Piper Laurie.

Ingenious Devices Solve Problems Of Filming Comedy In A Pullman Coach

'Mrs. O'Malley And Mr. Malone' Opens Thursday At Paramount

Accustomed to every request in motion picture scripts, from the duplication of a Moslem mosque to a facsimile of the handwriting of Marie Antoinette, it is very difficult to surprise a Hollywood art director. Consequently, when Cedric Gibbons and Daniel B. Cathcart went into a huddle on M-G-M's new mystery-comedy, "Mrs. O'Malley and Mr. Malone," which may be seen starting Thursday at the Paramount theatre, neither lifted an eyebrow at an order from the picture's producer, William H. Wright. The latter's memorandum read: "Build a fullsized Pullman coach."

"Our Pullman was an exact duplicate of the standard railroad car," states Daniel B. Cathcart, "with one exception. Unlike the regulation coach, each compartment in ours was constructed so as to be capable of being instantly dismantled. It would have been impossible to crowd Marjorie Main, James Whitmore and Ann Dvorak, to mention just a few of the players into one of the compartments plus a huge camera, plus Director Norman Taurog, the cameraman, assistants, electricians and associated equipment."

Cathcart explains that each compartment was built in sections. All corners were equipped with quick-action catches on which the studio's technical staff worked for weeks. This attaching mechanism cinched all four walls and ceiling together tightly. But if the director called for a change of camera angle, each wall was instantly detachable, thus permitting filming from any side.

The art directors also designed a platform on which to carry the coach. The platform was mounted on steel springs which were manipulated to give the effect of a speeding, swaying train. to counteract the effect of the camera swaying in synchronization with the train, Cathcart devised additional removable sections in the sides and rear of the coach. Through these the camera could be inserted on a long boom whose base remained motionless on the stage floor.

Still another problem remained. The large glass partition in the club car, separating the lounge from the bar, reflected light and resulted in an unsatisfactory glare Cathcart inserted narrow strips of glass at a slight angle around the edge of the frame. "Viewed from two feet away, this gave the impression of huge, beveled glass," he explains. "No reflection, no glare."

Fire Destroys Negro Dwelling

One Negro dwelling was completely destroyed and three others were damaged Friday night when a fire broke out at 107 Manassas street, said Monroe firemen.

Local firemen stated that cause of the fire was undetermined.

The dwelling belonging to the Bynum estate, and occupied by Sip Murphy, at 107 Manassas, burned to the ground. Murphy received serious burns on the head and hands.

Firemen saved the three other dwellings located at 105, 106 and 109 Manassas.

Engines 101. 102 and ladder company two answered the alarm at 9:30 p.m.

Engrossing Film Of Fight Game Playing At Joy Theatre Today

June Allyson and Dick Powell, who scored an outstanding hit as the comedy team of "The Reformer and the Redhead," are together again on the Joy screen in M-G-M's "Right Cross," engrossing drama of the prizefight game, with Ricardo Montalban also starred in the role of Johnny Monterez, middleweight champion around whom the story's action centers.

Whereas in their former hit it was Miss Allyson who pursued Dick Powell romantically, in the present instance it is Powell, cast as the happy-go-lucky sportswriter Rick Gavery, who carries a flaming torch for Pat O'Malley, daughter of a one-time top promoter whose contract with Johnny is his only remaining hope of regaining his lost prestige. It is Johnny whom Pat loves but when the champ, obsessed by a sense of social inferiority and a determination to provide himself with security, alighns himse'' with a rival promoter. Pat turns to the waiting arms of the torch-bearing Rick. The conflict is resolved in the story's tension-packed fight climax in which Johnny loses his title but regains both his self-respect and the girl he loves.

The natural charm and warm appeal which has made June Allyson one of the screen's top box-office draws is again evident in her role as the vivacious Pat O'Malley in which she has a fine opportunity to reveal hoth her talents as a touching dramatic performer and that ingratiating quality of recreating the "girl next door." Dick Powell is happily cast as the laconic sportswriter who only likes girls he can't get, with Ricardo Montalban offering one of his best portrayals to date as the fighter who both loses and wins his last round. Incidentally, Montalban is one actor playing a fighter who looks the part. Lionel Barrymore gives his usual force and conviction to the role of the discarded promoter, with able supporting work contributed by Teresa Celli as the champ's sister. Barry Kelley as a prizefight czar and Tom Powers as Johnny's lawyer.

The atmosphere of the prizefight world—the training camps, gym workouts, the betting fanatics—have been accurately etched into the action under the fluid direction of John Sturges, with the tense title bout which brings the story to its close one of the most realistic ever filmed. "Right Cross" will please all filmgoers who are drawn to a picture packing a punch. This one packs a wallop

RESERVE HEADQUARTERS IN TWIN CITIES

Organized Naval Reserve Is Established At Selman Field

Have Electronics Unit, Facilities For Radio And Radar

By Jim Reynolds

The Twin Cities may seem far from a seacoast town to most of the Monroe-West Monroe population, but there'll be a definitely salty tang to the air for 55 local Naval Reservists from now on.

In fact, the navy (at least on a part-time basis) is moving in, with the establishment of an organized reserve unit at Selman Field.

Previously, the unit, commanded by Commander T. C. "Buck" Pipes, was on a volunteer reserve basis. Members did not collect drill pay for any training sessions.

Now, announces the C. O., the unit is switching into the pay system. "As members of the organized naval reserve," he said, both officers and enlisted men in our complement will receive a full day's pay for each two hour drill attended."

The aim of the local sailors is to set up a complete electronics unit, specifically electronics warfare company 8-8, with facilities for all types of radio, radar and sonar istruction.

From its old, two-story home at Selman Field, the unit has moved into a refinished, shipshape building opposite the new administration building at the airport. Navy equipment costing approximately $250,000 has been moved in and set up, ready for instruction.

Crediting the city officials of Monroe for "complete cooperation," the skipper pointed to the radio antenna poles, donated and installed by the city without cost.

Remodeling the new headquarters was an expensive step. The total cost was estimated at $4,000. Contractor Frank Eason handled the work on the outside of the structure, Herbert F. Dillard the interior work, and the Stubbs Electric Co. took charge of the rewiring and heating problems. In addition, the navy hired a Seattle, Wash., contractor who has had extensive experience in the field to install the electronic equipment, under the supervision of a representative of the eighth naval district.

High frequency, high power radio equipment, underwater sound equipment and radar units including BR (interrogation) and IFF (identification) units are ready for the instruction of the trainees. Handling the technical training will be the commanding officer and H. L. "Dusty" Rhodes. All officers will instruct, either in advanced technical courses or basic subjects such as seamanship.

Lt. Comm. Tom Hayes, Jr., executive officer of the company, added other factors to the list of advantages brought by membership in the reserve group. "Our full complement will be 50 men and five officers," he said. "Every one of them, in addition to being paid the full daily sum they would earn on active duty in their present grade, will pile up promotion and retirement points for every drill attended."

Hayes warned that members would not be draft exempt merely because of their affiliation with the reserve, but said that the unit had been assured that all possible consideration would be given naval reserve members when their cases came before the board, and that it was reasonable to assume they might rate deferment unless manpower needs became increasingly greater.

Lt. Roy Johns, recruiting officer for the unit, announced that approximately 30 openings existed in the local reserve group, most for seaman recruits. He said enlistment was open to young men 17 and older and urged the 17 through 19 year old group specifically to investigate the advantages of the reserve.

Prospective enlistees were urged to call Johns at his home, telephone number 3-1766.

Shoe Factory Put On Feet

By Julius Humi

(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Trieste—(NEA)—As an example of international cooperation, Trieste's new Fortuna Shoe Co. is hard to beat. An American, using funds from the Allied military government, set up a plant in Trieste with Italian and Yugoslavian workers and raw materials from Madagascar.

The American is ex-diplomat Thomas A. McCann, of Minneapolis. He saw the possibilities of using Trieste's large number of skilled workers, and the fact that the city is a free port, in a manufacturing enterprise.

McCann obtained a 90,000,000 lire ($144,000) loan from the Allied military government and imported a complete shoe factory from Boston. And he used local raw materials—plus raffia from Madagascar palms—to specialize in hand-woven beach and summer sandals.

Before production began in January, the Fortuna salesmen had hustled up orders for more than 30,000 pairs of shoes. And they could have had more, but were afraid of the production kinks that usually beset a new plant. The kinks haven't developed, however.

The sandals have wooden soles, which are cut in Florence, Italy, and Lubljajana, Yugoslavia. These are then covered with raffia dyed by girls working in villages around Trieste. At the factory, workmen sew the braided raffia into strips, forming the uppers, straps and ankle bands for the shoes.

Salesmen who took samples into the U. S., England, Germany and Scandinavia, were warmly welcomed, possibly because of a worldwide leather shortage. Orders were quickly obtained for the shoes which sell at retail for $5 and look like expensive models.

The factory's present output is only 900 pairs a day, but McCann hopes to reach a 6000-pair-per-day figure when the factory is in full operation. So far, everything has broken right for the plant, which has the blessing of the AMG.

The company's name may have something to do with the breaks it's gotten so far. Fortuna means lucky.

BIRTHDAY HOLIDAY PROPOSED

Washington, Feb. 24.—(AP)—A resolution to make the birthday of the late President Roosevelt, Jan. 30, a legal public holiday was introduced yesterday by Senator Lehman (D.-N. Y.).

That some form of vegetable life exists on Mars is quite probable, an astronomer has stated. This plant life would be somewhat like the mosses and lichens of frigid mountain peaks of the earth.

Civilian Job Status Is Ticklish For Reservists

Bitterest By-Product Of Korean War Is Damage Done To Jobs Of Thousands Of Reservists And National Guardsmen

Washington—(NEA)—One of the most bitter by-products of the Korean war is the damage it has done to the jobs of hundreds of thousands of reservists and National Guardsmen.

Most Pentagon officials put the blame on employers. Employers blame the Pentagon. Most of the men who are affected blame both.

About the only thing there is agreement on is that when this is all over the present reserve structure of the services is going to have to be junked for something more modern and workable. Or there will have to be some kind of universal service or training.

A few typical examples tell the story best:

Case A joined the National Guard before World War II, was called to active duty and served meritoriously. He rejoined the Guard after the war. Just before Korea his firm promised him a promotion with a good increase in salary. On the basis of this he bought a new home with payments his promised raise could easily take care of.

However, when it looked as if he might be called to active duty after the Korean war started, the promotion never came through. Another man was given the job, the Guard member is about to lose his new home and all he put int it and there isnt much chance of his being called to active duty.

Just before Korea, Case B quit his job to open a business of his own. He thought he had the finances all arranged through the local bank. But when the bank learned that he was in the reserves and might be called up, it refused to go through with the loan. Now he can't get his old job back, can't get finances to start his venture, can't get a new job. And he hasn't heard from the services about a call back to duty.

Case C concerns a young man who was just starting out in the fuel-oil business. He had signed up a lot of customers for the winter just as Korea started. His competitor whispered it around that this man was a reservist who would be called to active duty and that he would never be able to deliver his oil. As a result, all of his contracts were cancelled, he could find no new customers and he lost every cent he put into the venture.

Case D is the young fellow who was called out with his Guard unit in the recent "snow emergency" to help some stranded motorists. He was gone from his job three days and when he returned was fired. All he can do is find part-time jobs laboring.

Multiply these examples by a big percentage of reservists and Guardsmen all over the U. S. to get a general idea of the problems they face in the way of getting promotions, new jobs or just keeping the ones they have.

In their own defense the business men say this:

"It just doesn't make sense to spend six months training a new man for a job if we're going to lose him right away."

"What's the sense of promoting a man to an important job when he'll only be able to hold it a couple of weeks and we'll just have to find another one for the job?"

"We can't assign a man who is liable to call to any of our important defense work. His leaving will cause a delay in our production."

The employers can point to the air force itself as an offender in this matter, too. The A. F. recently advertised for hundreds of new workers to open an air base. Next morning when a crowd of men gathered to go to work they were told by a public address system that all reservists might as well go home.

Big gripe of both employers and reservists against the services is the inability to get any positive information on a man's status.

Pentagon spokesmen agree that more and more firms are being talked into handling their reserve personnel problems in a much more enlightened fashion. The Pentagon, in turn, is trying to give reservists more positive information.

Brightest side of the picture is the fact that defense spending is rapidly creating a labor shortage all over the country and it is getting easier all the time for reservists to get jobs.

RADIO CLUB AIDS IN CIVIL DEFENSE

Notified Of Part It Will Play In Case Of Emergency

The Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio Club was informed (Feb. 22) on the role it would play in any civil defense emergency. District Chairman George Tidwell and West Monroe Defense Chairman Louis Lee told the club, which includes John Pete McKee, West Monroe communications chief and Bernie Wilenzick, Monroe communications chief, that any all-out attack on such centers as Baton Rouge would leave the "ham" radio operators with the only surviving means of communication.

Tidwell discussed their communications services during the recent emergency which the ice-and-snow storms created in this area. The Amateur Radio Club was so organized that its members were able to direct traffic where other forms of communications were knocked out. The Illinois Central Railroad, which "hams" dispatched from New Orleans, and the Associated Press, whose news releases they brought into the Twin Cities, have written formal letters of appreciation for their emergency work.

Also present was H. E. Griffith, district communication coordinator of Northeast Louisiana.

Much of the meeting was devoted to a discussion between the club and the civil defense directors on the vital need for emergency power.

With normal power lines potentially lost during air attack, the club's president, T. C. Pipes, and member, Pat Lynch, pointed out that some arrangement for emergency power sources must be realized. During the recent emergency, they contended, the "hams" were able to handle all traffic related to deaths, medicine, food needs, transportation and news services through enough emergency gear and mobile power to get them through. An air attack, they concluded, would be a different story.

Tech Enrollment Shows Increase

Ruston, Feb. 23.—(Special)—Because of a drop in enrollment at Louisiana Tech, the cafeteria in Iva Adams hall, new dormitory for women students, will be closed with the serving of the noon meal on Saturday, March 3, President R. L. Ropp said today.

The closing will result in a saving of $2,000 a month, the president stated. After March 3, students and faculty members now patronizing the cafeteria in Adams hall will be served in the cafeteria of the main dinning hall.

"Further in the interest of economy," President Ropp declared, "we are asking the students to be conservative in their selection of food, particularly bread and milk. We do not want their eyes to be bigger than their stomachs. For instance, while passing along the serving line, some students take three slices of bread but eat only two. Some take a bottle of milk and use a little of the top for their coffee, with the rest of the milk being left unused. These things, when done by several hundred persons three times a day, amount to a considerable loss.

CIVIL DEFENSE TOPIC

Civil defense will be discussed by Southwestern Louisiana school superintendents today with State Supt. Shelby M. Jackson. It is the third of four scheduled meetings with state school officials.

Lion In House Makes Country Officials Roar

By Glen Perrins

(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Salt Lake City, Utah—(NEA)—Major Sheridan has been banned from Salt Lake County, too, unless he goes into a pen.

Major Sheridan: "A cage would be so foolish . . ."

And Major Sheridan, says Mrs. J. E. Frank, will definitely not go into a pen.

Where Major Sheridan goes next is something of a dilemma in this section of Utah, but the major just lies on the front lawn of the Frank home in nearby Holladay, bright-eyed and unperturbed.

Major Sheridan is a lion, 18 months old, frisky and friendly. But Salt Lake City officials did not seem to want his friendship.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank brought him here from Sheridan, Wyo., in June, 1949, when the major was a five-week-old cub, suffering from pneumonia. Mrs. Frank doctored him. She claims legal ownership, a claim the city does not dispute.

Last October, the major was in the front yard when a seven-year-old boy put his foot under the gate. The major thought it was something to wrestle with. The howls were heard all the way down in City Hall, where Mayor Earl J. Glade gave the Franks 30 days to move, providing they took Major Sheridan with them.

They moved to Holladay, just a few miles outside the city limits. County officials, who are used to dealing with lions in the mountains, didn't know what to do about one in town.

The county can't make up its mind whether to ban the major, to give him a license if he stays in an enclosure, or to allow him to stay, providing he's penned, without a license.

"How could we cage him," asks Mrs. Frank, "when a cage would be so foolish for a lion that romps about the house?"

The county hasn't answered that one yet.

Jacques Bril Is Private Eye--- Also, Ear Nose and Throat

By Richard Kleiner

New York —(NEA)— Jacques Bril is a private investigator, the kind of guy the movies would call a "private eye." But he uses so many other senses in his sleuthing that to be accurate you'd have to call him a private eye, ear, nose and throat.

By employing modern electronic gadgets, Bril traps his man (or woman) through sound or smell, just as often as he does by sight. He calls what he does "scientific detection of deception,' which is another way of saying that a machine in the lab is worth a lot of questioning.

Bril, a criminologist for the state of New Jersey, is a dapper man with a dapper mustache and a dapper diamond ring sparkling on his right little finger. His interest in electronic crime detecting devices goes way back, as he's one of the investors of the lie detector, perfected in 1929.

The lie detector, incidentally, works on animal electricity and not on blood pressure as most people think. It seems every living thing gives off a measured amount of electricity. When upset (or telling a fib) this changes. Electrodes, strapped to the palms, record the changes.

This worked out so well for everybody (except crooks) that Bril began to use other electronic gimmicks. His car is equipped with a radio telephone. And, in case he is not in when the phone rings, he has a new device, called a Tele-Magnet, which answers it for him.

This almost - human machine picks up the receiver, switches on a record which says Bril isn't in but please leave a message, then switches on a tape recorder which records the message. When Bril comes back to the car, a tabulator tells him how many people called. He turns another switch and listens to the recorded phone calls.

He has another TeleMagnet in his office. His operatives, out trailing somebody, don't bother taking notes. Every once in a while, they call the office and record their notes on the TeleMagnet. Bril says it gets their impressions and facts while they're still fresh.

He's quite partial to recording devices, claiming they have revolutionized crime investigation.

"I can wire your house with you sitting there," he says, with a sly twinkle, "and you'll never know it. Here's two gimmicks—I could come in as a phone repairman or to read your meter. I'd have your house wired and you'd be sitting there, unaware of it all. There's lots of ways."

Once the house is wired, a wire recorder is set up and the investigators are in business. With just such a rig, Bril heard a political figure in a small town tell his housekeeper (and, if turned out, girl friend; not to get excited about people discovering his wife's body. The poor lady had disappeared, but Bril heard the man say something about under the floor in the garage. A little digging and there she was.

Jacques Bril and detecting gadgets: "I can wire your house with you sitting there, and you'll never know it."

Portable microphones and transmitters can be hidden in such common and unsuspicious objects as briefcases, hearing aids and canes. An investigator carrying such a set-up talks to the suspect while walking along the street. A car, following maybe a halfmile behind, has a receiver and a recorder.

Bril has used a new instrument, called a photo-electric recording spectrometer. With it, he can take a speck of paint, no bigger than the head of a pin, and tell the year, make and model of car it came from. That's because all car manufacturers vary their paint formula from year to year, and model to model. All the formulas are registered.

The same machine can also identify perfume. A capsule-full of air from a room where a perfumed lady was present can be tested. The instrument learns what perfume it was. Which can be helpful information in chercheing la femme.

TWEED COAT STOLEN

A gray tweed coat was stolen from the Charity Hospital Friday night, reported Monroe police officers. The coat belonged to Mrs. Sternberg, 907 Jackson street.

A new power grinder for the laboratory revolves the mortar or grinding bowl electrically, while a weighted arm holds the pestle and swings it back and forth in the bowl. It handles laboratory solids faster and more efficiently than the hand mortar-and-pestle method.

Millsaps School Has 4-H Club Meeting

The Millsaps School 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting Thursday, February 22, in the school lunchroom with approximately one hundred twenty members in attendance. In the absence of the president and vice-president, the secretary, Peggy Traxler, presided.

The program was in charge of Sue Hammonds and consisted of a medley of songs by members of the sixth grade and a piano solo by Harlan Humphries.

The executive council member of Millsaps Club, Harlan Humphries, gave an interesting report of the recent meeting of the parish 4-H executive committee at the agricultural building in West Monroe. At this meeting plans were made to hold the annual 4-H Achievement Day at Crosley School on Saturday, May 5. All rules remain the same as for previous Achievement Days.

The Millsaps Club agreed to participate in celebrating national 4-H Week March 3-11. The club will present a radio broadcast over a local station and in every other way possible draw attention to 4-H work.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, assistant home demonstration agent, gave the girls a demonstration in yard improvement. Robert W. Childress, assistant county agent, showed the boys how to effectively use several kinds of commercial fertilizers.

Local leaders present at the meeting were Mrs. Jake Humphries, Mrs. Lavon Oglesbee, James Walters, and Clifford Roberts.

U. S. Reconstruction Effort In Formosa May Set Asian Pattern By Out-Performing Red Promises

Taipen Formosa —(NEA) —A two-year-old American financed program of rural reconstruction has so improved the lot of tenant farmers on Formosa that officials see in it a pattern which might overcome Communist promises in other parts of Asia.

At a $2,257,000 expenditure of Economic Cooperation Administration funds, the joint commission on rural reconstruction boosted the island's vital rice crop last year from 1,060,000 to 1,214,500 tons. The dollar value of this additional rice yield alone is almost eight times the program cost to date. Exportable rice surpluses, expected for the 1951 crop year, will further reduce Formosa's need for dollar-aid.

At the same time the island's feudal system of "one-way" rental contracts has been revised. Former contracts could be altered or ended at the wish of the landlord, and required rentals as high as 70 per cent of crops. ECA-JCRR sponsored reforms have brought a 37.5 per cent rent-ceiling in force.

The JCRR was created by the 80th congress as a part of the 1948 China aid program. It is composed of three members named by the president of China, and two appointed by President Truman.

The Americans, both "old China hands" are Dr. Raymond T. Moyer, chief of ECA's China Mission, and Dr. John Earl Baker, one-time adviser to China's Ministry of Railways and for many years an executive of China relief.

The commission started too late for success on the mainland, but since moving to Formosa with the nationalist government has achieved spectacular results.

JCRR has accomplished its "purpose," the creation of rural stability by attacking the ills of the Formosan farmer on a wide front. Its specific aims have been dictated by the things the farmers themselves consider of first importance in improving their lives.

In the agricultural field, the commission has supported projects for the extension and improvement of irrigation facilities essential to the rice farmer, and has provided commercial fertilizers with which to bolster the lean soil.

Boon for lean soil is commercial fertilizer, brought into Formosa by the joint commission on rural reconstruction. These Formosan laborers are unloading a cargo of fertilizer.

Chief of JCRR's island-wide fertilizer distribution program is 26-year-old Ralph Gleason of Tonneville, S. C., who served in Korea with both American military government and ECA before joining the ECA-JCRR team on Formosa.

A native of Michigan, O. J. Todd, heads the commission's irrigation division. A grizzled old-timer on the China scene, he oversees projects affecting the island's 3400 kilometers of riceland canals.

Perhaps the most dramatic ECA-JCRR effort took place in January, 1950, when an epidemic of rinderpest threatened the island's vital water buffalo population.

A prompt isolation-vaccination-destruction campaign stopped the outbreak cold. Cattle which were destroyed to prevent spread of the disease were replaced by ECA funds, a step which sold the farmers on the sincerity of the JCRR program.

"The water buffalo are our lives," one farmer said. "That is what you have given us."

Less spectacular, but no less novel to Formosans, is the rural health program which has invaded even the rugged mountain homes of the island's aborigines.

Until the ECA-JCRR project started, the islanders accepted disease with characteristic easter resignation. Target number-one for the health program is tuberculosis, which takes a tremendous toll of death and lost work hours from the island's manpower potential.

PROF. GARRISON IS GIVEN HONOR

Tech Staff Member Is Named President Of Mathematics Group

Ruston, Feb. 24.—(Special)—Lester M. Garrison, Louisiana Tech professor of mathematics, was elected president of the Louisiana-Mississippi branch of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics at a recent meeting of that group in Starkville, Miss. He is past vice-president of the organization.

Meeting jointly with Garrison's group were members of the Louisiana-Mississippi branch of the Mathematical Association of America. Both societies met at Mississippi State College.

Four members of the Tech mathematics department, Dr. P. K. Smith, department head, Henry F. Schroeder, R. O. Sutton and Garrison attended the meeting.

Highlighting the conference were two talks given by Dr. A. S. Householder of the Oak Ridge national laboratory in Tennessee, who spoke on "Mathematics at Oak Ridge," and "Nervous Systems and Computing Machines."

Nine papers were presented by members of the association and eight by members of the council. They covered problems in high school and college mathematics and showed how many of the present-day problems are being met.

Next year's meeting of the council will be held at Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, Garrison announced.

RANCH WIFE PONDERS LIFE

Fred MacMurray encourages his bride, Irene Dunne, who is a bit down after her first day of ranch life, in "Never A Dull Moment," gay romantic comedy in which the two are starred. In the supporting cast are Andy Devine and William Demarest. "Never A Dull Moment" opens a three-day engagement at the Paramount Theatre today.

Dunne, MacMurray Star In Film At Paramount

With Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray in the stellar roles, RKO Radio's "Never A Dull Moment" deals in hilarious fashion with the trials of a sophisticated New York woman who marries a westerner and finds herself struggling with the complexities of life in the great open spaces. It opens three-day run at Paramount today.

Produced by Harriet Parsons the picture has Miss Dunne in the role a successful Broadway songwriter, and MacMurray as a Wyoming cow-puncher whom she meets at a charity rodeo and marries after a hectic courtship. He takes her to his ramshackle ranch, and there she encounters his two little girls who disapprove of their new stepmother. She tries to get used to baffling western ways, with highly humorous adventures stemming from the attempt.

The film features a notable supporting cast headed by William Demarest as a grumpy neighbor, Andy Devine as MacMurrays foreman, Gigi Perreau and Natalie Wood as the two children and Philip Ober as a New York friend of the bride. George Marshall directed with Lous Breslow and Doris Anderson writing the screenplay from the novel by Kay Swift. The latter has also authored two songs which are heard in the motion picture, as sung by Miss Dunne. They are "Once You Find Your Guy" and "The Man with the Big Felt Hat," another composition by Miss Swift, "Sagebrush Lullaby" is also introduced.

In Movieland

Hollywood, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Screen Writers Guild this week put on a show which is Hollywood's closest approach to Washington's gridiron dinner.

Just as the Gridiron Club spoofs figures in the government, the writer's show lampooned Hollywood and its foibles. In some portions, the program resembled a high school charade, despite the four-figure salaries of its authors and performers. But much of the show evoked laughter from the star-studded audience who came to honor the year's best film writing.

Van Heflin emceed the event. He admitted that he had been chosen because Phil Silvers, the emcee last year, had been funnier than most of the skits. "So they chose an actor who has never gotten a laugh in his life," said Van.

However, he broke his record when he introduced a singing trio composed of Jane Russell, Marie Wilson and Arlene Dahl. "These girls have two things in common," he said, adding a few seconds later, "beauty and talent."

The girls had beauty all right, but they will never threaten the Andrews sisters as a trio.

David Wayne, as a fraustrated writer, and Edward G. Robinson, as a producer, appeared in a skit wherein they tried to get a Mother Goose film past the censor, played by Paul Douglas. The proposed title, "Sextette," could not be allowed said the censor. In the end, the story of Jack and Jill turned out to be two marines charging up a hill, protected by the U. S. navy.

Groucho Marx put on a satire of his "You Bet Your Life" air show. His contestants were the two much-publicized producers, Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna. Marx found out from them that producers are people who spend five days in Palm Springs and the weekends in Hollywood—"because the tennis courts are crowded then."

"Our magic word tonight is 'television,'" said Groucho. "If one our contestants says 'television,' the next Guild banquet will be held at a hot dog stand at the beach." (The word "television" was a sure-fire laugh throughout the evening).

Next followed "All About Fairfax Ave.," a skit combining "All About Eve" and "Sunset Blvd." Claire Trevor played a combination of Bette Davis and Gloria Swanson with overtones of Tallulah Bankhead.

George Jessel posed as the world's oldest living film exhibitor and produced a wealth of charts to show why the movie business isn't what it used to be. He skipped lightly over an item called studio overhead, which he said represented 50 per cent of a film's cost.

It was a gay evening and proved that Hollywood can sometimes laugh at itself.

AT JOY DRIVE-IN TUESDAY

Ruth Hussey and Ronald Reagan in a romantic scene from "Louisa," Universal-International's riotous family comedy!

'Louisa' Hits Screen As Treat For Family

Family fare full of fun describes Universal-International's "Louisa," the rollicking comedy release on view at the Joy Drive-in theater Tuesday.

The cast is star-studded with Roland Reagan as the father and Ruth Hussey in the role of the mother in a family that is set topsy-turvy when a sprightly, romantic grandmother, as played by Spring Byington, gets herself involved in a romantic triangle with Charles Coburn and Edmund Gwenn.

"Louisa" is a comedy of every day family problems. Its people are you and I, our mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, daughters, sons, aunts, and uncles. And Ronald Ragan, as the vortex of the family whirlpool, plays a typical young American father with proper restraint and yet enough comic harassment to identify himself with every family man in the land who comes home at least twice a week to family troubles.

Ruth Hussey, as Reagan's long-suffering, deeply understanding and very beautiful wife, gives that touch of charm to the suburban household that every lovely spouse should give. As the woes and cares of the entire family bounce against her good humor and energy we come to realize that without her the picture would be as empty as a real-life home without a mother.

A sprightly down - to - earth American kid performance is turned in by Jimmy Hunt as the 10-year-old youngster of Reagan and Miss Hussey. But the surprise of the film is Universal-International's 18-year-old titian - haired discovery, Piper Laurie.

Ingenious Devices Solve Problems Of Filming Comedy In A Pullman Coach

'Mrs. O'Malley And Mr. Malone' Opens Thursday At Paramount

Accustomed to every request in motion picture scripts, from the duplication of a Moslem mosque to a facsimile of the handwriting of Marie Antoinette, it is very difficult to surprise a Hollywood art director. Consequently, when Cedric Gibbons and Daniel B. Cathcart went into a huddle on M-G-M's new mystery-comedy, "Mrs. O'Malley and Mr. Malone," which may be seen starting Thursday at the Paramount theatre, neither lifted an eyebrow at an order from the picture's producer, William H. Wright. The latter's memorandum read: "Build a fullsized Pullman coach."

"Our Pullman was an exact duplicate of the standard railroad car," states Daniel B. Cathcart, "with one exception. Unlike the regulation coach, each compartment in ours was constructed so as to be capable of being instantly dismantled. It would have been impossible to crowd Marjorie Main, James Whitmore and Ann Dvorak, to mention just a few of the players into one of the compartments plus a huge camera, plus Director Norman Taurog, the cameraman, assistants, electricians and associated equipment."

Cathcart explains that each compartment was built in sections. All corners were equipped with quick-action catches on which the studio's technical staff worked for weeks. This attaching mechanism cinched all four walls and ceiling together tightly. But if the director called for a change of camera angle, each wall was instantly detachable, thus permitting filming from any side.

The art directors also designed a platform on which to carry the coach. The platform was mounted on steel springs which were manipulated to give the effect of a speeding, swaying train. to counteract the effect of the camera swaying in synchronization with the train, Cathcart devised additional removable sections in the sides and rear of the coach. Through these the camera could be inserted on a long boom whose base remained motionless on the stage floor.

Still another problem remained. The large glass partition in the club car, separating the lounge from the bar, reflected light and resulted in an unsatisfactory glare Cathcart inserted narrow strips of glass at a slight angle around the edge of the frame. "Viewed from two feet away, this gave the impression of huge, beveled glass," he explains. "No reflection, no glare."

Fire Destroys Negro Dwelling

One Negro dwelling was completely destroyed and three others were damaged Friday night when a fire broke out at 107 Manassas street, said Monroe firemen.

Local firemen stated that cause of the fire was undetermined.

The dwelling belonging to the Bynum estate, and occupied by Sip Murphy, at 107 Manassas, burned to the ground. Murphy received serious burns on the head and hands.

Firemen saved the three other dwellings located at 105, 106 and 109 Manassas.

Engines 101, 102 and ladder company two answered the alarm at 9:30 p.m.

Engrossing Film Of Fight Game Playing At Joy Theatre Today

June Allyson and Dick Powell, who scored an outstanding hit as the comedy team of "The Reformer and the Redhead," are together again on the Joy screen in M-G-M's "Right Cross," engrossing drama of the prizefight game, with Ricardo Montalban also starred in the role of Johnny Monterez, middleweight champion around whom the story's action centers.

Whereas in their former hit it was Miss Allyson who pursued Dick Powell romantically, in the present instance it is Powell, cast as the happy-go-lucky sportswriter Rick Gavery, who carries a flaming torch for Pat O'Malley, daughter of a one-time top promoter whose contract with Johnny is his only remaining hope of regaining his lost prestige. It is Johnny whom Pat loves but when the champ, obsessed by a sense of social inferiority and a determination to provide himself with security, alighns himself with a rival promoter, Pat turns to the waiting arms of the torch-bearing Rick. The conflict is resolved in the story's tension-packed fight climax in which Johnny loses his title but regains both his self-respect and the girl he loves.

The natural charm and warm appeal which has made June Allyson one of the screen's top box-office draws is again evident in her role as the vivacious Pat O'Malley in which she has a fine opportunity to reveal both her talents as a touching dramatic performer and that ingratiating quality of recreating the "girl next door." Dick Powell is happily cast as the laconic sportswriter who only likes girls he can't get, with Ricardo Montalban offering one of his best portrayals to date as the fighter who both loses and wins his last round. Incidentally, Montalban is one actor playing a fighter who looks the part. Lionel Barrymore gives his usual force and conviction to the role of the discarded promoter, with able supporting work contributed by Teresa Celli as the champ's sister, Barry Kelley as a prizefight czar and Tom Powers as Johnny's lawyer.

The atmosphere of the prizefight world—the training camps, gym workouts, the betting fanatics—have been accurately etched into the action under the fluid direction of John Sturges, with the tense title bout which brings the story to its close one of the most realistic ever filmed. "Right Cross" will please all filmgoers who are drawn to a picture packing a punch. This one packs a wallop

Soon mother won't be able to win. Junior will either forget to wear his rubbers or track slush through the house with them on.

Tech Staff Member Is Named President Of Mathematics Group

Ruston, Feb. 24.—(Special)—Lester M. Garrison, Louisiana Tech professor of mathematics, was elected president of the Louisiana-Mississippi branch of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics at a recent meeting of that group in Starkville, Miss. He is past vice-president of the organization.

Meeting jointly with Garrison's group were members of the Louisiana-Mississippi branch of the Mathematical Association of America. Both societies met at Mississippi State College.

Four members of the Tech mathematics department, Dr. P. K. Smith, department head, Henry F. Schroeder, R. O. Sutton and Garrison attended the meeting.

Highlighting the conference were two talks given by Dr. A. S. Householder of the Oak Ridge national laboratory in Tennessee, who spoke on "Mathematics at Oak Ridge," and "Nervous Systems and Computing Machines."

Nine papers were presented by members of the association and eight by members of the council. They covered problems in high school and college mathematics and showed how many of the present-day problems are being met.

Next year's meeting of the council will be held at Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, Garrison announced.

HOW COME HE'S WORKING OVER THE SNAPPER?

BECAUSE BRASSARD TOOK RESPONSIBILITY FOR A STUPID STUNT I PULLED. OL' HOTSHOT FEELS REAL SMALL.

I WAS GOING TO SHOW SNAPPER BRASSARD. HE TOLD ME TO DIVE THE JET TRAINER. I DIDN'T PULL OUT UNTIL I WAS DUSTING A ROAD. SCARED OL' STAR-SPANGLED INTO A DITCH. HE WAS WAITING WHEN WE LANDED ...THE SNAPPER TOLD HIM I WAS MERELY OBEYING ORDERS.

GUESS THE GENERAL RAN OUT OF PIECES OF HIS MIND TO PASS OUT...HERE COMES THE SNAPPER AND HE LOOKS SCORCHED.

COLONEL BRASSARD, SIR. THANKS FOR COVERING ME. IT WAS REAL DECENT OF YOU...

I NEEDLED YOU INTO THAT FOOL STUNT, CHARLES. I LET MY DISLIKE OF YOU INTERFERE WITH MY DUTY AS YOUR SUPERIOR OFFICER. I DESERVED THE REPRIMAND.

GOLLY! THAT'S WHITE OF YOU, SIR...IF THE FEUD'S OVER...

ON THE CONTRARY. I STILL REGARD YOU AS A LIGHTWEIGHT FLY-BOY WITH A FLIP ATTITUDE TO BOTH MILITARY FLYING AND SPRAY O'HARA!

MYRTLE! CUT OUT THE COMEDY AND SIT UP HERE AND EAT YOUR DINNER!

NO!

BUT, DOCTOR, IF IT WERE VEGETABLES, I WOULDN'T BE SURPRISED, BUT WHEN SHE TURNS UP HER NOSE AT ROAST PORK AND APPLES...

BRING HER OVER TO MY OFFICE RIGHT AWAY.. THIS SOUNDS SERIOUS!

LET HER ALONE, FREDDIE.. IF SHE DOESN'T WANT TO EAT, IT'S ALL THE MORE FOR THE REST OF US

NO, SLUG! YOU HAVE TO THINK ABOUT YOUR PLUNGING WAISTLINE.

STICK AROUND, JUNIOR.. IF MYRTLE DOESN'T EAT IT, THEY MAY GIVE IT TO US!

REMEMBER, WE SPLIT 50-50.

GEE WHITH, UNCLE FREDDIE! OF COURTHE MYRTLE CAN'T EAT HER DINNER!

SHE WAS SO HUNGRY THIS AFTERNOON SHE THOUGHT SHE WAS GOING TO DIE BEFORE DINNER-TIME!

SO WE BOUGHT HER THREE HAMBURGER SANDWICHES.

AND TWO ICE-CREAM CONES AND A CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE.

AND FOUR BOTTLES OF POP!

AND WE DIDN'T HAVE ANY MONEY, SO WE CHARGED IT TO YOU.

BUT WE SAVED MYRTLE'S LIFE!

SMILE, ALICE! YOU CAN'T BE AN OFFICIAL FIRST ROBIN WITH A SOUR PUSS LIKE YOURS!

WELL, THERE'S NOTHING WRONG WITH ME THAT A NICE FAT CATERPILLAR WOULDN'T HELP.

AND YOU CALL THAT 50-50!

HERE, MYRTLE, TAKE A SPOONFUL OF THIS AND THEN GO TO BED

FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE ®

DISGUISED AS ONE OF THE WIZARDS, FLASH GAINS ENTRY INTO THEIR UNDERGROUND FORTRESS. "MAKE WAY, GUARDS," HE BLUFFS. "I HAVE CAPTURED DALE AND QUEEN SUNNI." THE STARTLED GUARDS FALL BACK OBEDIENTLY.

BUT FLASH HAS THE BAD LUCK TO RUN INTO THE CHIEF WIZARD, KURZO, HIMSELF. "YOU SCHEMING IMPOSTOR!" KURZO SNARLS. "YOU SHALL DIE FOR THIS!" FLASH'S REPLY IS TO SPRING TO ATTACK THE TYRANT.

KURZO HAS NO TASTE FOR HAND-TO-HAND COMBAT. AS HE FLEES, HE SHOUTS TO THE GUARDS AT THE ENTRANCE: "BAR THE DOORS! FLOOD THE CAVES -- WITH LIQUID FIRE!

THE DOORS SLAM SHUT, TRAPPING FLASH AND HIS FRIENDS. SUDDENLY, FROM CRACKS IN THE WALLS, BURNING OIL SPURTS OUT IN SPREADING STREAMS.

"CLIMB THE WALLS. DON'T GIVE UP," FLASH SHOUTS TO HIS TERRIFIED FRIENDS. SUDDENLY PRINCE FINO CALLS OUT: "THIS WAY, FLASH. THERE'S A TRAP DOOR UP HERE. MAYBE WE CAN FORCE IT OPEN!"

MYSTERY of the FRAZZLED FABRICS

Impurities in harsh bleaches cause damage. MANY BLEACHES CONTAIN CHEMICAL IMPURITIES THAT MAKE THE SOLUTION WORK VIOLENTLY AND ATTACK THE CLOTH INSTEAD OF SIMPLY WHITENING IT. EVEN WHEN YOU FOLLOW DIRECTIONS, THESE HARSH, IMPURE BLEACHES CAN BREAK DOWN YOUR COTTONS AND LINENS, MAKE YOU BUY REPLACEMENTS MUCH TOO SOON. YOU CAN WASTE MANY DOLLARS JUST BY CHOOSING THE WRONG BRAND OF BLEACH!
